Ascension is 760 miles northwest of St. Helena, and is described in the reports of the celebrated "Challenger" as "a series of extinct volcano cones." It was compared by Darwin to "a huge ship kept in first-rate order." As every stamp collector knows—having acquired the knowledge perhaps only because he is a collector, by reason of his acquisition of or learning about the various British "used abroads"—the island is—or perhaps we should say was—under the jurisdiction of the Admiralty and is rated as a ship of war. It is said to have been discovered by a Portuguese, named Joao de Nova Gallego, on Ascension Day, 1501, and two years later was visited by Alphonse d'Albuquerque, who gave the island its present name. Its extreme length is seven and a half miles, and extreme breadth six miles, with an area of about forty square miles, and, being situated in the heart of the S.E. trade winds, its climate is dry and salubrious up to 1,800 feet, but above that height to its limit it is damp and foggy. It remained uninhabited till 1815, when the British took possession of it.

The inhabitants consist of officers and their families, seamen, marines, and Kroomen from the Liberian coast; a limited number of men also have their families with them, the full complement of the island being about 250 (exclusive of forty members and servants of the Eastern Telegraph Co..) with about thirty-five women and children. George Town, the garrison settlement, is situated in a small bay on the northwest coast.

The island is fortified, and is connected by the Eastern Telegraph Co. with St. Vincent, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, and Buenos Aires. It now possesses a steam factory, while there is also an excellent hospital and sanatorium. So it has just as much right to its own postage stamps as the Cayman and the Gilbert and Sullivan Isles, though, so far, it seems to have no staple industry, unless we can count its chief products—fish, turtle, and birds' eggs. Ascension is visited by the sea turtle from January to May, which lay their eggs in the sand, fifty-eight being "turned" during 1920, their weight being from 500 to 800 lbs. The sooty tern, or "wide-awake," use the island as a nesting place about every eighth month, their eggs being much appreciated by the inhabitants. Were it not that we are already in possession of official information as to the nature of the design for the stamps to be ultimately issued, we might have had visions of turtles or sooty terns or Tongaesque watermarks on Ascension stamps.

Our reference books tell us that the bare hills have been covered with plants and shrubs, a road has been constructed for six miles from the landing place, and a good water supply secured.

According to the latest "Whitaker," the officer in charge is Major H. G. Grant, R. M. L. I., its trade for 1920 being recorded as: Exports £191, Imports (all from the U. K.) £28,925. Transit from London to Ascension occupies about fourteen days.

More than six years ago, when Stamp Collecting first hinted at the possibility of a separate postal issue for Ascension, we remarked that it would be very appropriate to have a series of King George stamps from George Town!

MATSUMURO MUSHO WRITES ABOUT PHILATELIC NUTTS AND NUTTS IN GENERAL.

HON. EDITOR, Phizzletelic Phizzle.
(Who are some Philatelic Nutt).

Hon. Sir?

Little Jap Boy notice with muchly glee in Hon. Magazines and Hon. News Print Papers in last year muchly comment and news stories about Hon. Philately which are all to the Hon. Mustard we opine.

But Little Jap Boy also note of late the Hon. writings of one Hon. Arthur Brisbane who are an Irish Swede from Hon. Hoboken or some other Hon. Foreign Country who are paid real Hon. Money to write Hon. Hot Stuff for Hon. Hearst's yellow Kidd Newspapers.

Hon. Brisbane opines that any one who collects Hon. stamps is a nutt and are one sweet candidate for Hon. Booby Hatch. He also intimate that Hon. stamp collecting are muchly to strenuous for Hon. Healthy children which make one sweet sickly smile appear on our Hon. Visage.

Little Jap Boy opine that Hon. Brisbane have gone off half cocked, and we ask it? What do Hon. Brisbane know about what Hon. Philately teach? We are muchly willing to bet 10 Yen to hole in Hon. Dough Nutt that Hon. Brisbane who appear so intelligently wise can't tell off hand where Hon. Clipperton Islands are locate, nor how Hon. Uncle Sam got Hon. Hawaiian Islands, nor read one of "BRODYS" letters, nor pronounce Blagoveschensk correctly three times in one Hon. Minute without sneezing to death. Yes; Hon. Brisbane are a Nutt alright but he are about 60% below a Hon. Philatelic Nutt. Banzai.

Little Jap Boy have find many Hon. Nutts in traveling around this Hon. U. S. A. firstly there are the Nutt that plays the Hon. GOLUF. Little Jap Boy no can do. Hon. Goluf NUTT place Hon. Ball on Hon. Ground, then making muchly pretense to smite Hon. Ball to see if Hon. Ball are Nervous, then if Hon. Ball are quite composed, and Hon. Goluf player are sure everyone are looking he hit Hon. Goluf Ball on left cheek for a row of tin bath houses, AND, if Hon. Goluf Player find Hon. Goluf Ball the same Hon. Week he wins. Some Hon. Nutt.

Then Little Jap Boy have find the Hon. Billiard Nutt who will walk 17 Hon. Miles around the Hon. Green Table in one night and call it sport. Then there are the Hon. Lawn Tennis Nutt. 40 Love and Hon. Balls to you stuff. The Hon. Chess-Nutt that moves every Hon. Hour whether he wants to or not. The Hon. Boxing Nutt, the Hon. Wrestling Nutt, the Hon. Baseball Nutt, and a great many other Hon. Nutts who infest this Hon. Country.

Little Jap Boy happen to tell one Hon. Drug Clerk last week that he were muchly interested in Hon. Stamps. Hon. Drug Clerk say with sweet sarcastic smile. "So you are one Hon. Philatelic Nutt are you?" Yas I assent, in delightful discord, I are, What, may I inquire, are you nutty about? Oh, say Hon. Drug Clerk, I like very muchly to catch the Hon. Black Bass, but I think any one must be a little off to collect the Hon. Postage Stamps. He make comeback. Mebbe so, I remark. But any Hon. Human who can walk many Hon. Miles along the Hon. Creek and hope and pray that a 10 inch Hon. Bass will rise to choke to death on a Hon. Eight Inch Chub, he are not NUTTY, oh, no, just a Hon. Piscatorial Artist that's all.

So Little Jap Boy opine that is Hon. World are full of Hon. NUTTS and they all feel sorry for the Philatelic Nutts.

Obediently yours,
Matsumuro Musho

IT USED TO BE SO.

Do you remember way back w folks ran charge accounts at their l post office?

That was back in 1851, accordin our informant, before postage sta were used on mail matter.

One of our subscribers rece showed us several letters received prominent Dubuquers several years fore the Civil war.

One of the communications was f Galena and bears the date July 10, 1 The letter was enclosed in an improv envelope which was sealed with a pa wafer and addressed to Messrs. C and Bissell, a firm of attorneys. notation written across the face of envelope advises the postmaster charge the expense of transporting letter to "Box 142."

Imagine approaching Postmaster nes in these modern times and trying open up a charge account.

The Galena postmaster receipted the charge of three cents imposed on sender of the above communication a rubber stamp.

The ink used in those days was dently made of good material as communications are as readable as day they were written.—Dubuque Telegraph-Herald.

Written for MEKEEL'S

THE FERRARI OF AMERICA.

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

Since the April session of the famous Ferrari auction sale, at which the unique British Guiana stamp was sold, much has appeared in the philatelic press of the world regarding this as well as other rarities that changed hands but nothing has been written about the purchaser, Mr. Arthur Hind, except to state that the stamps were acquired in his behalf.

When the daily press announced cable reports of the prices at which certain stamps were sold, reporters of the New York papers interviewed the larger stamp dealers to learn as to the probable American purchaser. They one and all supposed it was Mr. Caspary or Colonel Green or Mr. Ackerman or possibly the King of England. Not one thought of Mr. Hind, for previous to the sale he was not known as a purchaser of rarities. Some writers have wondered what these well known stamps actually cost the purchaser after he had paid the French government tax and other expenses. Such happenings made it of interest to know this gentleman, who was fast becoming the Ferrari of America, to learn what and how he collected, how long had he collected, what did the 1c British Guiana, the Boscawen, the Lockport and others actually look like and what did they cost him in real honest to goodness dollars and cents.

Towards the end of June, I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Hind, hence these few notes. Taking a sleeper out of New York City I reached Utica early in the morning and learned by phone that Mr. Hind was ready to see me. A taxi soon reached the outskirts of the city where I found the Hind residence, an unpretentious bungalow such as we find at our coast resorts. Mr. Hind greeted me at the door. I had for some reason, or I better say without reason, pictured him as a tall, wiry business man around forty. Instead I found him to be a genial, stocky, thickset gentleman around sixty, ruddy complexion, blue eyes, light hair bordering on gray with a close cropped sandy mustache. As for height, he is neither tall nor short but medium. Mr. Kennett was present on one of his regular visits, in consultation and assisting in arranging recent purchases.

Mr. Hind is President of the Hind & Harrison Plush Company, one of the largest manufacturers of its kind in the country. He started collecting stamps in a modest way about thirty years back but only recently has come into the market as the purchaser of the best and rarest that is offered. He collects the postage stamps of the world but is more interested in the unusual items than he is in the general run of things. In United States for instance he goes in for singles, unused, of the 19th century issues while in the 20th century he collects mint blocks. While he has many fine blocks of our early issues he is by no means trying to complete the several series in this shape, but when the unusual is offered, such as the block of twenty-one of the 10c 1851, that was sold at the

H. F. COLMAN SECOND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

Springfield Convention of the American Philatelic Society, why he goes after it and gets it. He pays big prices but should be classed as a careful buyer, in other words he feels that an auction sale sets the price and possibly buys more in this manner than otherwise. From my impressions I imagine that he gladly paid $1825.00 at auction to obtain the block of the 10c 1851 just described above, but had it been offered at private sale for $1500.00 I doubt very much if he would have bought it.

His collection is mounted in loose leaf albums and he keeps on hand a copy of the Scott catalogue with every item checked that he has. In United States he has practically everything, including most all of the early postmaster provisionals. He had the first pick from the Gibson Collection when that well known lot of rarities was broken up and took the buff Alexandria, and many of the Baltimores and others, for some reason he passed up the blue Alexandria evidently feeling that the price upon it was more than it was worth. I believe this is the only postmaster that he lacks.

He owns the only copy known of the 5c Boscawen which he obtained at the Ferrari sale at a cost to him covering sales price, tax and expenses about $12,000.00. I believe this is the first time this information has been published. The stamp when I saw it was still mounted on the sheet from the auction sale, or I better say the cover upon which appeared the stamp was so mounted. It is printed in a dull blue on what appears to be almost a yellowish white coarse tissue paper. The cover is addressed to Concord, New Hampshire, and while the stamp is uncancelled the cover shows a manuscript postmark reading "Boscawen, N.H.—Dec 13" in two lines, same appearing in the upper left corner of the cover. On the back we find a pencil notation, signed "John N. Luff" "this is the Boscawen stamp described in my book on U. S. Postage Stamps. So far as I know it is the only copy in existence.". It is from this cover that the illustration in his monograph on United States stamps was made. The cover on the front also shows the Ferrari three-leaf clover. This stamp was issued in Boscawen during 1846, at which time Worcester Webster, a relative of Daniel Webster, was postmaster. He served in this capacity from February 5 1841, and retired on January 15, 1851. His provisional was carelessly type set and it is so hastily gotten together that it is doubtful if many were sold. This unique cover, so we are told, was obtained by a Mr. H. H. Lowrie in 1865 from Mr. William M. Ireland, then Chief Clerk to the Third Assistant Postmaster General. Mr. H. E. Deats acquired it from Mr. Lowrie and I believe it then passed to the Scott Stamp and Coin Company who in turn sold it to Ferrari.

The unique Lockport postmaster provisional, also acquired at the Ferrari sale at a net cost to the owner of about $8,550.00, is on a cover and cancelled with cross lines in ink, the lines looking as if they were applied by someone old or nervous for they are anything but straight. The stamp is in the upper left corner, is printed in a very light dull red on a coarse wove buffish paper. The figure "5" of value is in manuscript in black ink. The cover is addressed to Geneva, N. Y., and shows a Lockport postmark. The letter is dated March 18, 1846. This variety was issued at a time when Col. Hezekiah W. Scovell was postmaster and he served in this capacity from 1835 to 1849. I overlooked mentioning that the word PAID also appeared on the cover.

Another postmaster of more than passing interest, secured by Mr. Hind at the April, 1922, Ferrari Sale, was the well known 5c red Annapolis listed in Scott as No. 2. This variety is an envelope stamp and the impression is strongly impressed in dull carmine on a neat white envelope. There is a very distinct and sharp postmark in blue at the left. Both impressions were made by someone with plenty of time on their hands for they are very distinct and clear in every way. This cover was found in January, 1895, by Mr. Burger in the correspondence of an old Philadelphia concern, Carstairs & Company. This cover, like the two above, also shows the little circle with clover leaf. The Annapolis postmaster provisional was issued in 1846, at the time the Hon. M. F. Revell, who served from 1844 to 1849, was the postmaster of the town that was later to house our Naval Academy. For this cover Mr. Hind paid about $2,965.00.

In the way of United States of lesser importance, including the general issues, Mr. Hind has practically everything in mint condition, all of the August issue, most all of the grills, the 1869 inverts, the special prints, all of the late blocks, including mint blocks of the 4c and 8c 1908 on blue paper.

In foreign, his holdings are too numerous to describe. He has the Hawaiian Missionaries, including the rare 2c, as well as a special collection of numerals with over 20 completed plates; the Post Office Mauritius 1 pence and 2 penny, about all of the other issue, including many PENOE errors, also many other countries specialized, particularly Spain, Mauritius, British Guiana, France, Roumania, Mexico, Cape of Good Hope, New South Wales, and Philippines. He goes in for the late war and post-war varieties as well as the early classics. His "piece de resistance" however, is the 1c British Guiana of the issue of 1856, possibly the most written about stamp ever issued. Whenever a newspaper desired a stamp story or you wanted to tell a friend about the wonderful things of philately, it was this stamp that was mentioned. Scott lists it as number 13, but thirteen is a lucky number in this case. There is only one of this stamp, and we are glad to see the famous rarity come to America. If Mr. Hind had done nothing else for philately his name would have been made philatelically, and he would have deserved the thanks of all American collectors for bringing this gem to our shores. It has advertised stamps, it has shown that real stamps mean real money. As Mr. Kennett expressed it, it would have paid Henry Ford to have purchased this stamp, even had he destroyed it afterwards.

Most of the papers that have mentioned this stamp, have described it as being badly damaged and in poor condition. From my inspection I certainly would not describe it as such. While it is cut to shape, that is rectangular with the four corners cut off making an octagon, the printing is clear, the word "one" is distinct and the initial is sharp. It seems to have a thin spot not noticeable on the face, and on the back we find a purple rubber stamp guarantee, undecipherable, of someone. Mr. Hind still had this on the auction sheet when I examined it and for this he did not pay $32,000 as has so often been stated in the philatelic press, but it cost him just exactly $34,198.00 in real coin of the realm. The stamp is printed in black on what might be described as dark magenta paper, colored through, and has black manuscript initials "E. D. W."

It was typeset at the office of the Official Gazette at Georgetown, British Guiana, during 1856, at a time when they were awaiting a supply of stamps from England. Writing about it in 1902 Mr. Nankivell, the well known and well posted English editor, stated that if it were sold it would possibly bring between one and two thousand pounds. None of us ever thought it would bring several times that figure, and the question arises as to what it will bring if it ever again comes upon the market. A few years back, a price around $7,000 for a stamp was a record, and it was thought that the highwater mark had been reached. Today there are a dozen different stamps that are worth in excess of $10,000. Will the time not come when we will have our hundred thousand dollar class like paintings, tapestries, rugs and the like?

Mr. Hind's most recent purchase was a beautiful copy of the 10c bluish Baltimore on cover. The most expensive item in his collection is a Mauritius cover, of which we present a reproduction elsewhere in this issue. It is unique in the way that no other envelope is known with both penny and two-penny. It cost about $50,000.00.

Mr. William C. Kennett, Jr., Hazelwood, Ohio, has a correct inventory of Mr. Hind's collection, and with the exception of special rarities which he receives direct, is entrusted with all his purchases, as Mr. Hind's travels and absence from the States for months at a time, makes it impracticable for him to give his personal attention to approvals or auction sales.

I overlooked mentioning that Mr. Arthur Hind has a keen sense of humor, for he asked me how an alert young man could live in a slow town like Philadelphia, and on asking him if he often visited the city, stated that he passed through it on the way to other places. He tells me that he is not making the collection with any intentions of ever leaving it to a museum or any other place. From my conversation I have concluded that he feels he is making a good investment and who is there among us but what will agree with him.

THE LIGHTNING CALCULATOR.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found the advertisement of F. E. Hook, who besides being interested in stamps both as a dealer and collector is also connected with the Lightning Calculator Corporation of Grand Rapids, Michigan. He is also a member of the A. P. S. Many of the lightning calculators handled by this firm have been sold not only to the public, generally, but to dealers who are using the columns of the WEEKLY. The machine is a very handy one, and adds, subtracts and multiplies to the delight of the weary brain.

EARLY BRITISH COLONIALS

I am dispersing a choice collection in exceptionally fine condition at More Than Half Catalogue.
Also a fine specialized collection of EDWARDIAN and GEORGIAN issues, mint and superb used.

THE "POST PAID" MAURITIUS.

By C. A. Howes.

(Translated by Permission from Messrs. Theodore Champion's "Monthly Bulletin" and will later be reprinted in booklet form.)

Two plates of the One Penny and Two Pence (POST PAID) were found in 1910 in a cellar beneath the building used for the administrative office of the Governor of Mauritius, Sir Cavendish Boyle, who brought them to England and offered them to the King, the former President of the Royal Philatelic Society. These plates had already been seen by Major Evans when he was an officer in the Island and he had some impressions in black made from them. These proofs have been reproduced in the work on the stamps of British Africa published by the Royal Society.

This important discovery has proved two things—that the plates of the 1 penny and 2 pence of 1849 were so worn that it was considered indispensable to have them re-engraved, but instead of proceeding with an entirely new engraving they engaged an engraver, Mr. Sherwin, to retouch the plates, that is to restore the lines, as is proved by the following note written on the back of the letter which the Postmaster had addressed to the Governor on February 10, 1858.

Report: I have seen the engraver, who has inspected the plate, and he informs me that the lowest price for restoring the twelve stamps (for that is the number on each plate) will be seven pounds sterling.

(Signed) W. H. Rawstorne,
Colonial Postmaster.
February 25th, 1858.

On August 4th the repairs were not completed, and as the need of 2 pence stamps began to be seriously felt the Colonial Secretary, being so informed, wrote to the Postmaster:

"Find another person to re-engrave the plate and report."

At that time there was sojourning an actor by the name of M. Lapirot whose first calling had been that of an engraver. He examined the plate upon which work had been started and informed the Postmaster that it would be preferable to make an entirely new plate, which he would gladly undertake for the sum of 10 pounds.

Mr. Sherwin, who was Professor at the College and an amateur engraver, revented from finishing the work d. Lapirot took charge of it; but d to give up the idea of a new because of the time it would have and consented to finish the work cutting. The plate of the 2 pence finished in 1858 and is the type n as the "Fillet Head". All the were redrawn, the portrait touched d the background entirely cross- but what indicates positively that he plate of 1849 retouched is the of the vignettes and the spaces separate them.

re seem to be no documents con- g the plate of the 1 penny, which se exists since Major Evans had impressions taken from it in black, e have said. One can therefore ably suppose that Mr. Sherwin made the retouches of the heads both plates and that it was M. t who finished the work. The of the 1 penny was ready before f the 2 pence, but as there was no for stamps of this value it was side. When the plates came into ssession of the Royal Society, to King George V presented them, work of faint vertical lines close er was engraved on each plate so t should not be possible to make r reprints which might be con- with the originals.

WHAT'S BACK OF THIS GROWTH?

Number One of our "Monthly Circular" was sent on its way into the philatelic world as a single leaflet about 6½x9 inches in size.

On this modest leaflet we outlined its aim and purpose for which it was intended, viz., to bring ourselves in closer touch with active customers and collectors.

This little unassuming sheet affair has become a stately 16 to 24 page publication, and has gained, and is still gaining, such a number of regular paid up subscribers, which, considering the short existence

HOW TO BUY STAMPS.

By L. H. BRIGHAM.

It is really not so much a matter of knowing how to buy stamps as it is a case of knowing how to buy right. When we start buying stamps we find that they can be purchased in a number of different ways:

1. There is the unsorted mixture sold by the pound, consisting of stamps with the paper still on them, just as they were torn off of the corner of the envelope. In these stamps we find very few varieties.

2. Next come packets containing several hundreds or thousands of different varieties, depending on the size of the packet. Each one of these packets is a small collection in itself. If we are just beginning collecting, a packet such as one of these would give us an excellent start, but if we already have a considerable number of stamps, here again we are going to obtain a lot of duplicates on account of finding many stamps we already have, in almost any one of these packets.

3. Entire, complete sets are now called to our attention. Here we see large sets of stamps of both early and recent issue which would fill an entire page, or sets containing a smaller number of stamps which would fill out a line or so on some page. We are greatly surprised to find that we can obtain some of these sets, consisting of the most beautiful stamps, for only a few cents per set. Stamps to be really appreciated must be seen in entire sets, where one has the opportunity to note the great contrast in the colors, shapes, and designs of these beautiful pieces of paper. Even the most disinterested of individuals are moved to expressions of delight and enthusiasm when viewing some such stamps as these.

4. Next, and most popular of all, come the "approval selections." In these we have small books, sheets, and cards filled with both sets and single stamps, priced singly, from every country in the world. The chief advantages of buying from "approval selections" are as follows:

(1) One has a wide range of choice, as general selections submitted on approval are usually fairly large and contain stamps from everywhere.

(2) Stamps can be obtained which are all within a certain price, such as those selling from half a cent to five cents each, net.

(3) You purchase only the exact stamps you desire.

(4) You are enabled to select the best specimen from among several of one kind.

(5) Sets can be completed where only one or two single stamps are missing.

(6) Better copies of low-priced stamps which you already have can be purchased to replace the poor-conditioned ones which you have.

(7) Opportunity is presented for specializing on the stamps of c countries or groups of countries, collector's tastes run to this mann collecting.

(8) The latest and newest of can be found rubbing edges along their brother and sister stamp another century; therefore, if a lector desires only recent issues of st for his collection, he can find here, and vice versa.

The size and type of one's colle should determine entirely the m in which one elects to buy his st The amount of money a collecto to invest in this manner is also an determining factor. The che stamps are not always the best. an investment point of view, it pa collect only the very best of speci even though the prices on these m slightly higher than an inferior co the same stamp.

A little experimenting on a colle part with several dealers can determine in his mind just where able to obtain the greatest value fo money. Always treat a dealer's tion with the greatest of care and prompt return of the stamps not chased. This is only fair and The dealer will appreciate it and his appreciation in various ways, a which will be to your advantage.

UNCLE SAM'S OLDEST STAMPS JUSTIFY PHILATELY.

American Collector Brings Ferrari Gems Home.

By W. WARD.

But one happening has been required in the bringing back to America of the finest specimens of United States postal history—that is, from a philatelic point of view, if not altogether from one of art, design, form or commission. That one happening is, that the whole of the American people could not be informed of the circumstance that has managed once more to bring back to America her choicest philatelic gems. There could be another happening, but not possible on this mortal coil, and that is that these great rarities could be received by America's greatest Postmaster General, Benjamin Franklin.

The largest buyer of the rare stamps at the Ferrari sales in Paris has been Mr. Arthur Hind, of Utica, N. Y., and there has been a gratified feeling in Britain, that is among philatelists, that the rarest and finest gems among American stamps should return to the land of their origin.

The possibility of their return now rests on history alone. Had America—the United States, if you please—not taken a certain step and attitude in 1917, it is a million dollars to a hayseed, that all those stamps of the old postmasters would not have come back to America.

If Mr. Hind lived in a country where a man received titular honours, he would be certain to receive a peerage. And he deserves it for wresting the prizes of American philately from Europe.

France has philatelically repaid the debt to Lafayette, by seizing the great Ferrari collection, and thus giving the opportunity to Philatelic America to regain her lost.

We, in Britain just have one regret, that Mr. Hind secured the British Guiana gem, because, from a National standpoint, we would like it to have come back to the Empire, as we are glad that the best of America's pearls have found haven in the United States.

From the Britisher's vantage, the crude Guianian stamp is but an ally to the history of early nineteenth century days, as the crudest Macon or Marion "Postmaster" of the United States—and Mr. Hind "bagged" them nearly all!

He deserves State recognition.

I would just like to make a few comments on the Paris sale of the rare "Postmaster" stamps of the United States. Many arguments of interest were brought up by the sale. I do not think that all the statements made by the French authorities who described the stamps are correct. True, many dealers of the last thirty years or so knew that M. "Phillip" was once or twice "let in".

A specimen of the Pittsylvania (Va.) was offered as "probably false," yet in keen competition it fetched a quarter of catalogue value, while another with the seller's guarantee brought only about $15.00. It is worth $1,000.00 on the market. Yet the "doubtful" stamp, with the worst definition an auctioneer can make, was knocked down for 2,400 francs, on top of which, according to the conditions of a French auction, the buyer has to pay the auction fees, plus the present State Duty.

The New Smyrna (Fla.) 10c on 5c was described as an error, the only one known. This is hardly correct, as the whole of these stamps show a figure with the "serif" at the lower right hand foot, upside down. The error would be with the correct position of the "one"!

A very interesting item was also sold, in the 5c, "New York" "Post Office" stamp, with the first known example of any postage stamp bearing the title UNITED STATES. This particular stamp was on cover, overprinted by handstamp, in purple ink, "United States."

The Uniontown (Ala.) 2c green on blue stamp would present a proposition to its owner. Used, the stamp is valued at $2,000, unused it is worth umpteen times that amount. The stamp sold at Paris was on original cover, but uncancelled. Thus, a very valuable and unique unused postally used stamp!

Doubtful stamps, or doubtful auctioneers were evidently the order of the day, for a superb corner block of 6 of the 1c blue on pink Official Carriers' stamp of 1851, thought to be an early reprint, had a lucky buyer at 4,000 odd francs, auction fees and Government Duty—and all! But he knew something.

That adds still another subject for discussion. Why these Carriers' stamps are put aside from among the general issues of the United States as "officials" I can never quite understand. But the editor of a catalogue is generally a very conservative sort of person, and does not like outstepping what his previous compeer in office did, unless he has a deal of influence behind him.

The United States Carriers' stamp authorised a perfectly legal "delivery charge", and was the precursor of the "postage dues," but Scott and Gibbons both "side-track" it after the postage dues and after the official stamps—only Yvert & Tellier (the French catalog) giving it its nearly correct place in the catalogue. Its correct position is after the 1851-56 issue. I may be wrong, I am only a student of American stamps. Which is so different from being an authority!

Much has been written on the stamps of the United States, and much will be written, and after that there can be much more that could have been written. The subject is fascinating, and I have several times wondered that no American philatelists have started a purely "correspondent" periodical, as we in Britain have our British Philatelist, devoted entirely to United States stamps. A general philatelic periodical has to be general in its details, and a poor writer like myself would often like to communicate some item that would interest others of the same mind, but know that the subject would not likely be of general interest, and an Editor must study his reading public.

In the meantime, fellow philatelists, hats off to Mr. Hind, he deserves it!

OFF FOR THE EAST.

Victor M. Rotnem, whose activities as an authority on precanceled stamps, publisher of the Precancel Gazette, dealer and collector who specializes in Scandinavian issues, have made him well known, is now at Cambridge, Mass., where he will attend the Harvard Law School. EDITORIAL.

We know that not alone are philatelists beginning to get busy but that the authorities at Washington are on the jump by reason of the co-operation of the free-born American citizen and others in creating that new issue of our stamps. Still they come with suggestions and if composite examples of all the ideas conveyed by the heavy thinkers could be made, the results would be such as to awe the man who says that we have no imagination. The department certainly knows that the yeomanry of the country is behind the proposal that a new set of stamps be issued and with that assurance the engineers of the postal service may yell, let's go.

That the Malta ten-shilling black, No. 66 in the catalogue, is an elusive stamp has been made apparent to those collectors who have tried to get it, all the way from Malta to home. We have received from Mr. W. Wolseley, a recountal of his experience in trying to bag the stamp that is well worth hearing: "In the year 1919, a ten-shilling Malta stamp was issued on multiple crown and C. A. paper. It was similar in design to the familiar stamp on crown and C. C. paper, showing Saint Paul, the wrecked ship and the viper, except that the new stamp had 'Postage' on one, and 'Revenue' on the other, side of the design. In due time it was catalogued by Scott as No. 66, and priced in the 1920 and 1922 catalogues at four dollars; and in Gibbons' 1920 catalogue, it was priced at twelve shillings and sixpence, equal to about three dollars, then. As I had collected British colonial stamps since 1900, receiving them as issued through one of the largest new issue services in London, I expected to receive a copy of this new stamp in the usual way. But as it did not come that way, I began early in 1920 to make a special effort to obtain a copy. Every time I had occasion to write to any dealer (and I wrote to many in America and Europe) I would casually add: 'Also please send me Malta No. 66, unused.' This brought no result, so in 1921, I omitted the word 'unused' thinking I might get the stamp used. As this brought no result, also, and as I had unsuccessfully looked for the stamp in every auction sale catalogue I had received in 1920 and 1921, I determined last spring to make a new effort. So I wrote letters asking for a copy used or unused, to eight of the largest dealers in New York, to six in Boston, Philadelphia and California, to five in England, France and Germany, and to one in Malta, the home of the hardest-to-get stamp in my experience. Not one of these twenty could then furnish a single copy used or unused. Some time later, I learned from an advertisement in the WEEKLY that a copy had been sold at a stamp auction in Philadelphia for eighteen dollars. If the copy so sold was what a Philadelphia friend of ours would call a 'mint perfection' copy, then the purchaser certainly got a bargain. From my experience, I believe the stamp to be one of the scarcest, if not the scarcest of all the British colonial 20th Century stamps. Can you or any of your readers explain why this is so?"

In looking over the Philatelic Record of Melbourne, Victoria, we find in its columns the information that the first number of the South Sea Philatelist, published at Suva, Fiji Islands, has appeared. It is the official journal of the South Sea Philatelic Exchange and Information Club which maintains headquarters in Suva and which are open to members each day and evening. Surely, philately, as an ecstatic writer has it, "is an earth-engirding pursuit, upon whose devotees the sun never sets." In 1880, it was a proud day for the boy collector when he acquired a stamp from the Fiji Islands, as the label established a contact with the cannibal isles, in his imagination. Now the Fijis have a benign aspect and the last touch in refinement is a real stamp club. Glancing at Lord Crawford's literature catalogue, we find that a good many remote places have been represented by stamp publications. Azores, Curacao, Canary Islands, Hawaiian Islands, Malta, Morocco, Tunis and Tripoli are among the countries not unknown to stamp publication fame.

A letter has been received from a reader who takes the tack of saying that he knows that we dare not publish his strictures in order to goad us into printing it. He is right, however, in saying that we dare not publish his words, as if we did so, we should have a lot of explaining to do. He attacks with hot words a reputable firm because it has published in its journal complete lists of the issues of some of the Neurope countries. Hear him: "If there is any justification of the practice of touting the miserable stamps of ——, for instance, in all their ignominy of senseless small variations, I should like to know it. The game of the publishers is to make business for the dealing end of the concern by trying to exalt falsely stuff that is not worth the paper used in printing it. Collectors who are misled by such unworthy tactics should have their heads examined, as they are little better than the people who make one hand wash the other by stringing collectors and making them think that because some alleged wiseacre puts in a lot of time in listing with a thoroughness that is exasperating the no-account stamps of a country that is out for the coin, the stamps must be O. K." We cannot understand why our correspondent should work himself into a frenzy over something that he admits he cares nothing about. What objection he should have against a detailed list of Ukrainia, for instance, is beyond us. He may skip the compilation and there is no law that compels him to buy the stamps. If the firm that he complains about would publish a studious article on the Trinidad lithographs, he could say that its purpose was merely to sell such stamps. We recognize that many of the Neuropeans rightly are not admitted to the higher precincts of philately, but, taken as a whole, they are more to be pitied than condemned. Nor should we be so provincial as to believe that these new countries do not need postage stamps, as it is our belief that the most insignificant one of them uses more stamps postally than the skeptic believes. Old Time may ironically work around so that the day will come when these somewhat forlorn stamps will be met with philatelic affection from those who are now disposed to give them the cold shoulder. The critic should remember that there is a saying that if he is allowed to collect what he wants to collect, he should not try to influence others not to collect what they want. We grant that all is not still under the surface of the philatelic waters and that shrewd selling plans are hit upon, but we have faith in most of the dealers that they would not with malice aforethought stultify themselves for the sake of a few dollars, or, for many of them, for that matter. The fair recordof years is not washed away in a minute's time; and we are afraid that if apparent motives were analyzed too closely, there are few that would not be under suspicion.

Here is the statement of a gentleman who from the cold facts that he presents would be suspected of being a mercenary soul, but on the contrary, he is a stamp-lover who sees sentiment in his stamps. He is the sort that sends in the statement of some writer to the effect that the average American is a dull fellow who has no idea that any other country than his is in existence with the notation, "not if he is a collector." He says that if he had invested $2,000 in stamps in 1880, based on prices in old auction catalogues, he would have over $25,000 in stamps to-day; and moreover, he says that he has been conservative in his calculations because if he had bought only five and ten cent, 1847, New Yorks, and other early U. S. on the same basis, "my figures would seem fiction."

NEWS GLEANINGS.

-Cecil F. Blogg of Seattle informs that insurance on stamp collections be placed by writing Atkinson & , Burke Bldg., Seattle, Wash.

-Stellan Olsen, Harlan, Iowa, has e stamp papers that he will present some society paying postage. Mr. n submits a new advertising cancellafrom Des Moines reading:—"G. A. National Encampment, Des Moines, t. 25, 1922."

-A new postal cancellation has aped from New Orleans, La. It ls:—"American Legion Nat'l Conion, October 16-20."

-The correspondent who calls attento the fact that a special adverg cancellation was used at Put-in- at the time that the American Phila- Society held its convention there, nformed that this marking did not ain to philately, but was celebratory 'erry's victory on Lake Erie. Springscored cleanly with the first telic postmark.

"I hear that the 20c Canada Special very is soon to be issued. A year I pointed out that as 10c 'specials' being used in pairs, it would be sable to preserve them in that conn, as sooner or later a 20c one had ome."—J. P. ROACH.

Several collectors have sent us a on "A Natural Born Collector". It syndicated cartoon and for that n we cannot reproduce it. This exation will be of interest to those who kindly taken the trouble to favor ith the picture.

The imposition of the import tax stamps in France is causing some usion, and it is understood that ts will be made to secure a revisor a revocation of what seems to be that is unjust and a nuisance.

The New Economist Album

After several months' effort, we have at last perfected a book which we believe will appeal to many.

This book is the same size as our regular Economist Album (10¼x10¾) only it contains 100 pages (8½x10¼).

The pages are made of finest grade linen paper with lithographed quadrilled lines. Each leaf is linen hinged and has transparent glassine paper affixed to the surface, which is the finest protection for stamps.

Dark red, blue or green buckram binding stamped in gold, and a felt lined box to match color of binder is furnished with each album.

Complete Book $10.00
Binder Alone 3.50
One Hundred Pages 6.50

These leaves and binders are interchangeable with our regular Economist Album.

Postage or expressage extra.

Why Not Join the Economist New Issue Service?

Economist Stamp Company

87 Nassau Street New York City

—Eldorado, Ark., is using a new advertising cancellation:—"Arkansas State Fair, Little Rock, Oct. 9-15, 1922".

—Anyone knowing the present whereabouts of the Thompson Stamp Co., formerly of Buena Vista, Miami, Fla., kindly communicate with C. J. Pearce, 2908 Oakland Ave., Maplewood, Mo.

—The Beverly office of the WEEKLY was favored recently by a visit from Charles S. Patterson, a collector of wide acquaintance with U. S. dealers, due to his business, which takes him throughout the country. He had with him a very fine collection of war issues tastily arranged and practically complete.

—We have received from V. W. Rotnem an article boosting the Junior American Philatelic Society. While primarily for the younger generation of stamp collectors, the society is desirous of securing members of more mature years. Particulars concerning the society and an application blank may be obtained from Mr. Rotnem, St. Anthony Falls Sta., Minneapolis, Minn.

—The Garfield Perry Stamp Club of Cleveland is offering a prize of $25 to the writer of the best story that is submitted to it, with postage stamps for its plot. This club meets every Thursday and judging from the programmes that we receive, the meetings are interesting ones.

—There is an announcement of interest from New York City in our advertising columns. We call attention to this and advise anyone desiring to invest money in the stamp business to investigate the same.

—E. C. Dodd of LaGrange, Illinois, is home again, after an absence from his home of about six weeks. He attended the Springfield convention and spent some time in Boston and New York, not to mention other centers of the stamp trade.

—The news of the upheaval at Smyrna makes us fearful for the safety of Mr. Louis Minassian of the Greek post office there. For many years, Mr. Minassian has been one of our correspondents, and he has accommodated us with new issues and information about them on numerous occasions. We hope that we shall learn in due time that all is well with him.

—Ralph Psotta, Chicago, Ill., submits for our inspection specimens of the German air mail stamps, mark values. The 1m is in green, 2m in garnet, 3m in blue and 5m in orange. He also sends the new 10 mark stamp recently issued in dull red, and a set of Malmedy postage due stamps. It consists of Belgium 397-401 with the overprint MALMEDY in the middle of the stamp printed in black.

—Frank A. Goldsmith has shown us a new postal cancellation:—"Dedication Ohio Stadium, October 21, 1922". It bears a Columbus, Ohio, marking.

—We have received the announcements of several new stamp papers, and we trust that we shall soon see the journals themselves. It is something of an adventure to publish a stamp paper nowadays, but there are always a few hopeful philatelists with the journalistic instinct, who are unafraid.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY

ST. KITTS-NEVIS, 1890-1922.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

III. Federation Series, Provisionals, 1902.

Having arranged for a new series of stamps to bear the head of King Edward VII, the Colonial authorities were naturally very desirous of reducing, so far as possible, the large stock of the Victorian series on hand, especially those values for which there was little or no demand, and to this end, 37,200 each of the 4d, 6d, and 7d were surcharged "One Penny". These were apportioned among the Presidencies of the Federation,—12,000 of each being sent to St. Kitts-Nevis. All three values were issued at St. John's, Antigua, on 11th August, 1902, and in the other Presidencies during the following week.

For some unknown reason, two different settings (of 60 subjects each), were made up, one for overprinting the 4d and 6d stamps, and the other for the 7d. The sheets of 120 stamps were broken up, and the margins removed before overprinting.

The setting used for the 4d and 6d was in two lines (caps for initials only), "One Penny", with a thin bar underneath cancelling the original value. Several type varieties occurred, the most important being a tall narrow "O" in "One", on stamps 1, 27, 29 and 40. There is also a broken "e" in "Penny" (48), a broken "e" in "One" (55), and on 17 and 43 of some panes, the bar is missing. Besides these, Stanley Gibbons lists the "One Penny" on 4d with double surcharge.

For the 1d on 7d "One Penny" is in much smaller letters, in one line, with a thick short bar underneath, and the type varieties while more numerous, are of less importance than those in the first setting, i. e.

"nn" in "Penny" raised, — 50, 51, 52, 53, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59.

Second "n" in "Penny" raised, — 54.

"e" in "One" slightly dropped, — 51, 52, 53, 56, 57, 58, 60.

A mixed lot of stamps was used for surcharging — the 6d and 7d are both known from plates 1 (brown gum) and 2 (white gum); the 4d from plate 2 (white gum) only.

August 11, 1902. Federation series, Queen Victoria, Provisionals. Surcharged in black at St. John's, Antigua, "One Penny" and bar (2 lines for 4d and 6d, 1 line for 7d). Plate 1 (6d and 7d), plate 2 (4d, 6d, 7d).

"One Penny" on 4d lilac and orange.
- a. Tall narrow "O" in "One", 1, 27, 29, 40.
- b. Bar missing, 17, 43.
- c. Double surcharge.

"One Penny" on 6d lilac and brown.
- a. Tall narrow "O" in "One", 1, 27, 29, 40.
- b. Bar missing, 17, 43.

"One Penny" on 7d lilac and slate.

IV. Federation Series, King Edward VII, 1902.

An Order-in-Council dated the [illegible] September, 1901, and printed in the Leeward Islands Gazette, No. 46, of [illegible] September, 1901, prescribed that [illegible] stamps to be used throughout the Federation "on and after the first day [illegible] January, 1902, or on and after such date as may hereafter be fixed by Order-in-Council" should be of the values [illegible] 1d, 2d, 2½d, 3d, 6d, 1s, 2s 6d and 5s and bear the head of H. M. King Edward VII.

Some time was consumed by De La Rue & Co., Ltd., in making up new keyplates modified as to the effigy of the sovereign, and it was not until September 1, 1902, that the ½d, 1d, 2½d, 6d [illegible] 1s were issued, the 2d, 3d, 2s 6d and 5s following in October.

All values were printed from the [illegible] La Rue (1888 type) Postage & Revenue keyplates, with the head of King Edward VII substituted for that of Queen Victoria, on a plain ground of [illegible] enclosed in an octagonal frame, surmounted by a Crown. In all other respects the design is the same as the Victorian series.

The stamps were printed on Crown CA watermarked paper, comb perforated 14, and the size of sheets, arrangement of marginal lines, and plate numbers exactly the same as for the Victorian series.

Plate 1 was used for the ½d, 1d, 2½d, 6d, 1s and 5s, while from plate 2, supplies of the 1d, 2d, 3d, 1s and 2s 6d were printed. This latter plate differs somewhat in its makeup from plate 1 (2 panes of 60 each), being a larger plate and producing sheets of 240 stamps (4 panes of 60). The plate number appears four times as on plate 1, in the same positions, but only in the top margin of the two upper panes, and in the lower margin of the two lower panes. The sheets of 60 stamps were cut up into sheets of 60 stamps (2 panes of 60) before the duty plate impression was added.

The 4d and 7d values of the Victorian series were dropped, and the 2d, 3d and 2s 6d added. The duty plates used previously were again used, except that new ones were required for the 2d, 3d and 2s 6d. On these values the figures and lettering of the duty tablet are in color on a plain colorless ground, within a hexagonal frame.

1902, Sept.—October. Federation Series. King Edward VII, Postage & Revenue, watermarked Crown CA, perf. 14 comb.

Plates 1 (½d, 1d, 2½d, 6d, 1s, 5s) and 2 (1d, 2d, 3d, 1s, 2s 6d).

½d violet and green, Sept. 1, 1[illegible]
1d violet and carmine rose, Sept. 1, 1[illegible]

MAILING LETTERS IN NEPAL.

An American who resided for some years in northern India tells of an experience at Bhagwalpur. He wished to post four letters to friends in the United States, who are stamp collectors. The letters contained only a few lines explaining that they were being sent merely for the Nepalese stamps they bore. The postmaster refused to accept them. Foreigners, he said, were not permitted to post letters in Nepal, the postal service being only for the use of the Nepalese.

The American argued, but the postmaster was firm, the police and other officials all supporting him. After a long discussion, the American at last persuaded him to let him post the letters and leave it to the government at Khatmandu to decide whether they might be forwarded.

Then the American went into the mud hut office and sat on a low stool, nearly the whole population watching him from the large open space.

The postmaster redirected the letters in Nepalese characters. Then, taking a large sheet of paper, he prepared a full report for the government, the police inspector reading a description and other items of importance about the American, from the "permit." The American was required to declare that the letters did not contain any political matter.

Then came the very serious business of stamping them. The postmaster produced his large wooden stamp box and another containing the date stamp. The postmaster assured his caller that he could not pay beyond Nepal, so the American decided to put one-penny stamps on each and leave the excess postage to be collected on delivery, if ever the letters happened to arrive.

Fortunately they arrived after some delay and, strangely enough, no excess was charged. Thus, the American had the pleasure of anticipating the penny post, which had not been extended to Nepal.—Classmate.

Much Ado About Everything

Edited by EKI PHI.

Vol. I, No. 1 Saturday, September 30, 1922 Whole No. 1

Published as often as we can convince the S.-W.-J. Co. that our ruminations will be really welcome.

Philately needs radicals who are broad minded, possess convictions and are willing to fight for them. Ponder over the matters considered.

Your own views will be very welcome. Address the editor, care of the WEEKLY. Your name will be used only on request.

EDITORIAL.

Many Men—Many Minds.

Within philately, great as it is, are many philatelies—like raisins in a loaf, they all go to make up the complete whole. We can't follow all the fads and fancies even though we would like to. We are told repeatedly that it is the age of specialism and we want to believe it. That is what it should be, but have specialists any right to tell other specialists that they are foolish, or that they are wasting their time on trash? What we like to do is to encourage the collecting instinct, give suggestions as to different collectible objects and methods and ways that others have followed and let the individual follow the lines of least resistance. It is hard sometimes when we have a good stock of duplicates to see our convert buy stuff that we never had any interest in. But the world is big; we are not confined to our own neighborhood or even city. The philatelic press is ready to take our message to the utmost corner of the world and all the way home. Where we lose a customer here there are hundreds to gain elsewhere. Let the idea soak in that this is a world of "many men of many minds."

The Local Club.

We saw a beautiful example of "freeze-out" a few months ago. A prospective member made his first visit to our local stamp club. When he arrived he was all enthusiasm, but when he was asked what he specialized in and replied "Neurope" things commenced to happen. He left before the meeting broke up. He was ridiculed, jeered, made fun of and then given the cold shoulder. He never came back. Oh, yes, we forgot to mention, the leading lights, the officers who nominated and elected each other and who are running the club are early U. S. specialists.

Unsolicited Stamps.

We read a letter the other day from a prominent business man that run something like the following, "I would like very much to join the Blank Society but my experience has been that immediately my name is published stamp dealers commence sending me their approval sheets. I am a liberal buyer of certain things, but not one approval selection out of a hundred contains anything I can use and I haven't the time to be bothered in this way. Besides the practice is contemptible and it aggravates me to the extent that I would not under any circumstances buy of a dealer who would take such undue liberties to secure business." Here is only one of hundreds who would like to join one or more of our national organizations but for this reason.

Unfair.

"Unfair to Organized Labor." You have all seen this in print. We would like to see a list of collectors and dealers published who were "unfair" to the recognized ethics of good business principles that have been preached on through the philatelic press for years and years. Several attempts have been made to publish lists of dead beats, crooks, etc., which is all very well and good, but there are others guilty of misdemeanors which is only another form of crime against philately.

The Dealer.

God bless them individually and collectively. We need 'em. Can't get along without them. Don't want to. But there is just about as much difference in them as there is in old maids and spuds. One class deals in stamps just like the corner grocer. He doesn't act as though he liked his work, and he carries certain staple lines because he thinks he has to. The stuff all looks alike to him. He sees the profit instead of the quality or kind of goods he handles. The goods themselves don't interest him. He'd just as soon handle one country as another just so he can buy them cheap enough and turn them over into profit. To him stamps are nothing more than a commodity to barter, they are objects of sale rather than of interest.

The Other Kind.

Don't you like to meet or correspond with a dealer who knows something about what he is selling and why? Who takes a personal interest in giving satisfaction, who is a collector at heart and shows it and talks it. Are you in the habit of trading with every Tom, Dick and Harry at your local stores for the necessities of life? Or do you give those your trade whom you have learned by experience act as though they appreciated it, that were courteous and accommodating and showed their desire to please, and that invited you to come again? What a difference there is in the store atmosphere and the attitude of the clerks. There are stores that you just feel as though you would like to think of something to buy just for an opportunity to get into this atmosphere. Where there are others that you would not go only as a last resort after trying every other place in town. There are possibly others that you would not buy of even if you had to go without. There is an art to selling stamps just the same as there is to anything else.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—It will be recalled that when the rotary coil waste stamps, perforated 11 x 10 reached the public, they were at first in sheets of 170 stamps, that is, they were divided at the line resulting in sheets of seventeen subjects horizontally by ten vertically. It was found that the post offices distributing these had difficulty with such a size and as a result, the Bureau of Engraving & Printing started to separate these into sheets of 100 and sheets of 70. The 1c in this condition was found some weeks back, and the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. now report that the 2c has been located. As these stamps are in long continuous sheets, I cannot understand why they still issue the unusual sheet of 70. Someone has stated that this has been done because the Coil Room works on the basis of 170 stamps to a sheet and this would complicate matters if sheets were accounted for in other ways. It looks to me as if more trouble is likely to result when the clerk has a quantity of the small sheets in stock with the others, and the short changing of the purchaser would not seem unusual.

These same two varieties have been found in sheets with the top and bottom horizontal rows of perforations missing, that is, the perforations usually between the top row of stamps and the margin is not present. Mr. H. W. Porter was the first to call these to my attention, the stamps having been on sale at Washington through the Philatelic Stamp Agent, where they can still possibly be obtained by those interested.

Mr. C. L. Young sends for an inspection a new provisional envelope not heretofore listed.

1920-21, 2c on 3c Provisional Envelope.
Seattle Overprint.
Die A on buff, Size 13, Wmk. 19, L. B.

In a lot of Shanghai overprints just received from Washington, I note that the 3c, 5c and 10c more nearly resemble the first printing than the second printing, which leads me to believe that when the Postmaster at Shanghai returned overprinted stamps for the Stamp Agent that he included some of the first printing in the lot.

Mr. F. O. Selianoff has shown me a copy of the round die cut blue California State Insurance stamp of the $15.00 Denomination. I am not posted on State revenues, but Mr. Selianoff advises that this variety has not been known heretofore.

BRITISH HONDURAS.—The Economist Stamp Co. report the appearance of the 5c blue in the type of the 1912-19 issue of Jamaica. The stamp is printed on script watermarked paper.

CHINA.—The Economist Stamp Co. inform us of the 2c, 6c, 8c grey, 20c and 25c stamps of Hong Kong on script watermarked paper with the surcharge "China".

CYPRUS.—Mr. R. Roberts advises of the 2½ piastre, purple and blue, on script watermarked paper.

The Economist Stamp Co. report the 9 piastres on script watermarked paper.

EGYPT.—We learn from La Bourse Egyptienne that the new stamps may be expected in April, 1923. The "Wadinnil" remarks that the decision to reproduce the portrait of a reigning monarch on the stamps of Egypt is a distinct novelty. The design has already been adopted, as well as the colours in certain instances; thus the 15 mils. will be blue, as now, the 10 mils. red, and the 4 mils. green. The Postal Union denominations will appear in their prescribed hues.—Stamp Collecting.

ERITREA.—The Economist Stamp Co. advise of the 20c brown orange stamp of Italy with the surcharge "Eritrea" at the base in black.

LUXEMBURG.—Mr. Henry Hooreman sends us the 2c, 3c, 6c, 10c, 15c, 20c, 25c, 30c, 40c, 50c, 75c, 80c of the Grand Duchess set and the 1, 2 and 5fr pictorial stamps of the 1921 issue with the surcharge "Official" same as on the 1908 official set. Also Mr. Hooreman adds copies of the 25c and 30c of the Grand Duchess set in imperforate condition, which were issued on the 27th of August for the Philatelic Exhibition and were of very limited numbers, only 60,000 of each printed.

MALTA.—Mr. Louis Carabott under date of August 29th, advises that the following values of the Constitutional set have just been placed on sale: 2d, 3d, 4d, watermarked script CA reading down; 2s 6d, 5sh, 10sh watermarked script CA vertical and 1 pound, same watermark reading down. The first three values are 160 stamps to the sheet and the next three 80, while the last value is in sheets of 40.

MOROCCO (French Protectorate).—We gather from a Decree dated Rabat 24 Kaada 1340 (July 20th, 1922) that the present trio of aerial mail adhesives is about to be expanded into a quintette, the new denominations (additional to the current 75c blue, 1fr red, and 2fr violet) being 25 and 50 centimes.—Stamp Collecting.

NICARAGUA.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the ½c stamp in the type of the 1914 issue in green color.

URUGUAY.—The Economist Stamp Co. submit for chronicle copies of the 1c purple and 3c green in the new design, figure standing on the top of a globe.

WHY NOT REVIVE OLD DESIGNS?

By STEPHEN G. RICH.

In the rush of suggestions as to wh the forthcoming new set of U. S. stam should look like, and whose featu should appear on the various stam there has been the most curious ta agreement to want an entirely new t of designs. That we may all wi something different from the pres set is clear; but why we should ch after a new series of designs inste of simply reviving the various handso and effective designs of the past is n clear.

Viewed purely as a piece of sta designing, the 3 cents of 1851 is in ma respects one of the finest pieces e turned out in this country. With addition of numerals in the lower c ners, it would make a very effect modern stamp, and printed in the pur that is now traditional for a three-c stamp, it should be handsome indeed.

For the two-cent value my cho would fall without hesitation on eit the "shield" two cents of 1902 or Lincoln stamp of 1909 with the necess figures of value added. The one-cent 1861 is my choice for this value. Fo cents 1894, five cents 1882 or 1857, cents 1869, eight cents 1902, ten ce 1870, 12 cents 1869, 15 cents 1866, a 50 cents 1902 are desirable revivals.

For the values not thus made by vival, I suggest the adaptation of ol designs by changing the values. should like to see the 1, 2 and 3 ce of 1869 revived — modernized if sired—and the higher values of the 18 95 issue.

Doubtless there are many collect and others, who will laugh at the v idea of reviving the old designs at They will say indignantly that we ha enough good designers today to g us still better designs than any we ha had. That may be true; but why sea further for new and untried combi tions in stamp design, when we ha already in the gallery of our p stamp designs, some that are hard deed to improve upon?

Personally I am not convinced that need so large a number of denomi tions as the present issue affords. T 11-cent, 13-cent and 30-cent stamps hardly of enough advantage to warr their continuance.

Just in closing, another idea sugge itself. We don't need a new six-c design: let us have the aeroplane des revived.

THE YOUNG VETS AND PHILATELY.

The American Legion will hold its convention in New Orleans during the period of October 16 to 21. The New Orleans Philatelic Club is planning several events of interest for the visiting collectors, but from the looks of things at present, housing facilities will be taxed to the limit, and we have taken upon ourselves to find suitable quarters for those of the Collector-visitors who will know with assurance that they will have a place to be on these dates.

We would like to impress this upon the collectors; that they can be assured of a pick of quarters in the city if they will write to the undersigned about their requirements.

We are also planning a stamp auction during this time, and several hundred lots have already been entered.

—D. H. HARWOOD, 726 St. Peter St.

LOUD LAUGHTER

The design of the special delivery stamp has been brought up to date. The boy pictured in the design will hereafter ride a motorcycle, instead of a bicycle. The motorcycle, postal officials decided, represents more modern and efficient service.

Since the post office department has got the ball rolling, there is no reason why the reform should not be extended to other fields. The man driving with oxen on the seal of Kansas should be changed to the likeness of an agriculturist with a city haircut, piloting a tractor. On the other side should be the sign of Bill White and Henry Allen shaking each other's ears, and of Lizzie Borden's sister delivering a lecture on the guillotine.

The statue of Liberty should be equipped with bobbed hair and high-heeled shoes. Charlie Chaplin's picture ought to be printed on 1-cent postage stamps, with Babe Ruth's likeness on the 2-cent denominations.

The designs on paper money should be changed entirely. There ought to be a picture in one corner showing a crowd drinking pop bottles at the umpire, and the other corner should show a hearse, labeled "League of Nations," followed by three or four mourners.

The extent to which the reform might be carried has no limit. The title of the national anthem could be changed to "You Yankee Baby," or "I Got the Neurotic Blues." The Declaration of Independence might be rewritten by a free verse expert, while the "Spirit of '76" could be repainted by a cubist.

It is unfair for special delivery stamps to be modernized, while other institutions are neglected. Let the reform spread.

—Kansas City Journal.

Rare Mauritius cover, with both one and two penny stamps, property of Mr. Arthur Hind and cost about $50,000.00.

METROPOLITAN PHILATELIC ASSOCIATION.

The annual convention of the Metropolitan Philatelic Association was held in Chicago at the Hotel Sherman on Saturday, September 2nd, 1922. The attendance, while not a large one, was interested in the proceedings which centered about the adoption of a new constitution for the association. Steps were taken to remove points of friction that seem to have developed in the workings of the society and the disposition was shown to begin with a clean slate. The election of officers resulted as follows: president, A. E. Carpenter, Philadelphia, Pa.; vice-president, Col. J. M. T. Partello, U. S. A., Los Angeles, Cal.; secretary, Louis J. Bachand-Vertfeuille, Chicago; treasurer, L. R. Sours, Minneapolis, Minn.; international secretary, Elmer F. Smith, Pontoosuc, Ill.; directors-at-large, A. W. Dunning, Brookline, Mass., and Philip H. Ward, Jr., Philadelphia, Pa. A morning and an afternoon session were held, and in the evening, the delegates were the guests of Mr. J. Liljestrom at the Swedish Glee Club, and it is needless to say that they thoroughly enjoyed the privileges of the club. The committee on credentials was H. H. Bremer, chairman, and Messrs. Liljestrom, Dahl, Nissen and Major.

J. O. MOORE, Inc., RHEIMS, N. Y.

OUR POSTAGE STAMPS.

American postage stamps of the present issue are uninteresting to philatelists. There are only two designs. The physiognomy of Washington adorns the stamps of smaller denomination, while the face of Franklin distinguishes the more expensive stamps that are seldom seen by the great majority of Americans. The color variations alone distinguish the various denominations, and some of the tints are so similar that they are difficult to tell apart.

The postoffice department is now seriously considering the advisability of a new issue of stamps which shall have distinctive designs for each denomination. The colors of the present issue would be maintained, for these are in accordance with the rulings of the international postal union. But instead of having George Washington in every conceivable shade of red, blue and yellow, we would have the father of our country on stamps of only one denomination, while other worthies of American history would be immortalized on stamps of other denominations.

There is more than an esthetic reason for the proposed change. It is held that postoffice employes, hastily handling mail, are frequently deceived by the similarity of the American stamps, and much mail is carried which is not fully paid for.

Most other nations, including the new nations which have come into existence since the war, make a point of preparing artistic and interesting stamps. The American stamps are unartistic and utterly uninteresting. They are not a good American advertisement. By all means let us have something new, which will save Uncle Sam from being defrauded, show America possesses at least a modicum of artistic taste, and give the stamp collectors something to talk about.

UNITED STATES ISSUES — GILT EDGE INVESTMENTS

The stamp issues of no country exceed in popularity those of the United States and this popularity has produced a demand that has increased year by year, resulting in substantial advances in price. While we may not collect with the investment feature in mind, it is a comfortable feeling to know that our purchases will yield a return. I not only recommend the collecting of U. S., but follow the recommendation personally.

THE LUCK OF THE LEEWARDS.

By F. H. FERNDALE.

(This contribution, by a well-known philatelic student, is based on fact throughout, all the statements by the "Leeward family" being taken from original documents. "The Luck of the Leewards" should be read in conjunction with the catalogue lists for the numerous philatelic references to be fully appreciated. To the keen philatelist every word of this unique contribution will be full of meaning. — Ed. M. C.)

"By gum," ejaculated Antigua, bursting into the nursery, "John Bull has arrived."

"You can knock me down with a feather," said Nevis, a small but sturdy child.

"I wonder what's up now," drawled Dominica.

John Bull had indeed arrived, and sat long in his study surveying with a rueful face the heavy, albeit receipted bills of his family, and then strong in the thought that he had given them postal education of the best for the past twenty years he quitted his brown study and slowly ascended to the Leeward nursery.

Such an unusual event was only to be greeted with a grave silence as John Bull explained in fatherly fashion that the time had come when they really must arouse themselves and live by their own resources, and be up and doing in six months.

He paused to allow the words to sink in, and the clock to strike eighteen-sixty.

"But me no buts, for Jamaica over the way will give me expostulations more than enough," and with that John Bull vanished.

Antigua was the first to recover and began to trace pictures of the Queen's head on the wall, Nevis was also soon busy with designs, but Dominica selected the best arm-chair and went to sleep, and left St. Kitts to stroke his chin and stride the room humming and hawing.

In the corner the Virgins, the ugly ducklings of the Leeward family, were distraught and clung tightly to each other, but Montserrat, with the greatest nonchalance, went about whistling with his hands in his pockets, "Cut off with a shilling."

In six months had you passed the old Home of the Leewards you could have seen a notice affixed to the portals, "Under entirely new management."

It was exactly thirty years later that the family reunited to discuss how they had progressed in the world.

Antigua, by virtue of sitting at the head of the table, was the first to speak after a moment's reflection.

"I have advanced since the days of 1846 when my letters between English Harbour and St. John's were taken by the Omnibus Company, and F. Kains, the Post Office surveyor to the West Indies, said, 'I should consider three a week a large average . . . and no respectable person could be found to undertake the duties of Postmaster at English Harbour for less than £10 per annum.'

"The Omnibus Company was too slow, and we tried steam and the production of pretty pictures. But my betters assured me that though the most fitting design was a matter of taste, opinion, and sometimes of prejudice, yet as postage labels represented coin nothing could be more appropriate than the head of the reigning sovereign.

"Consequently I started cautiously with one picture of the Queen, and was much assisted by C. H. Jeens, the artist, and Mr. Houghton, of 162 New Bond Street, London; but my packets were very irregular and the Government officials were always worrying me about the insufficiency of my lights and the inadequacy of my harbours, though as regards the lights, we had three lanthorns hoisted on a pole, and what more could one expect."

Antigua paused for a reply, but no one obliged, and he resumed: "You remember what Thomas Price, Treasurer, said in 1854—'Antigua is a cat with nine lives, she somehow always alights upon her legs.' I have some bad times, but you see I have survived them, and I trust (here he bears upon the Company) your record will be no worse. Gentlemen, I give you the health of the Leewards."

It was enthusiastically drunk, perhaps too enthusiastically by Montserrat, who seeing the Virgins were not supplied deputized for them and so managed to raise his glass four times to the Cabbean jewels."

Nevis was the next to speak, and he had added six inches to his waist. He soon realized a good frame helps a good picture, so I borrowed my frames from the Guv'nor. Then the world had to be made aware of my existence and impressed with my importance. (Pass me a clean plate. Thanks!) So I gave them a problem picture. That made 'em sit up and take notice. I must say the twelve pictures were set up in simple up fashion. I was a bit smitten with the green shade myself, it was quite THE picture of its year.

"I touched 'em up from time to time adding a thick line here and a cross or vertical one there, and varied the shades; but what really fetched 'em was the trick with the hill."

"The herring-bone touch," suggested St. Kitts.

"The herring-bone touch," repeated Nevis. "The pictures sell well, Yes," added, fingering his eighteen-carat glass, "I may say very well."

"D'ye mind what was the way of the problem picture?" queried Montserrat.

"I left that for the public curiosity but some men called it 'What's your' answered Nevis.

"It's very interesting," replied Antigua.

"I'm a self-made man," went on Nevis, "and you can take it from me that no a good picture is spoilt by the frame and make no mistake, variety is the spice of life."

"Yirra," said Montserrat, "but stick to me rum," and he helped himself from the barrel.

"You'd do far better if you had more variety, Brother Montserrat; the public can't resist it," retorted Nevis.

"Hear! Hear!" said Jamaica from Trinidad from the background, and followed in by courtesy, they were expected the curtest way

It was now the turn of St. Kitts, who rose uneasily to his feet with a furtive look about the eyes and restless fingers perforating his beard. He spoke in rapid but disconnected phrases like a train about to start a long journey.

"I had a fire—a great fire—a real magazine fire—it burnt everything—it burnt the Post Office—it delayed matters—"

"Begorra!" interrupted Montserrat, "sha'nt delay us, we'll take it, it's on."

"It put me out," answered St. Kitts. "I could not make up my mind what to do; when suddenly my eye fell on the

They all gathered round as he produced from his watch-case a piece heavily pen-cancelled, answering to the description of S.G. 15, Straits Settlements, 12c.

"I liked it, I admired it, till I saw it labelled 4c; ah, how its red colour fascinated me; no, I fancied a light green shade and a few wrinkles. I found the materials expensive. I have the plate somewhere. Let me see. Ah! here it is—'Engraving steel plates—for current value—and twelve repetitions of the same stamps—price about £26 5s.' "

"Postage stamps—printed in colour ink—each denomination in different colour — on sensitive paper — two stamps on one sheet—perforated and made adhesive—price per 1000 sheets or 12,000 stamps at £3 15s."

"They sold fairly well, but not enough—faster, faster;" here he became violently excited and tugging at his beard with one hand he seized a pot with the other, shouting, "Je ne suis pas dans mon assiette."

He flung the plate aside, and seizing his finger-bowl, screamed, "I'll show you watermarks. Voilà! . . ."

I can supply almost any city or state.

There is no telling what he would have done had he not been removed by Nevis tête-bêche, singing at the top of his voice:

Nothing's right and nothing's wrong,
Nothing's normal very long,
Letters high or letters small,
With a stop or none at all,
If you want it very rare,
We'll supply it at Basseterre.

This even aroused Dominica from her slumbers, "Ma foi, quelle horreur! I'm not superstitious, but I'm hanged if I'd start work on All Fools' Day, like Kitts did."

"The fact is," said Nevis on his return, "he's a very neurotic chap, lacks resolution. Never been the same since he lost his control."

"How did it happen?" asked Virgin Gorda.

"He got hold of the scissors, and they so fascinated him that he became a maniac for perforations. Having exhausted operations with the edge of his labels (perfing 12½ to 14, you know) he must needs proceed to cut them up and dole out the pieces. Four years ago he had a bad nervous breakdown from which he has never recovered. In fact, the state of his health gave the greatest cause for uneasiness until carefully diagnosed and recorded in the Red Book by those skilful practitioners, Messrs. Stanley Gibbons, under sixteen heads, as you may see.

"Then in delirium, having abused his own property, he laid violent hands on me for 'Revenue,' and I believe on you, Antigua, for postage stamps. He has since been locked up and I believe I am to be made responsible for his conduct."

"Have another port, Antigua," said Montserrat.

"They all tell me that," answered Antigua.

"We'll drink to the partnership St. Kitts-Nevis."

"With more Nevis than Kitts," responded Antigua.

Dominica, who was ½ in black and ½ in red, with a fillet round her head, had nothing to say, being fast asleep.

All efforts to arouse her being vain, Nevis put his mouth to her earpiece, "Are you there?"

"Parlez-vous français?" came back the reply.

"A09 speaking," rejoined Nevis.

"Tiens! Eloignez votre moustache en croc."

Consequently, progress was rather slow, but they understood she had made endeavours to produce pretty pictures "like the Virgins," but when she heard they were very costly, say £200 to £250, she thought the Queen's head would have to be adopted.

Yes, she rather thought it was adopted.

But to all other enquiries she had only one reply, "Ask Kitts." And she dozed off again.

All this time, the three Virgins had sat on the sofa with burèlè bands under their eyes, a moirè resignation on their faces, and nothing in their pockets. It was perfectly clear they were the poor relations. Tortola, the eldest, spoke with very little enthusiasm.

"I don't know how we existed, though we were ready to acquiesce in any arrangement that might be come to. After Christmas, 1863, there was only six shillings and tenpence three farthings in the Treasury. We couldn't pay our way. I'm sure we did our best, with some very pretty pictures on all kinds of paper, and we changed the borders, but our income never being more than £20 a year we had to live on the irreducible minimum."

"Glory be, just to think on't," said Montserrat huskily.

"We struggled on and on, and brother Antigua promised that both we and Montserrat should have the use of his Queen's head pictures. Montserrat got his, we didn't. 'Tis very hard to live. On the demise of St. Thomas we had high hopes of inheriting his shipping, and then we poor Virgins would have had plenty of Mails to take care of, but alas . . . " and she sighed again.

"They said," said Virgin Gorda, with a tear in her eye, "that our pretty pictures were printed by a cheap process."

"My dear girls," burst in Nevis, "you chose such hopeless colours to set off your goods. An angel in red! It was a kind of angel, wasn't it? An adventuress, yes; but an angel, No! Even the Modern School couldn't get the public to swallow that."

"The colleen blushed a pretty pink," suggested Montserrat.

"But we had one in green," urged Tortola.

"For shure, it's a good colour," said Montserrat.

"Artistically it's hopeless in this case," answered Nevis.

"And to crown all," added Antigua severely, "you had one in black, when the smallest Cayman could have told you a lady in black, simply courts failure."

"We changed the picture," went on Anegada, "and tempted fortune with fourpence, but the public would not buy them."

"St. Kitts would have invested . . . " began Nevis thoughtfully.

"I know HE would," interrupted Anegada scornfully.

"They lasted fourteen years," said Tortola, choking down a sob, "we had to reduce the shilling picture to fourpence."

"Begorra, so ye had no whusky in yere water," said Montserrat: "Oh, me poor critturs, have a drop o' this," and he held out a tankard of rum-bullion

"Shure 'tis not worritting ye need be. 'Tis Antigua must needs go trapsing round the earth after us, like a landlord after his rint, or like a cat jumping round the tiles. D'ye mind now the way with meself. Give me a peg o' rum and ye can have the pictures. It is the way I should be now if Antigua had not worritted me into having them pictures with the Queen and me name and all upon them; bedad it is not. But Antigua be divil a moment still like Paddy O'Brien's tongue in Sligo. Faith, I'm not after saying agin the way stamp bigot takes to the watermarks, but give me a damp spigot and a drop of rum as them Spanish rascals drank with a degree of desp'ration hardly credible: if I found a shillin' under a stone I'd go and drink it, I would now. I'm after thinking, for shure, Montserrat rum with a dash of lime-juice is a very pretty tipple—a very pretty tipple indeed."

"There's no accounting for tastes," said Nevis drily.

"Shure, my fine bird," replied Montserrat. "The Egyptians had a sacred animal to worship, but mice dread it—'tis all a matter of opinion, though as you live on such a mighty big island with the stamp of drink upon it from its earliest days, you ought to know."

Nevis glanced at him out of the corner of his eye, and when Nevis fixed his eye on anyone it generally hurt; but Montserrat continued unperturbed. "I'll leave ye to discuss me sordid particulars, for methinks it's little charity I'll be having from me kith and kin."

"Oh! don't leave us," said Antigua, striving to keep on peace.

"I'm under orders," said Montserrat, with a twinkle in his eye and looking at Nevis. "I'm under orders to go to Jericho," and he went.

"There's no stamp of respectability and no high value about Monty," grunted Nevis. "Take a plaguey lot of him to make a rich man."

"Well," replied Antigua, "he's straight, with no parlour-tricks like Dominica got up to some six years ago, and he's honest, which is more than . . . than . . ."

"The Seebecks," suggested Nevis. "No one sticks them long, and the North Borneos are barred. Antigua, there's a mighty lot of ne'er-do-wells. Have you met 'em?"

"Yes, I've seen many a gaudily dressed specimen arrive, tongues wag, all rush to see it, some entertain it, some don't."

"The types I hate," said Nevis, warming to his subject, "are those who ape their betters. For instance, they try and imitate me,—same lines, same design, and strive to push themselves into good society. If discovered they call themselves facsimiles of German extraction. Frauds, I call 'em. Pouf! I'd brand every jack man of 'em on the back for all to read 'Forgery.'"

"Exactly, my dear Nevis, exactly; and long may the Leewards be themselves not copies of somebody else. You can, to be sure, trace the family likeness through key-plate 1880 in all of us cept Dominica. But Montserrat none of the luck, pitched out in the with his postal needs supplied miserable little vessel, 'the Phœbe only eleven tons, a slow, sailor, steam, sans accommodation, sans bility, sans everything."

"I fared no better," remarked N

"Indeed!" rejoined Antigua, sm broadly, "but you had a special cons to guard your mails, and created an enormous din if affairs went w that your shrill scream of passion to be drowned with the comfort twenty-seven ton affair which, with dant wit was named the Heartseas

"Plague take that boat. Why couldn't put me on the main line se I never could tell; but let's away."

They got their wrappers on, fastened and enveloped, and were spatched by the new issue service, haste, to catch the Night Mail.

Dominica slept on. Like Napo the Great she could command sle will.

No one minded or cared what pened to the poor unfortunate Vir They always did look miserable by light, and probably remained be waiting for the day.

"THE ELITE" An Album of Characte

COMBINING BEAUTY WITH MODERN PRACTICAL REQUISITE

The connoisseur of oriental rugs does not house them in a barn, an attic, nor a broken down woodshed—neither does he attempt to arrange them except in a dwelling of refinement capable of accentuating their richness and beauty.

The advanced philatelist no longer places his stamps in any makeshift book. A two hundred thousand dollar garnishment of rugs would be ridiculous in a five thousand dollar frame house. So, likewise, in these days when rare stamps are universally regarded as treasures and works of art, a collection of value can reflect its owner's good taste—and individuality of arrangement — in being housed properly. In offering "The Elite" we feel that we have reached the zenith in fine album production, combining the latest modern improvements in loose-leaf manufacture with all the niceties of taste and adornment which the specialist of to-day requires.

For the elite—"The Elite"—truly the flower of them all!

Specifications: Two post binder, back and corners bound in handsome dark green Morocco. Sides, maroon trimmed in gold, making a restful color combination of elegance. Hinges covered with genuine leather. Binder should last a lifetime, and we guarantee it against any defect of construction whatsoever for 25 years, making it the cheapest album investment possible.

The pages lie flat, of course. They are of finest quality Bristol, size 10⅜x9¾. Linen hinged, and lined with Japanese tissue to protect stamps. All edges are finished in gold to prevent soiling of any kind.

A sturdy fleece-lined case is furnished free of charge with every album.

PROMINENT U. S. SPECIALIST WRITES

Dear Mr. Fennell,

My first copy of your new Elite loose-leaf stamp album, which I ordered from you, has arrived. To say I am delighted with it is putting it mildly. I have carefully inspected it, and must say it is the best loose-leaf album I have ever had the pleasure of seeing or using, and in my thirty years of collecting stamps I have used and seen about everything in the album line on the market, including the celebrated English make.

The name you have given your new album "Elite" is good, but, in my opinion, you should have named it "Perfecto", as it is perfect in every respect.

Very truly yours,
C. S. SMACK, St. Louis, Mo.

NEW ISSUE OF STAMPS COMING.

11-Cent with Head of President Hayes, First of Series, on Sale October 4.

ROOSEVELT 5c VALUE READY OCT. 27.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1—A new 11-cent postage stamp, peacock blue, with a portrait of Rutherford B. Hayes, will be placed on sale Wednesday at Fremont, O., in connection with the commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of the former President. The first stamp from the press will be presented to Mrs. Harding.

The Hayes stamp is the first of a complete new series to be placed on sale generally during the next 30 days. A five cent "Roosevelt stamp" will be ready for distribution Oct. 27, the anniversary of the birth of the former president.

For Foreign Use.

Mr. Roosevelt's portrait was selected for the five cent stamp, the Postoffice Department announced today, because "this denomination is most widely used on letters to foreign countries where the former president's fame was believed to be more universal than that of any other."

A new fifty cent stamp bearing a picture of the Arlington Amphitheatre and the tomb of the unknown soldier, will be placed on sale on Armistice day, Nov. 11.

In the new series, the 13 cent stamp has been discontinued, while 14 cent and 25 cent stamps have been added.

The portraits and designs for the entire series are:

7 cent—McKinley
8 cent—Grant
9 cent—Jefferson

Historical Sequence.

The subjects were selected with careful regard for their suitability, the department announced today, adding:

"The portraits include Washington and Jefferson as fathers of our institutions; Franklin as the first postmaster general; Martha Washington to commemorate the pioneer womanhood of America; Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley as 'the martyr presidents'; Monroe to mark the foreign policy associated with his name, with Grant, Hayes, Cleveland and Roosevelt carrying on the historical line to a recent day."

THE POLECAT!

This is a very disagreeable and unpopular variety, yet some seek it for its skin

The villain now approaches! He is soiled, banged up, bandaged and his eyes are blackened.

Philatelically, this animal-villain is damaged—a very disagreeable and unpopular variety to most collectors, yet some seek him!

Several large families of these polecat villains are ready for new homes. All are United States stamps of postage, department or revenue issues only and all are more or less damaged.

25 to 40 Varieties Cat. $10.00 for $1.00

A real polecat may be sought for its skin, but my "return if unsatisfactory" guarantee eliminates any "skin" game connected with this family of polecats.

THE "ADUTT" COLLECTION OF U. S.

By Douglas B. Armstrong.

The national spirit has been so greatly in evidence amongst American philatelists of recent times, that there are today comparatively few really important collections of United States postal issues in existence outside of America. A notable exception is the remarkably fine specialised collection of the stamps of the United States and Confederate States brought together by Mr. A. Leon Adutt, J.P., F.R.P.S.L., of Margate, President of the Thanet Philatelic Society, and a prominent figure in British philatelic circles.

Although commenced as recently as 1916, it will bear comparison with almost any known collection of these issues; in fact, there is only one other on this side of the Atlantic that can be regarded as in any way equal to it.

Contained in thirteen large albums de luxe, every page of which is beautifully arranged and written up in finest copper plate, the point that first strikes the beholder is the immaculate condition of each and every specimen. This perfection has only been attained by a lengthy process of drastic elimination, and by absorbing the crême de la crême of some dozens of collections that have come onto the market from time to time. The present day value of the collection must be excess of $30,000.

A few notes upon some of the outstanding features of the "Adutt" collection may not be without interest for American philatelists.

The collection opens with a representative display of the pre-postage stamp "PAID" franks of various U. S. A. post offices. Several of these came from the collection of the late Ferrari de la Renotiere, amongst them that of Aberdeen, Miss., 1847, with a figure "5" in a star, struck in red, and Eutaw, Ala., 1846, showing the impression of a Sliver dime by way of a frank, also in red.

In the Postmaster's stamps we find the only known copy of the 10c Baltimore, April 5th, 1848, large numerals in decorative border (vide Luff's U. S. A.): a complete sheet of twelve of the Providence, R. I., issue 1846 made up of eleven 5c and one solitary 10c; 3c on blue New York City Despatch 1842 used on entire, and many other desirable pieces.

A fine display of the 5c New York Postmaster's stamp is prefaced by colour proofs in brown, scarlet, blue, purple and green, together with examples of the Reprints on blued paper. There is a used copy of the Re-entry, but the show piece is the magnificent pair, used on entire, from the collection of the late Major E. B. Evans, which realised the record sum of £225 at the recent auction in aid of the funds of the London International Stamp Exhibition, 1923. A number of single copies originally reposed in the Ferrari collection.

The General Issue of 1847 includes proofs overprinted SPECIMEN of the 5c in black and pale red, and of the 10c in black and sap-green, followed by Die Proofs of both values in the issued colours and proofs on card of the 5c Original Die as well as the Official invitation.

Engraver's proofs and essays for the U. S. series 1851-60, are a remarkably interesting lot. First we have a proof of the Washington head, without frame, as used for the 3 cents stamp with die number "No. 14" beneath it in olive-green, mauve, blue, ultramarine, orange and red. Then the bust of Franklin, as on the 30 cents, on a sunk mount, in blue, ultramarine, orange, red, lake and green. Next the Franklin head as for the 1 cent in orange, brown, blue, purple and green, and a smaller vignette of Franklin, looking to the right, in a small circle (unadopted) in blue, lake and orange.

In addition there is a proof of the Washington head for 3c with shaded oval surround in ultramarine and purple, and Die Proofs of the Franklin head of the 1 cent in deep green (to left) and in green and carmine (to right). Finally there is a proof of the completed

3 cents in black. Of the 3 cents stamp as issued, the collection includes a used block of eight, and a strip of six, a pair showing "gash in neck" used on entire; a single copy used in conjunction with the West Town Delivery local, and another with the Blood's Despatch stamp. Also a used strip of six 3 cents pale rose showing the "double line" variety.

Plate proofs of the 10c and 12c 1851, are shewn in pairs, whilst the 24 cents reddish-lilac is represented by a postally used copy. The "Premier Gravures" of 1861 are all present in proof form, whilst there is a notable block of four of the 3 cents (P. G.). Another unusual item in this series is a block of six of the same value cancelled with the French "Anchor" postmark.

Proofs of the 2 cents (Booby head) 1862 are shown in a variety of colours, viz., orange, red, greenish-grey, copper, green and brown, and of the 15c (Lincoln) in both black and blue.

Of the 5 cents brown there is an undeniably imperforate used copy, supplemented by an unique pair in the scarce foxy brown shade, also in used condition.

The 3 cents 1867 "grilled allover" is present, both used and unused.

Included in the representation of the 1869 series are the original designs on India paper for the 30c and 90c values, the former in black on white and black on green with a picture of the surrender of Gen. Burgoyne, and the latter, in pale rose and mauve,showing Trumbull's portrait of Washington, both adapted to the frame designs as issued. Proofs of the frame only of the 90c with centre oval shaded are shown in pale rose and in blue. These are followed by card proofs in sepia of the 2c, 6c and 12c as issued and of the 24c and 30c in colour, and by Die Proofs of all values in normal colourings.

The series 1873 includes the Continental Bank Note Company's printing of the 24 cents value.

The special issue of May 1873 on "double paper" is represented by the 1c, 2c, 3c, 6c, 10c, 15c and 30c all postally used, and that of June 1875 by the 2c and 5c also used.

In the ribbed, toned paper employed by the Continental Bank Note Co., we have 1c blue, 2c vermillion, 5c blue, 10c brown, 30c grey-black on buff.

Of the 90 cents 1879, American Bank Note Co.'s printing the "Adutt" collection contains used blocks of twenty and fourteen respectively.

A curious variety of the 4 cents 1887-88, printed in sepia, is overprinted "SAMPLE A".

The later issues are all complete as regards single copies, strengthened by occasional pairs and blocks, but otherwise call for no special comment, except for the 5 cents error of 1917, which is shewn in a part sheet of the 2c value.

Throughout the collection the predominant feature is the remarkable range of proofs and essays for all issues, most of which came out of official collections. There is moreover an entire volume bound in leather and evidently prepared for presentation purposes containing a complete collection of die proofs of all issues of United States postage stamps from 1847 to 1902, artistically arranged on grey-tinted sunk mounts.

Another unusual item is a complete set of First Die Proofs of the Newspaper series 1875 on sunk mounts bearing pencil notes by Postmaster-General Barber as to the colours to be used in printing. These, together with some official correspondence relating to the issue, were acquired by Mr. Adutt whilst on a Continental tour, having been hidden away in a dealer's stock for over twenty years.

Amongst the Essays represented in the "Adutt" collection is a series of surface printed atrocities submitted by the American Bank Note Co., about the year 1863 of which the following is a description:—

2c. Indian's head in circle, blue, carmine and mauve.

3c. Head of Columbia in shield composed of Stars and Stripes—black, mauve, carmine, green and blue.

5c. Head of Columbia in solid circle—black, mauve, carmine and blue.

Here's U Our Hobby!
Of course, it's an "on-again", "off-again" hobby—I'm "on-again", now—how're you? If you're the same, let me send a few approvals "2 U." If you don't like them, that's my loss—but I've gathered a good general stock together, these last ten years, and with just an inkling as to your requirements, ought to be able to suit you. No,—I haven't a St. Louis bear—and might not be willing to sell it, if I had! But to start somewhere near the beginning, I have 4 covers, with 5c '47's, that I will part with. Two of them have red grills; one has the little red Springfield "Paid"—twice, for good measure! And one is pen-canc.

BUT
If you have only $1.00 to spend, don't ask for these—not even for approvals! Save it for a week or two, until I finish assembling a packet—a packet such as will cause you to smile and chuckle! I wax loquacious—just let me send something "2 U.", to keep OUR HOBBY alive!

YE OLDE SOUTH STAMPE SHOPPE
6 MILK STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

10c. Indian's head to right in oval—blue, carmine and mauve.

Another interesting set of Essays, circa 1866, shows the Houdon bust of Washington in an arched panel, flanked on either side by fasces, and surface printed on the reverse side of gold beater's skin, denomination 3 cents, in black, carmine, mauve, brown, green and blue. There is a strip of five of the 3 cents mauve, a block of eight of the 3c green, and six of the 3c brown.

A striking essay for the 3 cents 1851-60 has the head of Washington, inclined forward, in an oval frame, with a row of six stars above and below, and the figure "3" in a small oval, four times repeated in the frame. Impressions of this design are shown in rose, orange, lake, black and yellow ochre, both in singles, pairs and large blocks.

Some finely engraved Essays (without expressed value) by the American Bank Note Co., have the head of Washington displayed upon an engine turned ground, with the letters "A B N Co" in the four corners.

One of the 150 sets of current U. S. stamps overprinted "Universal Postal Congress" in blue at the time of the Washington Conference of the Union Postale Universelle in 1898 provides yet another out of the way item in the collection.

The unique series of Confederate Postmasters envelopes from the Ferrari collection is of particular interest and should help to solve some of the problems surrounding these emissions. Of special interest is the 5c envelope of Columbia, S. C., bearing in addition a 5 cents adhesive stamp of the Confederacy.

Enlarged reproductions in colour of all values of the Confederate series 1861 make an attractive form of "Grainge rising" this portion of the collection, as does also a portrait of Frank Baptist, who was detailed from Parker's Light Artillery for duty at Messrs. Archer & Daly's printing office, where he printed the 5 cents blue stamps from the original plates constructed by De La Rue & Co.

The concluding item of the collection is an essay in rose and black, on glazed card, for a 5 cents stamp of the Confederacy, representing a beautiful female head, enclosed in a circular frame.

Within the confines of these Notes it has been impossible to do more than outline very briefly the scope and character of the "Adutt" Collection of United States Postage Stamps, which bids fair to rank, in due course, with the famous collections of the day.

STAMP COURTESY..

By A. Atlas Leve

Stamp Courtesy! Just what the two words imply. Let us be courteous to our stamps. Treat them nicely and it will repay one a thousand-fold. The collector who picks up or turns over a stamp with his thumbnail will eat soup with a knife. Stamp tongs or tweezers are great and useful articles and absolutely indispensable to a real stamp man. A real collector never touches his stamps except when mounting them in his album. A perfect stamp in all details is a work of art and should be treated so. I have seen rare stamps that looked as if their various owners had used chewing gum to mount them and monkey wrenches to pick them up with. Handle your stamps carefully all the time.

Then there is the matter of hinges. Use peelable hinges. There are some hinges that could be used for shipping tags. No stamp should be hinged so as to allow the perforations to get bent over, eventually these perforations will break off. It is wise to remove old pieces of hinges. I have taken some pretty solid chunks of paper from stamps composed of five or six hinges. The hinges that are made with a heavy, thick glue, should be shunned. It is far better to wet the hinge with your finger tip than the tongue.

Approval Cards. A nice invention, but these cards are the real cause of fine tears and broken perforations. If you receive any approvals on cards be very careful in replacing the stamps. The sharp edges of the pockets will cut a stamp or turn a perforation very quickly. Raise the pocket very carefully when inserting stamps.

As a rule both collector and dealer are slow in their correspondence. Of course there are dealers who have a tremendous mail and their system requires time; but when a dealer absolutely ignores a request from a collector, he, the dealer, injures Philately. On the other hand the collector who ignores the dealers' request for the prompt return of approvals also injures Philately. Credit is the very life of business, but credit has its limits. Be courteous, Mr. Stamp Man. It pays.

Stamp Courtesy also requires that a selection sent on approval should be returned within ten days. Leading dealers are beginning to shorten that time to three and five days. Fine stamps are scarce and the demand is great. I know collectors who carry approvals in their pockets for days. It isn't fair to all concerned. Then there are the collectors, and serious ones, too, who return valuable selections in the ordinary r... others who do not protect appr... books carefully in mailing and ... others who mark and fold and soil ... proval books to the extent that ... stamps have to be remounted. I ha... case where the collector walked ou... the post-office and opened some of ... approval books in the rain. I salva... the unused stamps for postage.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF BELGIUM.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

CHAPTER XXV.

The Liege Commemorative Stamp.

In the series of stamps issued in 1915 no value was dedicated to Liège though the martyred cities of Ypres, Dinant and Louvain were fittingly commemorated This omission was rectified on July 21st, 1919, by the issue of a special 25 centimes stamp for Liège printed from line-engraved plates. The stamp is upright oblong in shape and shows as its centre-piece a representation of the historically famous Perron fountain, the origin and purport of which is explained in Stamp Collecting as follows:—

"The Perron is an antique fountain, the origin of which goes as far back as the heroic times of the City of Liège's history. Under the Frank's invasion, justice was applied at the foot of a perron. From the year 1050 it started or, rather, continued to be used as a type for all Liège money. The letters 'L. G.' have been interpreted in different ways; tradition gives it to be Libertas gentis; some say it means Legia or Liège, also Libertate gaudens, Lesdienses gradus, Libertatis gradus, and at last the word written on the plan of Liège which accompanied Guicciardin's voyage—i.e. Lie-ge separated by the perron.

The perron was the symbol of Liège federalism. There was another one at Visè and at all the best-known places of the principality. The perron appears for the first time on coins under Hugues de Pierrepont (1200-1229); it was to him a distinctive mark, and he even used it as a secret mark."

To continue with our description of the design: the perron is enclosed within a handsomely engraved frame inscribed "BELGIQUE" at top and "BELGIE" at foot while on circular discs on each side, level with the top of the monument, the value is shown in uncolored numerals above a small letter "c". Below the monument is the name of the city in French and Flemish, viz.:—"LIEGE—LUIK".

The stamp is printed in blue on wove unwatermarked paper and is found perforated 11½ on all four sides as well as 11½x11, both gauges being the work of single-line or guillotine machines. It has been asserted that this stamp was engraved and printed by Waterlow Bros. & Layton of London but as its paper and perforation correspond with the same details in the Victory issue it appears much more probable that the label was produced at Haarlem, Holland, by John Enschède & Sons and later printed at the State Printing Works in Malines.

The stamps were printed in sheets of 100 arranged in ten rows of ten and apparently several plates were used, the plate number being engraved in the lower margin below the sixth stamp. We have seen plate number 3 and a correspondent informs us he has plate number 1. Like the other engraved stamps the letters "C C" are perforated in one of the margins and the usual control mark "DEPOT 1919" is also stamped on the margin of each sheet.

The stamps perforated 11½x11 are said to be taller and narrower and deeper in color than those perforated 11½. Evidently these differences are characteristic of the Haarlem and Malines printings.

CHAPTER XXVI.

The Re-drawn 5 Francs.

In May, 1920, the 5 francs value of the 1915 series was issued with the Flemish word under the numeral at top reading "FRANK" instead of "FRANKEN". Why this alteration was made we have been unable to discover unless "franken" was too German sounding to please our Belgian friends. Evidently the original die was used and the alteration in the word also resulted in a little retouching in the surrounding ornamentation. This re-drawn stamp was apparently printed in London like the original type for it is printed on the same sort of paper and has the same 14 perforation.

CHAPTER XXVII.

The New 3c and 65c Stamps.

In August, 1920, a new 65c stamp was issued, and while this was primarily intended for use in connection with the Express letter service it also served to pay the combined registration and postal fees on foreign letters. The design was described in Stamp Collecting as follows:—

"It is transverse oblong in format, with a view of the exquisite Town Hall, Termonde, a town which was the theatre of desperate fighting during the first fortnight of September, 1914, but whose destruction was not due to any battle. It was deliberately smashed to pieces by the German invaders because the fine levied upon it was not immediately forthcoming. Of all the Belgian cities, the fate of Termonde was perhaps the direst, for almost literally it was levelled to the ground: As at Louvain the houses were first sprayed with paraffin by soldiers, who perambulated the streets with oil-carts and hoses. This latest Belgian stamp is therefore an essential item in the philatelic history of Teutonic vandalism."

The picture of the Town Hall is printed in black and the surrounding ornate frame, which is in maroon, shows the numerals "65" on circular discs of color in each of the four corners, while at top is "BELGIQUE" and at base "BELGIE," both names being in uncolored letters on a ground of crossed lines. Below the picture "TERMONDE" and "DENDERMONDE" (its Flemish equivalent) are shown in tiny capitals.

The stamp was engraved and printed by J. Enschéde and Sons, at Haarlem. Holland, at first, and then, later, at the Belgian State Printing Works at Malines. The Holland prints were in small sheets of twenty-five (five rows of five) and one of these small sheets was discovered at the Central Post Office of Ghent with the central vignette inverted. It is said that most of the sheet was sold before the error was discovered so that the few existing copies are among the rarest of the world's inverts.

New plates were made when this value was printed at Malines these containing one hundred stamps arranged in ten rows of ten. There appear to have been two distinct printings varying both in paper and ink. In one the paper is white and the color of the frame does not show through at all, while in the other the paper is greyish-white, rather greasy looking, and the ink is aniline and shows very distinctly at the back.

The perforation on all we have examined is 11x11½ but it is possible that the Haarlem prints may also be found perf. 11½ only, as in the case of other values produced in Holland.

On November 1st, 1920, the postal rate on inland letters was raised to 20 centimes and the rate on printed matter, other than newspapers and periodicals, was raised to a minimum of 3 centimes. This resulted in the issue of a 3 centimes stamp in the type of the King Albert series of 1915, this new value being placed on sale in January, 1921.

Whether this value was printed in London, or not, like the others of the same type, we cannot say. The perforation is the same but the impression is

EDITORIAL.

We have had word that the new issue of United States stamps is impending and that it may be expected at any time. Certain of the designs will be of no ordinary kind, if we are to believe our informant, who says that a picture of Niagara Falls will appear on one of the stamps. Naturally, a new issue of stamps always creates a burst of interest in this form of certificate and the preliminary news of the issue has whetted the interest of the public in the new set.

In Great Britain, a competition has been approved by the philatelic congress of Great Britain for the best study of the question, "How Best can Interest in Philately be Stimulated?" A silver vase, with an engraved tribute to the successful contestant will be awarded at the next congress "or at the banquet terminating that Congress." The papers may not exceed 7,000 words in length nor be under 3,000; and it is directed that they be sent under the pen names of the writers, who, to qualify must be members of any affiliated society, "members of Congress and philatelists whose names are inscribed upon the Congress Roll of Distinguished Philatelists." This contest is wholly apart from the "Congress Cup" competition, an annual feature of the congress programme. The thought of this contest is somewhat captivating. No other subject could yield greater results under discussion than the one selected, and we are glad to see that a short-cut is taken to the heart of a question always of vital concern. In fact, we are aware that even those collectors who have rather held aloof from the practical operations of philately, have latterly recognized the necessity of bending effort to propel the pursuit forward. It is self-evident that philately must be sustained by an increasing number of followers if it is to progress; and hence, "How Best can Interest in Philately be Stimulated?" is an epitome, in the answer to the question, of all that affects the material well-being of collecting. Specific information on the means for stimulating interest are not to be glibly given, if it is to command attention and action; and so, we cannot imagine that the winning paper in the competition will not be a document of lasting importance to our pursuit, as a result of its sage and sound presentation of the subject.

It is interesting to notice how close the people of our country feel to the postage stamps; and as proof of this intimacy, it has been shown that the citizenry rose to the occasion when it was announced that the authorities were contemplating a new issue of stamps and that suggestions for designs would be welcome. We have told of the volume of correspondence engendered by the proclamation and the reference to the free-will offering has stirred an old employee of the post office department, who had a hand in the selection of the designs for the Trans-Mississippi or Omaha issue of 1898, to write us to say that upwards of one hundred actual designs were submitted by outsiders, as he remembers, by the first of the year, 1898, when it was understood that there were to be but five stamps in the set. He says that one of the most effective samples was one of a series depicting famous western scouts. This design was practically decided upon, he says, but in some way was withdrawn. He adds that about the first drawing accepted was that showing the buffalo, which was assigned later to the four cent stamp.

The second assistant postmaster general has served notice that the "foreign postal agencies in China are due to be withdrawn by the close of this year." Especial reference is made to the Shanghai agency, for many years an institution of some importance; and on and after November 1, 1922, all mail matter originating in the United States for delivery in the city of Shanghai will be subject to international postage rates and conditions. The passing of the Shanghai agency maintained by the United States, will arouse a few sentimental thoughts and in a philatelic sense, a source of supply of the high values of the current U. S. stamps will be removed, as a number of Shanghai exporting firms, with connections in this country depended upon the post to convey their heavy mail to the United States.

An inquiry has been received from a reader who wants to know why he never sees or reads of the big newspaper stamps of the 1865 issue in used condition. The answer is, that canceled stamps of this issue are very scarce and a genuinely used copy with its brush marks in blue or black ink, while not a thing of beauty, is almost a white black bird. The reason for the limited use of the big newspaper stamps has never been wholly explained, but it is evident that they did not make any deep impression on the route agents and the news agents in their handling of packages of newspapers and periodicals that did not originate in the post office, or were not to be delivered to a post office. What was intended to be a convenience for the route and news agents, and a source of some income to the government, failed of its purpose, and the express companies enjoyed the monopoly of the transportation in the manner indicated. The stamps came late in 1865 and in 1867, a stamp paper said that they were to be had regularly only at Chicago. Milwaukee, too, seems to have had the stamps in stock, but the issue of the big stamps was discontinued "about 1869." In his article in Harper's New Monthly Magazine, October, 1871, "Postage Stamps and Their Origin," Mr. James M. Chute said: "They were issued October 1, 1865, and withdrawn in February, 1869, having been used only in Chicago, Illinois, and Milwaukee, Wisconsin. As but few of our readers have probably seen these gems of postal art, we give an engraving of the lowest value." We have an idea that the big newspaper stamps are due for special attention at the hands of a student here and there, and it is possible that interesting particulars about the four stamps will be revealed.

We believe that the postal authorities, knowing the news value of much that pertains to the postal service has for the people generally, is sending out to newspapers in different sections of the country, accounts of the later developments in the methods of mail handling and transportation. We commend the disposition of the administration to create a proper regard for the great institution that is built on the postage stamp, and trust that the matter that is distributed will be given the setting that it deserves. From one of the articles, inspired by Washington, we suppose, the following paragraph is quoted: "Another labor saving device is that of pre-canceled stamps put up in coils to be used by large mailers. Heretofore, large concerns have purchased coils of uncanceled stamps which were placed on outgoing mail by stamp fixing machines. The large bundles of mail were very frequently delivered at the post office during rush hours and had to be run through the canceling machines which caused delay not only of that mail, but of all mail. Under the new device, the large purchasers of stamps will buy precanceled stamps so that when their mail reaches the post office, it is ready for immediate delivery."

1655-6-7-8.

The next discontinuance of subscriptions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1655 to 1658 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

We are satisfied that the system we have inaugurated is the only one under which a newspaper can do business these days, and subscribers must understand that free copies of the WEEKLY will not be sent to those who are in arrears.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, 510 W. 113TH ST., NEW YORK

MALTA SELF-GOVERNMENT.

By W. E. HUGHES.

The perennial interest in the stamps of Malta, that island jewel of the Mediterranean, has been quickened of late by the overprinting of current issues with the words "Self-Government". The granting of Self-Government to this loyal people is no small matter to them. It is the sign of their arrival at a definite and advanced stage on the road to political freedom. Previously they had been governed by a council, partly nominated and partly elected; but now they are a self-governing community among the free nations of the British Empire, and the sturdy and patriotic Maltese realize what a proud privilege this is. That they should want to mark such a striking event in their history was only natural, and the quick-witted islanders knew that the best and widest-flung advertisement of their new status would be found in the all-penetrating postage stamp. As the mark of sovereignty, the postage stamp has taken the place of the coin. The conqueror of old chronicled his domination by having his name and features depicted on the current money of the realm, but to-day it is easier and more effective to overprint the postage stamps of the prostrate foe. In a way, it makes defeat more bitter. In the case of Malta there was nothing of this. Malta was granted self-government for the best of all reasons—she was worthy of it; and the Maltese people embarked on the stormy seas of political freedom with the good wishes of the whole Empire.

It was originally intended that the new pictorial series of stamps should be available when the Prince of Wales opened the first Maltese Parliament in November last, but this was not found possible, and the Self-Government set was substituted. Even then, it was not until January 12th, 1922, that the overprinted series was put on sale, but it is always possible that the delay was due to the non-arrival of certain values to make the overprinting complete and to avoid the necessity of a resetting of the type.

Their advent caused some excitement amongst collectors in this country and, as it became obvious after a while that certain of the stamps were scarcer than others, I wrote to the Postmaster for information and received from Mr. John Fox, Superintendent of Posts, General Post Office, Malta, the following reply, which, as a courteous enunciation of principles in regard to such matters, and as an example worthy of imitation in other quarters, deserves to be placed on permanent record:—

"General Post Office, Malta.
July 22nd, 1922.

SIR,—With reference to your letter of the 6th inst., I have the honour to state that no postal officials are interested in philately, a pursuit which is discouraged amongst them for administrative reasons.

I am unable therefore to comply with your requests beyond giving on the annexed statement the numbers of stamps of each denomination and character that are on record in this office.

This information is given only on the understanding that you will make it public.—I have the honour to be, Sir, your obedient servant,

JOHN FOX, Superintendent of Posts.
Regd. No. 2331/22F69."

The figures given in the following list are those on the official statement. The notes are my own.

Maltese Stamps Without Overprint.
1s old wmk., emerald throughout (no record).
1d Script (no record).
Issued January 19th, 1922. (No records).
¼d Script.
½d Script.
2½d Script.
6d Script.
2s Script.
10s Script.
Issued April 15th, 1922.
¼d Script (250,000).
¼d on 2d (250,000).

Overprinted "SELF-GOVERNMENT".
January 12th, 1922.
¼d Script (300,000).
½d old wmk. (378,000).
1d Script (1,080,000).
2d Script (492,000).
2½d old wmk. (21,480).
3d old wmk. (33,000).
6d old wmk. (50,280).
1s old wmk. (78,240).
2s old wmk. (3,240).
2s 6d old wmk. (21,360).
5s old wmk. (17,640).
10s C. C. wmk. (7,860).
January 15th, 1922.
2½d Script (204,360).
January 25th, 1922.
2s Script (15,120).
March 9th, 1922.
10s Script (12,690).
April 19th, 1922.
6d Script (40,680).
April 29th, 1922.
½d Script (290,400).

The ½d old 1d Script, 2d Script, 2½d old, 3d old, 6d old, 1s old, 2s old, 2s 6d old, 10s CC wmk. were all remainders. The 5s old, according to Colonial Office news in 1921, included a new printing, so that the total for this value was probably higher than the normal. The 1d Script and 1s old wmk. had only been on sale a few weeks before they were overprinted.

Stamps Without Overprint. It will be observed that, excepting in the case of the new printing of ¼d Script issued April 15th, no records are available of the stamps without overprint. It would have been interesting to have had these figures, but one would probably not be far out in venturing on the following estimates:—

1s emerald throughout (22,000).
½d Script (210,000).
1d Script (120,000).
2½d Script (36,000).
6d Script (35,000).
2s Script (10,000).
10s Script (7,500).

It will be remembered that the 1s emerald throughout was put on sale about December 14th and the 1d Script about a week later, so that the sale of these two values, prior to the overprinting, is unlikely to have been abnormal. The ½d Script was not on sale overprinted until April 29th, or more than three months after its first appearance. Likewise the 6d Script was not sold overprinted until April 19th, or three months from the date of its first appearance. The 10s Script was on sale without overprint on January 19th, and did not appear among the Self-Government stamps until March 9th, when the last of the 10s CC wmk. had been sold. In passing, one may mention that the 10s CC, before the overprinting took place, were expected to last until September, 1922, so that roughly eight months' normal supply went in as many weeks.

Both the plain and overprinted 3d were sold out February 23rd, and about this time the rate for foreign postage was increased to 3d, so no doubt the traffic was served by a combination of 1d and 2d or 2½d and ½d.—Stamp Collecting.

DID YOU READ

My quarter page advertisement in last week's copy of MEKEEL'S? I not only offered a fine assortment of UNITED STATES ISSUES in mint singles and on covers, but a magnificent lot of superb blocks of four. These are becoming more difficult to pick up every day and if you do not believe this statement drop in and see even the largest dealers and find how insignificant most stocks are. I have concentrated on blocks for several years and have a very fine lot from 1890 on as well as a few of the earlier items. Priced in accordance with their value. Some blocks are worth around half catalogue, some are cheap at double or more. Get out your last week's edition, for the prices still hold good. With even a fair demand I will not be able to say this a few months hence.

Also remember that I am always a buyer of anything fine in the way of mint U. S. blocks of all issues. The rarer the better. Need many of the late issues, especially the higher denominations. Single pieces or collections purchased up to any amount.

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

United States.—Some weeks back, mention was made of the fact tthat 2c stamps from plate 5990 were then in circulation, although the plate was completed many months previous. My investigation showed that this plate had been used as a master plate for making electros and that it had recently been found in the Bureau of Engraving & Printing, and put into use. Many have written to express surprise that electro plates of the 2c denomination had been made, they being under the impression that the 1c plates which recently appeared, were the first and only experiments of this kind. Our readers' attention was called to these 2c plates at the time they were made, but in order to make the matter clear, I would advise that the first master plate used for the purpose of making these altos, or electro plates as they are called, was a 2c plate, bearing number 5990. This plate in no way differed from others of the series. From this, three electro plates were made, bearing numbers 6021, 6022 and 6023. Impressions from the last plate were the only ones to reach the public, and as I have never had the pleasure of inspecting a stamp from this plate, I cannot state if it can be distinguished from those produced by the regular methods.

As I have mentioned before, the 1c cannot be distinguished from stamps from a worn plate produced by the regular method. The master plate in the case of the 1c was 13255, and from this, a number of electros have been made, bearing numbers 13376-77, 13389-90, 13395-96, 13407-412, 13415-16, 13443-44 and 13449-50. Impressions from the first pair of plates have been found both imperforate and perforated 11, and those from the other plates were no doubt put into circulation. The fact that the stamp did not differ from the regular variety is perhaps the reason that quantities were not put aside. No doubt most of the plate number collectors have been so fortunate as to have located other than the first two.

Both Messrs. A. E. Owen and G. G. Ryder call attention to the fact that the Bureau has made an error in the list of plates that we published in our issue of June 10th. Plates 13811-13814 inclusive listed as 2c plates, are shown from the actual stamps to be 1c rotaries of 170 subjects. Mr. Owen also writes that 13675-76 are 1c stamps, rotary printed of 400 subjects instead of 170 as listed.

The Bureau of Engraving & Printing, through its Director, is exceedingly courteous in furnishing this information which takes hours to compile. Under the circumstances slight errors are bound to occur from time to time. We would therefore appreciate any corrections made by our readers, for we are anxious that our information be correct in every way.

Mr. F. R. Demmerly sends for inspection an interesting cover cancelled "San Francisco—Sept—1922." The day of mailing is not clear although it is possibly the 3rd or 4th. This reached Indianapolis and was delivered at 3.15 P. M. on September 6th. On the front we find a red stamped impression, evidently from a metal hand stamp, showing two concentric circles with two wings reading "Received via U. S. Air Mail." Mr. Demmerly writes, "This is the first air mail here to be marked by the post office. Had one mail by air this spring, but not marked to distinguish." We are always pleased to receive information of this kind.

Several letters have been received asking that we publish information regarding the new provisional Shanghai locals overprinted in Shanghai. The information that we published is all available at this time, but we have made inquiry through official sources and hope to have full details regarding the number and circumstances under which they were issued, what firm did the overprinting, etc., at a future date. It must be remembered, however, that it takes three months to bring this information to hand, providing the proper official writes promptly.

We wish to thank Messrs. H. W. Porter, Cecil F. Bogg and D. B. Damon for notes of interest.

These will shortly after be followed by a permanent set of the same type as the new issue of St. Helena, but inscribed "Ascension."—Whitfield King & Co.'s Bulletin.

inferior and the paper of a much poorer grade. The lines of shading on the portrait appear to be a trifle heavier and coarser, the letters "C" in the value tablets are of slightly different shape from those of the 1915 type, and the colored lines across the curved scrolls at each end of "BELGIQUE" no longer appear.

The stamps were printed by typography in sheets of 400 arranged in four panes of 100 stamps each. Around each pane is a broad solid line of color, something after the style of the "Jubilee" lines on British colonial stamps but much thicker and with squared corners.

The paper is white wove and of such a coarse weave that it appears to be watermarked with innumerable small dots.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The Olympic Games Issue.

The Seventh Olympiad was held in Antwerp during August and September, 1920, and earlier in the year the Belgian Minister of Posts and Telegraphs decided to commemorate the event by the issue of a special series of three stamps. They were placed on sale later in May and were valid for internal correspondence only. They continued in circulation until the end of October, after which none were sold at the post-offices though they remained good for postage until December 31st.

The stamps served a dual purpose for not only did they commemorate the games but each sold at an advance of 5 centimes above their actual franking value, the extra money thus obtained going to a national fund for the benefit of permanently disabled soldiers.

The designs are handsome and appropriate. The 5 centimes is particularly artistic with its exquisite portrait of a classical thrower of the discus, while the 15c is almost as striking with its nude figure of a runner. The 10c, which is perhaps the least effective of the three, shows a quadriga—an ancient Roman two-wheeled vehicle drawn by four horses abreast. The frames vary in each case, a Greek pattern enclosing the central designs, while in the spandrels of the 5c are Greek scrolls, on the 10c Doric columns flank the central circle, and on the 15c Corinthian columns are shown at each side. The inscriptions are the same on all three denominations. Across the top in two lines we find "VII OLYMPIADE 1920— ANVERS ANTWERPEN", while at the bottom is "BELGIQUE—BELGIE", the value and "POUR LES MUTILES+ 5c VOOR DE VERMINKTEN".

The stamps were engraved and printed in recess by the American Bank Note Company of New York on unwatermarked wove paper. They have the usual 12 perforation characteristic of this firm's production, made by single-line machines. They were issued in sheets of 100 showing the manufacturer's imprint—"AMERICAN BANK NOTE COMPANY"—in small capitals in each of the four margins. Whether they were printed in this form or in larger sheets of 200, divided into two panes, is open to question. We have seen sheets of the 15c denomination showing "A1" and "A2" in reversed letters and figures in the margins respectively, so that it is obvious there were two panes or two plates for this value. On the 5c sheets we have only found "A1" and on the 10c "A2", these also being in reverse, while the sheets of all denominations show in the upper margin "F 6248", this evidently being the manufacturer's method of distinguishing this particular contract.

We understand that a special cancellation was used in Antwerp during the actual period of the Olympic Games, this reading "VIIe OLYMPIADE, Anvers Antwerpen" and having the date in both French and Flemish, the whole being enclosed within a frame of oblong shape.

"TEX."

By EDWIN B. HILL, Ysleta, Texas.

To J. D. B.

There was a splash. Then I heard puffing and blowing. And then arose to high heaven the full-throated curses of one who certainly was an adept. I hugged my attenuated form. A door across the canal opened. The figure of mine ancient friend, "Mish," was outlined. His voice boomed forth:

"Come on in out o' the rain, yuh bloomin' idiot. Can't yuh tell where the bridge leaves off an' the canal begins?"

A very much draggled figure climbed up the bank, and passed the discomforting "Mish". The door closed.

I nearly choked with joyous mirth. Coming along the highway, close to the canal bank, my headlights picked up the figure of a man. He was hiking across the narrow bridge which, without hint of rail, spanned the canal to "Mish's" 'dobe residence. The canal was deep. The glare of the lights dazzled the man, and he promptly dropped into the water, utilizing a fine lot of language on the way. I set the brakes, and shut off the engine. Really I had no wish that the chap should come out on my side of the canal.

I crossed the bridge carefully, and, as I reached the door of "Mish's" unhappy home, I heard the voice again. It seemed familiar:

"As I was sayin', 'Mish,' this here state of Texas stands thirty-eighth in education. Yes, sir! But, by Henry! she's first in lynchings. Soon as I get my clothes off I'll prove her claim good."

"Aw, cool off an' dry up!" was the reply. "She's some up in murders, too, an' I'm fer committin' one right now."

There was a silence. Then I heard the thud of a wet shoe.

"Come an' get it!" shouted "Mish", in a voice that might have been heard a mile.

I promptly opened the door, and walked in. "Mish" was seated at the table. His friend, late of Texas and the canal, was drawing up. There was a chair reserved for me.

"Thought I recognized the bark of your flivver," said "Mish." "Meet Tex. Used to know you over there." "Mish" waved his hand toward the western boundary.

And then Tex. and I fell into each other's arms. Know him? I sure did! Wasn't it Tex. who, seeking place as deputy U. S. marshal to guard me and my destinies, in reply to questions declared he didn't have a bed or a six-shooter.

"Well, what have you got, then?" asked the marshal.

"I've got a good appetite," declared Tex. And he was hired.

Tex. was a good guard. He could shoot with either hand. His good nature was effective. To one or two belligerent I. W. W.'s Tex. said:

"Aw! I wouldn't do that. Might cause hard feelin's."

The hard feelings consisting of two guns, one low down, the other at elbow height, naturally caused the Wabblies to think again. This was good for their future state.

"Let George do it," declared Tex. "He'll do it fast enough when he gets started." I wish no harm to my fellow creatures, but the proverbial George sure had a mouthful coming to him later. Also he made it. This left Tex.'s conscience clear.

That was six years ago. Since that time Tex. had punched cattle in Texas and Arizona and picked apricots in California. The ignoble occupation of apricot picking was done on a bet, which was paid in full later. And this is how it happened:

"You see, bein' out of a job, I went down town one day and sat around in the park—Phoenicia. There was a couple chaps there who seemed some heated. One of 'em says, says he, 'I never see a cowman yet who'd work off the range Me,—I've got an apricot orchard over there that just yearns for pickers. I'd like to try a cowboy'. "

"The other chap he just laughs and laughs. Mister Man he gets all heat up, and says he means it. Me,—I see the humor of the thing, an' when one of 'em wagers a hunderd dollars I butts in and asks the job. Say! It would-a done your young heart good to see them two old-timers' jaws drop. One of 'em looks me over. 'Oh, halibut!' he says. 'Too good to be true!' He meant it, too."

"Well, I went over to California. an' picked apricots. I sure enjoyed it. Yes, sir. Yuh see, they had a bunch o' cows, an' three-four ornery ponies, and two kids,—boy an' girl. Both about seventeen. The kids was twins. Well, I taught 'em to rope and tie and they sure learned me to appreciate the good things o' life,—meanin' stamps. Yes, sir. Both them kids had collections. Most as as the one you had over in Arizony.

I told Tex. then of the passing of collection, and the joy I was experien trying to duplicate its treasures, alth the replica consisted in the main of cards and cripples.

"Well," continued Tex., reminisce "the kids finally got me into the g I sent away an' got stung somewha me it seemed that-a-way, but the was delighted. Then I happene think of an old-timer who'd had a b o' letters he got when he was a '4 Say! He was some old, that chap. was a prospector. Born in 1829. W He could beat me."

"Which same wouldn't be diffi with laigs like them," declared "M between mouthfuls.

"Well, I wrote the old-timer, and sends me on a barrel full o' accum tions. Some barrel, too. Three-X fi once. But it sure had a fine lo stamps, tucked away in its insides. was some '47's on cover, an' some an' later on, includin' '69's. No, n 90 on cover, but, by Henry! they w block o' twelve, all laid away care like, unused. Then they was ot which same you might call too nume to mention."

"Mish" and I looked interested.

"What became of them?" we as in a breath.

"Well, yuh see, it was this way," plied Tex. "I had to leave there a awhile, to breathe the air o' Ariz So I jest nacherly let the kids keep sortin' 'em out. Then, after awhile, old man—their dad—ups an' dies, le the kids in debt an' only the ranch help out. Well, I wrote 'em, an' I w the old-timer, too. He hikes over t and buys the whole blamed outfit thought he was a pore old chap, seems he'd made a couple o' strikes. had more 'n he could spend. Me, I it friendly of him. Blamed if he di begin to collect, too. Got a colony 'em,—Chinks an' Japs an' all, collec Sure. I saved one for you an' one "Mish," him bein' undeservin'. Here are."

Mine was a five cents 1847 on co and Mish's was of the same cal "An' now," declared Tex., "we'll over old times."

"Mish" stretched his legs.

"Let the next course be apricots!" shouted to the town three miles awa

And it was!

ESTABLISHED SINCE 1868 IN LONDON. [1st wm

THE TRUE CAUSE OF WORLD UNREST.

I was recently coerced—I need not explain how—into subscribing to a Philatelic Club. I did not then realise that my subscription made me a member, but I have since been very glad of it, for that modest payment has put me in touch with the real cause of the world-unrest of the present day. My name had scarcely appeared in the year-book of the Club when I realised that I was en rapport with the forces that make history, and from that time scarcely a day passed but what some communication reached me from restless moulders of nations.

Among the first to write to me was General Finickin. He was prepared to found a new state in the Double Baulkans as soon as he had filled the list of applications for his new issue of stamps. He was confident, he said, of the success of his venture, and no part of the issue had therefore been underwritten. Now, however, I find his confidence to have been misplaced, for a terse official note from the Baulkan Director of Posts informs me of an issue commemorative of the defeat of the "insurgent, Finickin."

Then I had an invitation, by circular, to join a party of gentlemen of Imperial interests (references given and required) in an expedition to the progressive little African state of Wangal-Wangal whence, it appeared, several stamps of a half-pottle value had been received, in which through wearing of the type the word "REVENUE" had become "REVENUF." In addition to tracing the office from which these stamps had emanated and securing the balance of the stock, it was hoped to rouse neighboring states to an interest in philately.

I was unable to accept their invitation, but, two weeks after the departure of the stamp-hunters, the Secretary of the Brighter Wangal-Wangal Society circularised me to the effect that the limited stock of the "REVENUF Error" was now on sale in London at nineteen times its face value.

Further developments in the "Wangal-Wangal Problem," as it has come to be known, will be awaited with interest, for, in view of the amount of British capital sunk in native postoffices by the expedition during its fruitless search, it is the general opinion of philatelists that the Government will demand either the immediate surrender of a limited issue of half-pottle stamps bearing some new error, or the establishment of a British Sphere of Influence.

The Stamp-Lovers' Association is, however, the great force behind all. I do not know whether they financed such military adventurers as General Finickin, but I do know that most of the philatelic atrocities of New Europe have been perpetrated by their subsidised "timbrological artists." To this body are due the crude presentments of iron-muscled workers forging great chains, of iron-souled workers bursting greater chains, and of rising suns of liberty bristling like hedge-hogs with rays, lighting up whole worlds of chains. The psychological effect of these postal horrors is incommensurable, and it is not surprising that nations determined to adopt such designs for their stamps will go to any lengths to provide opportunities for new issues.

Now that the stamp-collectors of the world are numbered by millions, the cost of a revolution or upheaval is soon defrayed by the sale of the stamps issued by the conflicting parties, and to the victor is held out the alluring prospect of making a further handsome revenue by the introduction of "minor varieties." A full-stop left out here, a slight variation in the perforation there, a change in the flavour of the gum, an issue de luxe on hand-made paper—all these mean more money from the collector. It will be a glorious event in human evolution when Governments are brought to see that stamps commemorative of some peaceful occurrence, like the teething of the Heir Apparent, will be just as eagerly purchased by ardent collectors as those issued to celebrate more sanguinary events. When those days come we shall not hear so much of ruinous postal rates or of the need of a burdensome tax on incomes: indeed, the profits from the special Millennium Series which every country will then certainly issue should suffice to render the world tax-free for ever.—London Punch, June 14, 1922.

For sale, used "Ne Plus Ultra" albums. Style A, $4. Style C, $5. "Suprema" album, transparent interleaved, $7. Cost $12.50. Condition of all like new. Postpaid. M. de Maris, Box 155, Ridgewood, N. J. [58*

THE VALUE OF ONE CUSTOMER.

C. Gordon Fennell, president and manager of the Fennell Stamp Co., cites an instance as to success in advertising that has no doubt been true in the business life of other advertisers. We will let Mr. Fennell do the talking:—

In looking over some of our active account cards yesterday, I noticed that one customer, secured from one of our advertisements in January, 1920, has been buying consistently since then. IRELAND'S NEW STAMPS,

SPECIAL INTERVIEW WITH THE IRISH POSTMASTER GENERAL.

By W. WARD.

(All rights reserved.)

Many conflicting statements having been published in the philatelic press, I arranged a few weeks back to make a special trip to Ireland, to endeavor to discover their proper status. Thus in August I was able, through the kindness of the Rt. Hon. J. J. Walsh, the Postmaster-General of the Irish Free State, to have an interview with him at his private office, temporarily situated in the Government Building near the Irish National Museum in South Dublin.

Ireland today is more or less in a state of war; on every hand are English and Scotch soldiers assisting the soldiers of the Free State to preserve law and order, though the dealing with the rebels is entirely in the hands of the Free State authorities. The streets are patrolled by armoured cars carrying six or seven armed soldiers, and in many cases a machine gun, while in and on the roof of all prominent buildings, especially noticeable as regards newspaper offices, are armed sentries, or a soldier with a gun perched behind sandbags. In addition to the military forces, both the ordinary City police and the new Civic Guard, who have replaced the National Royal Irish Constabulary, are armed. All life ceases at 9.30 p.m., when theatres, hotels, restaurants, etc., are closed—and then sometimes the business begins. Yet despite all this, the people do not seem to be troubled much—business proceeds in the ordinary way, and many streets, as Grafton Street, presents the same appearance as it did in the days before the war. Certainly Sackville Street and other thoroughfares on the North Side of the river show the events since 1916. The old General Post Office is still in ruins, the once magnificent Four Courts reminds one of the ruins of the Acropolis, while the eastern side of Sackville Street for some length is razed to the ground. Buildings all over the capital bear the marks and bespatterings of much machine gun-fire—but Dublin moves almost as if nothing had happened.

No longer are the British from "over there" (England and Scotland) looked upon as the foreign occupiers—indeed we appear to be the most popular allies united with the Free Staters to help them to vanquish the common enemy. So much for the present conditions in Ireland—while perhaps no place for squeamish folk—is yet the jovial, hospitable happy-go-lucky country it always was.

Mr. Walsh, the Postmaster-General, in my opinion, is for once the right man in the right position, which position he curiously can be compared with Benjamin Franklin. Like Franklin he has had a price on his head for his national patriotism. He has been sentenced to

BAG—CATS—EMPTY—FULL

I mean to say that the bag so frequently mentioned in my advertisements in this space in the past month or so is empty of cats, but is full of dollars.

The cats, kittens and polecats sold freely at a dollar per bag and I think everybody got a full 100 cents' worth.

Now, what shall I do with the bag of dollars? I want to keep emptying the bag, you know.

A secret—I'm going to try to get it full of old U. S. If you have anything in really fine condition, write me and maybe we can swap. Money for stamps—new game! Only fine copies wanted — no polecat stuff. On or off cover—worth a dollar or a hundred each—one or fifty copies of a variety—most anything if in really fine condition.

H. F. COLMAN

death, had the sentence commuted to penal servitude for life, and today is one of the leaders and chief cabinet ministers of his country. Unlike many other political postmaster-generals of a country, Mr. Walsh for over 15 years served on the postal administration of Ireland, and has nearly all his life been in the postal service.

The interview that he was kind enough to grant me extended from a mere ordinary business proposition to one of mutual conversation, and I must say that while Ireland has men like her first Postmaster-General, that her great future is not so very far in the distant future.

One of the first questions I asked Mr. Walsh was whether there was any truth in the assertion that had been published in the philatelic press, that he was being advised by a committee of philatelists regarding the issue of the Irish stamps and their varieties.

This Mr. Walsh emphatically denied. In no way had the Irish provisional stamps been manipulated, nor had varieties been made for the benefit of stamp dealers or collectors. What varieties had occurred had solely been caused by the demands made upon the several firms who had contracted to overprint the British stamps.

In regard to the case of the ½d with the inverted surcharge, Mr. Walsh said that as soon as he heard of it, he ordered the sheets to be destroyed. Three had been printed and one had been already sold over the counter of a Dublin postoffice to a local medical practitioner before the Postmaster-General's order arrived. The other two sheets were destroyed. It is not known how the 2d, with the inverted overprint, missed the scrutiny of the inspectors, but it had been sent in a requisition order to a small town in the South of Ireland, and sold across the counter in the ordinary way.

Mr. Walsh said that it was his intention to further make use of the form of advertising by postmark, and I mentioned to him that many people were confused by the new Irish postmarks in Gaelic and suggested that he might follow the example of Belgium and have a bi-lingual postmark. Mr. Walsh smilingly said the purpose of the town's name in Gaelic was to make the people learn Irish, but he thought my idea a good one and as far as possible put it into immediate use. Before I left him the order was given for new Dublin postmarks to be made with the Gaelic name "Baile 'Atha Cliath" at the top of the circle, with "Dublin" at the foot, while the month of the date was to be expressed in Gaelic—as August—LUGNASA, or abbreviated, LUG.

The designs of the new stamps had already been accepted, and are, low pence values, map of Ireland, intermediate values, Celtic Cross, highest values, the combined Arms of the Four Irish Provinces, Leinster, Munster, Ulster and Connaught. The dies were being prepared by the British authorities at Somerset House, London, but special machinery was being installed at Dublin Castle, where they would be printed together with the new Irish treasury notes. They will not be issued, however, until about next December.

Mr. Walsh said it was the Government's intention to issue special official stamps for the various Government Departments to take the place of the franked envelopes at present in service, as the latter were liable to misuse. It would be very probable that the new stamps would be sold in an imperforate condition to persons who so desired them.

Mr. Walsh stated that he did not see his way to institute a cheap local zone postage for any class of matter, as newspapers. The Irish towns were very isolated from one another and they had very few local newspapers, apart from the difficulty that would arise in fixing the limits of any zone as in other countries who enjoy a cheap newspaper postage.

The Postmaster-General further informed me that he had created a special department to deal with orders from collectors direct, and that the order prohibiting the sale of the Controls was one that had come from the British authorities, and he would be only too pleased to give collectors desiring the Controls the facility of purchasing them.

Previously the Irish Post Office had always had a deficit on its combined services. During the last year of the old government the loss was over £1,250,000 but since the Free State had taken over they had made a handsome balance on the right side. He did not care to state the figures, as cost of living having come down considerably in Ireland (lucky Ireland), and the main expenditure of the Post Office was in labor, the first half year's figures might not be a fair comparison.

In reply to my query re the proposed alteration of the currency to the metric system, Mr. Walsh said that owing to the troubles, many matters of progress had had to be left over, but this was a matter that would receive the attention of the government at an early date. He (Mr. Walsh) believed that the metric system was necessary for all forms of measures, and was necessary to a modern country.

So far Ireland's trade with countries outside the Empire is small but he believed that an impetus had been given to all ther industries and that the future would see a great revival of Irish trade and manufactures.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Walsh and other officials of the government, I went over several of the departments of the Post Office which are in different parts of the city—in the Government Buildings, Merrion Square, Dame Street, Castle Street, Essex Street, etc. Naturally all were well guarded and sandbagged. The National Telephone buildings in Essex Street look as though they had suffered a bad time, being situated near the Southern Quays, would be in the centre of most of the fighting that took place in June and July along the river. Messrs. Alex. Thom & Co's. works in Temple Lane, between Dame Street and Essex Street, also look as though they had been "through it"—and the wonder is that we have not had more varieties of provisionals than have been already recorded. Though Ireland has lost two of her greatest men, I feel sure that others like Messrs. Cosgrave, Walsh and Mulcahy will carry Ireland to the great future that awaits her.

The next discontinuance of subscriptions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1655 to 1658 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

We are satisfied that the system we have inaugurated is the only one under which a newspaper can do business these days, and subscribers must understand that free copies of the WEEKLY will not be sent to those who are in arrears.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited, as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—O. J. Richardson informs us of the existence of the current 2c stamp perforated 11 but imperforate vertically. He has seen the upper part of sheet with plate number 13,524. He has also seen a pair of 3c used on cover from Grand Haven, Mich., perforated vertically only.

—A new advertising cancellation from Hartford, Conn., reads:—"Hartford Aviation Meet, Nov. 10-11-12."

—E. T. Parker, Bethlehem, Pa., has just issued an 8-page pricelist of U. S. and foreign stamps. A copy may be had on application.

—Denver, Colo., is using a new postal cancellation:—"National Cancer Week, Nov. 12-20." Chicago is also in the lime-light with a new cancellation:—"International Live Stock Exposition, Chicago, December 2 to 9, 1922."

—Albert C. Gakenheimer submits a new cancellation from Baltimore inscribed:—"Baltimore Week, October 22nd to 28th."

—We cannot pretend to list advertising cancellations of foreign countries. They cover too wide a field. We thank correspondents who have been submitting Mexican, Canadian and European cancellations for our consideration.

—The "Bison City Stamp Club" was organized September 22, in Buffalo, N. Y. The officers are: Pres. Harry E. Klotzbach; Vice-Pres. George T. Simpson; Sec.-Treas., Adolph Steeg, 1048 Genesee Street. The Club will meet on the second and fourth Wednesday evening of each month and a cordial invitation is extended to all general collectors in Buffalo and vicinity to join.

—Recently, Mr. B. Gordon Bushnell bought the Royal Syndicate of Cincinnati, O., and beginning with the September issue, he consolidated it with the Big Star Syndicate. The combined Syndicate will be called the Big Star-Royal Syndicate and it is claimed will be the largest syndicate in the field.

—The 1923 convention of the Metropolitan Philatelic Association will be held in Duluth, Minnesota.

—The following paragraphs on the new stamps are taken from Riq.'s column in the Chicago Post:

"YOU will have to sit in suspense until Oct. 27 before you can see if the artist designing the new Roosevelt stamp has done his duty and shown the Hero with glasses and full set of teeth. Or if the T. R. stamp is made properly of good glue and thick paper, so it will have stick-to-it-iveness without being licked to a frazzle.

But wasn't it sweet of Harding to make America's foreign-going 5-cent stamp a gentle reminder of the (in a manner) Soft Spoken Wielder of the Big Stick?"

THE GENEVA EXHIBITION.

By Fred. J. Melville.

To realise how Philately is a great freemasonry one must travel to an exhibition and congress, where exhibitors, delegates and visitors talk all the living languages and some that we had thought were dead ones. The philatelist who has never attended a stamp exhibition or conference outside his own country can have but a partial realisation of that potency in our pursuit that enables us to fraternise with folk whose hearts are O. K., but whose tongues are as gibberish.

I was in such an expedition when the war broke out, being then in Sweden en route for Finland, Russia, Denmark and Germany. Since then there have been no opportunities for a great foregathering of the world-league of philately until now. So I have seized the occasion of the International Philatelic Exhibition at Geneva, at which I had been invited to join the International Jury, to review my many-tongued friendships, and to get to know some of the new lights that have shone forth in the world of stamps in recent years.

Setting out alone, I had no thought of encountering any one en route. But as I stepped into the Pullman at Victoria I found myself among friends, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Burgin being on their way to Territet. Now I know where "G. B. B." (the former hon. secretary of the Herts Philatelic Society) gets some of his tall stories; there is a cog-wheel railway there that transports him to the heights. He unburdened himself of some of his yarns to me in the corridor train from Dieppe to Paris, so he is ready to assimilate a fresh supply on the Rochers de Naye. We parted at Paris, for they went on to Switzerland the same night, while I spent the night in the French capital.

I was not sorry that I chose to travel through France to Geneva by day. The country is interesting and towards the Swiss frontier is most impressive. All along the route the station names struck one as peculiarly familiar. It was like taking an express train through a voluptuous wine list. It set me thinking of the maxim that it is the wisest course to drink the wine of the country. But the train went too fast to carry out the idea (admittedly an excellent one, if practicable) of imbibing, ever so lightly, the native products of Tonnere, Chablis, Nuits, Chambertin, Beaune, Macon, Dale and all the rest.

"Machonaghie" thinks of returning by slow local train. Nous verrons.

The train, and especially the Geneva carriage, was crowded, and it was with some difficulty that I found a place in a compartment labelled "Loué Pour Etre-Occupé De Culos à Genève 6 Personnes".

Culos is nearly the end of the journey and by the time you have been nine and a half hours in one railway compartment, and have only another hour or two to go, it is difficult to resign it to some mere local wayfarer, and seek a new and equally uncomfortable nook elsewhere. So it was with repelling looks that our compartment met the gaze of everyone on the platform at Culos. But we saw no party of six personnes. Time passed, and we thought the little party had forgotten the day, the time or the place, or had slipped over the Jura mountains—callously we hoped they had. Then there was a noise. Someone had found our compartment with its dismal label.

A trolley was wheeled up beneath our window, and I peered out to see what manner of crowd it was, and whether any of them were bigger than the American gentleman who had just been discussing Mount Blank (we always call it blank, he told me).

Outside on the wagon were a dozen or more sacks—and we had only bargained for six personnes. They were mail bags, and our carriage had been reserved for the mails from Culos to Geneva.

Any / No } self-respecting philatelist would surrender his seat to a mail-bag. We sat tight. The two postmen vociferated, but it is easy not to understand people who speak with their hands, their heads and feet all at once. I was never fluent at French, and any well of Gallic expression in me had dried up for the occasion.

We did not understand, we did not mean to understand. I don't know just where they did put those mail-bags at Culos. But——

The train moved on, and in the fullness of time we arrived at Bellegarde, the French frontier station, where we had to get out and rampage up and down platforms to a Customs house inconveniently distant from the train. Our baggage, everything had to go too, that we might satisfy the French that we were not taking gold, bank notes and the like out of their vinous country. It was almost pleasant to be suspected of having too much of such things.

Then back to the train, to find the Post Office had made a strategic move and collared our carriage. A mail bag dozed lazily in my old corner, the seats and floor were heaped up with mail bags—and after the miserable business of the ceremony of parting with the French Customs, there was little fight left in us. Venomously four of us intruded ourselves and our baggage on a honeymoon couple a few compartments further along, and felt a little less miserable in that we were butting in on someone as someone had butted in on us.

Then we rolled into Geneva, a kindly-disposed Swiss officer raised his hat and asked me if I were importing anything I shouldn't do, and on my assurance chalked my bag, and I passed out a free man.

At the very threshold were Messrs. F. Wexel and L. Mestrad of the Union Philatélique of Geneva waiting to seize me and my baggage and to tell me the best things to eat and drink in the city of the lake. Then we went along to the Maison Communale de Plainpalais to see how the exhibition was growing. Here I met M. Emil Friederich, the President of the Union Philatelic, and the live wire of the exposition.

A stamp exhibition invariably looks the day before the opening as if it simply could not be ready in time for the opening, and the Geneva show was no exception. For days beforehand a stamp show is an apparently confused mass of woodwork, glass, drawing pins, parcels, rpenters, joiners, and fellows chasing ch other round with sheets of glass, hich you can spend your time in dodgg. And this state of affairs always seems to continue right up to the last night of preparation. Then, almost of a sudden, the thing seems to take shape during the final night, and small hours of the opening day. It was so at Geneva. What looked as though it could not be completed for the opening on Sunday, September 3rd, was actually ready, thanks to the extraordinary energy of M. Friederich and a capable band of assistants.

The International Philatelic Exhibition, which was organized by the Philatelic Union of Geneva, to celebrate its thirtieth anniversary, was inaugurated on the Sunday morning when philatelists from most of the European countries and from the United States, were received and welcomed by the President of the State Council of Geneva, and the dignitaries of the historic city. In the afternoon the exhibition was opened to the general public, and such is the attraction of the postage stamp hobby on the Continent that the good folk of Geneva flocked in to see the liberal spread of rare stamps. Representatives of many foreign nations here for the meetings of the League of Nations, formed a considerable part of the attendance on Sunday.

It is not altogether an unmixed pleasure to be one of the judges as I am, at an exhibition of this character. They do not call us judges, we are an "international jury," and as if to prevent interference with the "good men and true" we are all immured in one pension, debate the points in the exhibits over the table, and our verdicts so far have been unanimous and arrived at most cheerfully. The President of the Jury is one of the most distinguished philatelists, Baron Axel de Reuterskiold, now approaching the veteran stage, having been judging at stamp exhibitions as long as there have been such enterprises.

An exhibition of this character will always provide plenty of interest to the collector, and although in some respects the competitive aspect of the Geneva show is disappointing, it was well worth coming to see the display of the rare Swiss Cantonal stamps alone, and a few really remarkable collections of other countries. The finest lot is that of a Polish exhibitor W. de Rachmanow, of Warsaw, who shows a magnificent lot of the Zurich 4 rappen and 6 rappen, of 1843, including all the types, examples used on the letter, and the "retouched" type of the 6 rappen. Of the costly "double-Geneva" he shows this rarity in four styles, viz., unused, used, used on letter, and one used "interverti," that is to say, with the halves of two "doubles," right half of one double being se tenant, with the left half of the other. The use of the stamp in this condition was of course perfectly legitimate though it was very exceptional and pairs so used rank even higher than the "interverti."—Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly.

NEW STAMPS FOR MALTA.

Pleasing Designs, Depicting History of the Island.

Postage stamps from the island of Malta have always held an attraction for both young and old collectors, and the appearance of a new set of Malta adhesives is of peculiar interest. The stamps are known as the "Constitutional Series," being commemorative of the granting of the Constitution for Malta last year. The design retains the characteristic features of all the Malta stamps in exemplifying some of the historical traditions of the Knights Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem. They were selected after open competition among a number of artists and are of two types. One depicts a woman representing Malta, with the familiar cross on her breast and supporting with her right hand a ship's rudder. In the background are shown the rock of St. Elmo and a native fishing boat at sea. This design is used on the half-penny and the 1 and 6 penny values, which have recently been issued.

The second design, which appears on the 1 and 2 shilling values, shows, in the central panel, a helmetted figure of Britannia embracing her young sister, Malta, who holds an olive branch in her right hand. The frame is composed of Maltese crosses, with the Maltese shield in the lower left corner.

The stamps of Malta have always been well designed and printed, a fact which has enhanced their popularity, and the majority of them are obtainable at reasonable prices. From 1860 to 1885 there was only one stamp in use, the half-penny, yellow, bearing a profile of Queen Victoria. It was used for local postage. Various printings changed the color slightly, varying from yellow to buff, brown-orange and a shade, which is the rarest, known as carmine-buff.

Malta joined the Postal Union in 1884, and on Jan. 1, 1885, a new series of stamps appeared bearing the Queen's portrait in frames of different design. The original half-penny design was retained, but its color was changed to green. The rarest stamp in this series is the imperforate 4-penny brown. By mistake a single sheet of this value was placed on sale without being perforated. It was first discovered in 1893, when a police official, noticing the imperforate stamp, showed it to a collector, and the latter went at once to the Post Office and succeeded in buying the remainder of the sheet. A fine, unused pair is in the collection of the King of England. Its present market value is about $100.

Five beautiful pictorial designs were adopted from 1899 to 1901. On the farthing stamp is a view of Valetta Harbor; a Gozo fishing boat appears on the 4-penny value; the 5-penny shows an ancient galley of the Knights of Malta; on the 2-shilling 6-penny stamp is an allegorical figure of Malta, while the 10-shilling stamp depicts the shipwreck of St. Paul on the island that was called Malta. St. Paul is shown with his right arm upraised, having just shaken off the viper. These stamps remained in use up to the present year. Since 1901 several values have been issued with portraits of King Edward and King George.

Fred Melville of London tells an interesting story of the purchased 1-penny stamp overprinted on the 2½-penny stamp in 1902. On one stamp in each sheet an error occurred in spelling the word penny, "pnney." It soon attracted the interest of local collectors, and the postmaster, on learning of the rare error, entered into the speculation by carefully removing all of the misspelled penny stamps from the remaining sheets. For the benefit of future collectors and to minimize the chances of being counterfeited, he placed a small red ink mark on the back of each stamp. The postmaster's stamp speculation came to the ears of the higher officials and he was removed from office. These errors are now worth about $5.—N. Y. Times.

EDITORIAL.

On October 1st, 1922, Washington released the latest news of the impending stamps of which so much has been written. Seeking the news value in the set, the newspapers tell that the new eleven cent stamp will be in blue and will have the portrait of President Hayes as its design; and that fittingly it will be placed on sale at Fremont, Ohio, on October 4th, on the occasion of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of the last president in the '70's. We do not need to tell our dear class about President Hayes, but if we were to say anything it would have to be in the vein now being worked so industriously by historians, as follows: Rutherford B. Hayes was placed in the presidential chair in 1876, by the Republicans, who said that he had won hands down but the Democrats said that he was seated by "Hands up!" Anyhow, for a time, the Demmies thought they had elected Tilden, the opponent of Hayes, who became known as the Tee-Totaler President, as he would not serve even the customary wine at the diplomatic dinners and rollickings at Washington, a fact that gave rise to Senator Vest's expression, "the water flowed like champagne." The five cent stamp with Roosevelt's features will be ready for sale on Oct. 27th, Roosevelt's birthday, and "the new fifty cent stamp with a picture of the Arlington amphitheater and the tomb of the unknown soldier will be sold on Armistice day." There is no thirteen cent stamp in the set to which two new denominations have been added, the fourteen cent and the twenty-five cent.

Our informant, who said that two of the stamp designs would be a picture of Niagara Falls and the tomb of the unknown soldier at Arlington amphitheater, said that the plates were all ready for printing and that there would be no delay in producing the stamps when the command to go was heard. In our opinion, the new set will create much comment and be a means of focusing the thoughts of the people on stamps and their immense importance in many ways; and here and there the line of thought will lead so far that it will make contact with the collecting current. The columns of comments and criticisms that in the aggregate will appear in the newspapers will be many and in some of the reviews there will be references to stamp collectors.

We have received a letter from one of our best collectors who prefers to remain anonymous, that is about the first of the communications that reverse the rule, that we have got. We reduce the length of the letter in the following sentences but we are careful not to soften the statements of our critic, as follows: Why not let philately grow by reason of its own merit and not try to force the issue? A campaign of advertising financed by contributions from the professionals is a cut-and-dried proceeding that seems to slap sentiment in the face. I can understand that it is not advisable to hide our light under a bushel but to preach so stertorously the necessity of getting publicity by hook or crook, is to me, I say frankly, cheapening and is not inspiring, by any sophistry. I should like to know if you really think that this publicity cry is not a staged effect. Even the optimistic claims that the value of my stamps advances in ratio to the number of converts may be turned about as an objection in that I shall have to pay more for the stamps that I have not acquired, as yet.

It is apparent that the "booster" is made the receiver-general of an assortment of whacks recently by clever writers who find it easy to lampoon him but, nevertheless, we believe that the philatelic booster is a more engaging agent than the clan generally, as collectors have been the ones, as a rule, who have raised their voices to proclaim stamps to the multitude. Those who have not been interested in a monetary sense have done most of this work thus far, as we do not need to say that the dealers, so far as concerted action is concerned, do not seem to be alive to the advantage of spending a bit of money for something that should return good dividends. Yet they will get together some time in the future, as their blindness is not that of those who will not ever see.

The basis for the urge for publicity is a wish on the part of collectors to share with others a pleasure that is lessened in no way, if it is not heightened, by recommending it to others. By bringing stamps as the objects of collection to the attention of the public, seed is sown that may grow into flower, as it is not to be gainsaid that there are many outsiders with the same mental inclinations as our own who will interest themselves in collecting, if the subject is brought persistently to their attention. To use the words of our correspondent, philately has merit, but that fact alone does not absolutely ensure growth, especially in this day when advertising is a force used to advance almost everything that depends upon mass, or for that matter, class favor for sustenance. If any pursuit, profession, or what you will, is to thrive, advertising will prove a lever and the astute collector knows that philately will be elbowed aside by other vocations if it is not held to its course by the strength of numbers. An article or purpose that has merit is the one that best may be advertised and if we trusted to the natural accretion of philately without any general publicity, we should revert to the dark ages in stamp collecting. It is wilful waste not to advertise philately, which may so well stand advertising, and no public-spirited collector or dealer would take a position antagonistic to this freedom.

What we want to do is to so standardize stamp collecting as a recognized occupation or pursuit as to make it unnecessary to have to explain to the wondering or incredulous outsider what philately is or how it may furnish the foundation for a business or serious pastime, as you wish. This may be accomplished by authentic and correctly conceived accounts of stamps and the collecting of them in the prints that have a wide general circulation. The stamp paper is equipped only in a minor way to play any considerable part in making converts. We are on the road to better things in familiarizing the non-collectors with stamps as affording a logical scope for collecting, as a number of publications of highest grade have taken philatelic matter, but not only the elect should be told the stories of stamps, but the great body of just folks should be depended upon for the greatest results in recruits for the ranks of philately. It is significant that the question of publicity for stamp collecting is deriving so much attention and after the usual preliminary periods of theorizing on the subject are over, it is certain that trained minds will try a hand at directing stamp publicity in order that it may hit the mark without too many twists and turns.

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

Dr. H. A. Davis, secretary of the American Philatelic Society, has written a booklet that is somewhat novel in philatelic bibliography. He combines sentiment and fact in his "U. S. 1887, 3 Cent Vermilion," and we place sentiment first because of the large share it has in the story. The result is that this autobiographical prelude to the serious pages of the book gives the work a character that is remarkable in a stamp monograph or study. As for the heart interest, we take it that it "is a personal, a direct impression of life" and that its value "is greater or less according to the intensity of its impression." Each reader must be his own judge of this incursion into the field that is not cultivated ordinarily by the philatelic writer. The three cent vermilion is considered in all its aspects and about all that may be said of this sturdy stamp that is so true to type is given in the book. He views the stamp from all angles, and in cancellations he is thorough. Dr. Davis shows how sympathetic study brings out all the latent possibilities of a stamp that seem to deviate but little from the normal, and to those who have seen the three cent vermilion from the day of its issue, thirty-five years ago, Dr. Davis' study seems to be the last word in analysis. The booklet is well printed and the cover design is good.

DRAWING THE LINE.

(We deem it wise to reprint the following from "Scott's Monthly Journal." It is interesting enough for us to give it the benefit of the widest circulation possible. It is the dictum of the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. in connection with numerous issues of stamps that have no proper place in a stamp catalog.—W. O. W.)

It is to be regretted that many collectors know only one publication, the catalogue. It is thought to be humorous to refer to it as the stamp collector's bible but sometimes the statement is quite correct. It is the only book on the subject of stamps that he knows and he accepts everything in it as "gospel truth." He buys things because they are listed in the catalogues, assuming that the respectability and desirability of the stamps are thereby guaranteed. The responsibility thus placed on the makers of catalogues is great.

For a long time we have felt that catalogues and albums were growing too large and that many things that were unworthy were finding place in them. Many years ago, when the list of the world's stamp issue could be printed in a few pages, every addition was welcome. A stamp prepared but not put in issue was as much appreciated as one that had done regular service. Even locals and essays were sought to add numbers and variety to collections. Today things have changed and, with so much to choose from, serious collectors desire only that which is worth while. Things made to sell are not welcome but efforts to foist them on us are being made all the time. Too many poverty-stricken and unscrupulous governments have learned that postage stamps offer an easy source of revenue and do not hesitate to get all the money they can in that way. So long as dealers buy their stuff and the catalogues help to make a market by listing it, these governments will continue to grind it out.

Even when we have known that an issue was speculative and made solely for mercenary reasons, it has been argued that the fact that some copies had been passed through the mails showed that the stamps could and did pay postage and, therefore, the issue must be accepted as legitimate. We do not deny that we have sometimes accepted such conclusions. Many such claims are based on sets of stamps that have been struck on covers and cancelled by an obliging or mercenary clerk. Some of these covers are not even addressed and many of them never went anywhere or did the slightest postal duty. It is quite time to reject such manufactured evidence and to accept only stamps that can be shown to have done their work regularly.

We have decided to try to relieve our catalogue of at least a few unnecessary and undesirable things. As a beginning we shall not list stamps issued for propaganda or advertising purposes. Nor shall we list stamps with overprints that do not alter the face value of the stamps, their mode or place of use. We have in mind such issues as those for the Malay-Borneo exhibition, the Costa Rica coffee sacks and the Salvador stamps overprinted "Centenario." In 1897, there was a Congress of the Universal Postal Union at Washigton and, to mark the event, the then-current United States stamps were overprinted "Universal Postal Congress." This was an event of international importance but we have never considered that the overprinted stamps were entitled to a place in our catalogue. Is there any more reason that we should recognize the Italian stamps recently overprinted for a philatelic convention? We have not catalogued stamps with advertisements on the backs, as in New Zealand, for example, and we cannot see why those with advertisements on the face are any more worthy of recognition. We shall probably refer to such issues in notes in our catalogue so that collectors may be informed of their existence. They may then gather the stamps if they choose but we shall not tempt them to buy the things by listing and pricing them.

We realize that this is only a very small beginning but we shall try to advance the work by exercising great care in listing future issues and, in the course of time, we may work backward and apply the pruning knife to things already in the catalogue. We may seem arbitrary in some of our acts and, doubtless, we shall make mistakes but we feel it is time to begin doing something to stem the flood of unnecessary issues. If collectors, dealers and the makers of catalogues would decide to recognize only stamps that meet postal needs and reject all that are unnecessary or made for mercenary purposes it should have a salutary effect on the output and result in a healthier condition for philately.

A GREAT WAR COLLECTION.

Quite recently the Beverly office of the WEEKLY was favored with a call from Charles S. Patteson, a business man who has travelled quite extensively throughout the United States. He had with him several volumes of a most interesting collection, consisting exclusively of stamps incident to the great world war and its aftermath—supplying the postal needs of occupied areas and new countries; issued in behalf of the Red Cross, charity and relief of soldiers' dependents; for purposes of taxation; to commemorate notable events; for use of cities and sections set aside for plebiscites or under mandates decreed by the Treaty of Versailles; in celebrations of victory and peace; necessitated by various emergencies resulting from the vicissitudes of war.

The collection is arranged by subjects or classifications (and naturally, under each, by countries in their alphabetical order), as follows:—Occupation, Military, Red Cross and Charity, New and Reorganized Countries, War Tax, Commemorative, Plebiscite and Mandate, Peace and Victory, Emergency.

Includes no variations, errors or other "freaks."

Mounted in several albums, on loose leaves, each about 7½ by 9½ inches in size, quadrille-ruled paper.

Each division introduced by a "frontispiece," a large block presenting a significant issue belonging to its particular classification.

Interleaved throughout with onion-skin paper on which is typewritten, facing the sets of stamps, complete statement of circumstances occasioning the issue, with date of emission and description of portraits, buildings and views illustrated in the stamps.

Embracing excellent representations of such rare and expensive issues as those of Albania, Azerbaijan, Baghdad, Batum, Bushire, Cameroons, Far Eastern Republic, German East Africa, New Britain, Samoa, Siberia, Syria, Thrace, Togo, etc.

Involving more than two years' effort, study and research———also purchases from about ninety dealers located in no less than twenty-four cities of the United States called on personally in quest of "wants."

Collection now numbers about 4,500 varieties, all unused, with original gum, including 111 sets of Occupation (80 complete), every War Tax (British and Portuguese Colonies) stamp listed in Scott's catalogue, and close to all Military, Mandate and Plebiscite and Peace and Victory issues. At present virtually 85 per cent complete.

THE DICTIONARY.

This handsome well-bound book of 240 large pages is now ready for delivery. It has been six years in the making. Price. $2.00

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—I am pleased to be able to inform our readers that some of the denominations of the new series of postage stamps are about to make their appearance and that it is expected that the entire series will be on sale previous to the opening of the new year. Correspondence received this morning from the Department contains much of interest regarding this issue which from all information available will be a very beautiful series.

"Post Office Department
Third Assistant Postmaster General
Washington.
Division of Stamps.
September 30, 1922.

Mr. Philip H. Ward, Jr.,
P. O. Box 4216, Germantown,
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania,

My dear Mr. Ward:

In accordance with my promise to you of recent date concerning information about the new issue of postage stamps proposed by this Department, I am attaching hereto a notice for release in Monday morning's press.

The die-proofs and master dies have been completed and approved for the 11-cent, 25-cent and 50-cent stamps. It is hoped to have the entire issue available by January 1st, and if you will kindly bring this to the attention of collectors through your weekly Chronicle in MEKEEL'S, it will be appreciated.

In order that the stamps can be made available at the Fremont, Ohio, post office on October 4th, Mr. M. L. Eidness, Jr., Superintendent of the Division of Stamps, has been designated to proceed to Fremont on October 3rd to deliver these stamps to the Postmaster on the morning of Hayes' 100th anniversary celebration. This action is made necessary because of the fact that the first stamps printed will not be available until the morning of the 3rd. Mr. Eidsness will act as a special representative of this Department in presenting to Mr. Scott R. Hayes, son of former President Hayes, a beautiful mounted die-proof of his revered father, autographed by the Postmaster General.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) W. IRVING GLOVER,
Third Assistant Postmaster General."

The enclosure with the above letter was used last week as a special news feature on page one.

From the information given it looks as if we are going to have a most attractive new series and their appearance will be awaited with great interest by the philatelic public. Before these notes go to press the 11-cent denomination will have been issued in both Fremont, Ohio, the birthplace of President Hayes and in Washington, at the office of the Philatelic Stamp Agent. In presenting this series the Department is taking a new departure in that scenery, animals and the like will appear on our regular issues. Heretofore these have been found on commemorative issues only. We are not as yet advised as to colors but imagine that these have not as yet been definitely decided upon.

It is to be regretted that such men as Hamilton, Jackson, Marshall, Webster and Clay have been omitted and that those of Hayes, Garfield and the like who have done little for the country other than hold the office of Chief Executive should take their place. The selection generally, however, is most satisfactory and the Post Office Department is to be congratulated for giving us something different.

Lincoln comes back again after a lapse of thirteen years and we hope he, along with Washington and Franklin, will remain henceforth forevermore. Jefferson and Monroe certainly are worthy of the honor and while Jefferson has been with us many times before Monroe appears on a regular issue for the first time, although we find him on the commemorative issue of 1904. Martha Washington is the one woman who stands out supreme in American history and the women, God bless them, should certainly be represented. Grant of course deserves recognition and no doubt Cleveland and Roosevelt will rank among our greatest Presidents. Why they omitted old Andy Jackson I cannot say unless it is due to the fact that he was a great Democrat as well as a great American. Hayes never did anything that history will remember and I imagine our only reason for having him was because he happened to be born just a hundred years ago. We had Ben. Harrison for the same reason about twenty years back.

BRAZIL.—The following are translations from newspaper cuttings sent us by our Brazilian agent:—

"With regard to the request presented by the Chairman of the Executive Committee for the Commemoration of the Centenary of Independence, the Minister of Communications has authorised the printing of commemorative stamps of 100, 200 and 300 reis in conformity with the types selected as the result of the competition arranged by the Postmaster-General. The stamps will be placed in circulation on the 7th September next.

"The Postmaster-General has decided to issue new ordinary postage stamps of eighty and forty reis. The 40 reis stamp will represent a landscape, showing in the foreground a husbandman harvesting in a field which stretches away to rising hills, over which the rising sun sheds its rays. On the left-hand side, above, appears the word, 'Agricultura,' followed by the word, 'Brazil,' horizontally, in white letters. At the bottom of the stamp, on the left there is a small shield which extends to the r… containing the value in figures and … word 'Reis.' ps that have just been placed on in this colony. They are of two gns, the pence issues being smaller e the higher values are of larger . The values up to and including 10d show the profile likeness of the g with the Crown above the frame. the top are the words "Postage & enue" and at the base the words of e with the figure in the lower right ier. The name of the country ap-s to the left of the portrait and w is the native elephant with a palm in the distance. In the shilling es the likeness of the King is in the re with the Crown above and the ery at the sides. Below are views the native trees and two elephants aring one on each side. The figures alue are at the base with figures in lower corner and the name of the ny just above within a frame. The es and colors are as follows: ½d n and black, 1d brown and black, carmine and black, 2d blue, grey black, 2½d orange and black, 3d marine and black, 4d carmine and k (old watermark), 5d sage green black, 6d claret and black, 7½d on and black, 10d blue and black, purple and black on yellow, 2sh et and black on blue, 2sh6d deep n and black, 3sh purple and black, brown and black, 5sh blue green black on new yellow paper, 10sh green and black. All of the pence e with the exception of the 4d and are on script watermarked paper. 1sh and 5sh are also of the old rmarked paper but the other shilling es are script.

REAT BRITAIN.—Mr. R. Roberts sends copy of the 9d in a new color, this ting being of a nile green shade.

ALTA.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the wing additional values in the new 2sh 6d bright violet and black, 5sh ge yellow and blue, 10sh grey and brown and 1 pound black and ine. All are on the script water-ked paper.

r. Louis Carabott advises that owing e protests made by many philatelists local Minister of Posts has again ed on sale the 4d in the Constitution-t.

ICARAGUA.—The Economist Stamp advise that the 50c stamp of the 1921 set has been overprinted "R. de C. Vale un centavo" in three lines in black.

NORWAY.—This country is deserting the long-lived Posthorn type for its new 20 öre stamp, in which a return is made to the Lion of Type 4 placed in the upper left section on a solid background, with the name of the country below at left, and the value and word "Post" in three lines at bottom, right. The design is simple and dignified, and if the printer does justice to it should be quite effective. We are indebted to Mr. R. Johansen and another reader whose name we regret we have mislaid, for cuttings regarding this stamp.—Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Circular.

PORTUGUESE COLONIES.—L'Echo hints that Portugal is to wave the mailed fist in our faces by transforming her pretty and peaceful "Ceres" type into an armed figure of the Republic clad in coat of mail and armed with sword and buckler. All the more reason to fill up gaps in the "Ceres" type of the Colonies now, as there are many rare varieties of perf. and paper whose value is not yet sufficiently realized.—S. G. Monthly Circular.

PORT SAID (French P. O.)—Another new provisional arrives from Messrs. Whitfield King & Co., viz.:—8 millièmes on 20c. purple-brown. The surcharge is in black, in two lines.—Stamp Collecting.

RUSSIA.—Lt. Murray shows us the 10k blue arms type, on white wove paper, and with peculiar shiny yellow gum, which the Soviet Consulate at Constantinople declares to be a forgery. We will compare these with originals, and let our readers know the result. At first sight they would deceive most of us, though they are, of course, without the chalk-lines which distinguish the originals. —S. G. Monthly Journal.

SEYCHELLES.—The Postmaster informs us that he has received instructions to withdraw from sale all stamps on the old C. A. paper and destroy them by fire. All values of the current type will shortly be issued in new colours, when in all probability all stamps in the old colours with script watermark will also be burnt.—Whitfield King & Co.'s Bulletin.

TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO.—We understand the original printing of the 5s Script CA comprised only 6,300 copies, which had been used up by the end of May last. A 1½d denomination is foreshadowed.—Stamp Collecting.

URUGUAY.—Again we have to thank A. H. Davis, who writes from Buenos Aires:—

"Recently in Montevideo a shortage of 1c and 2c multa stamps was met by surcharging the 1c and 4c current type in the centre with a large letter 'T' within a broken triangle of a very similar type to the 'TAKSE' stamps of Albania. Only 500 copies of each value are supposed to have been surcharged.

"As already advised, a new set of multa stamps is appearing similar in type to the 1913-14 set but reduced in size."—Stamp Collecting.

MINNEAPOLIS PRECANCELS.

By GEO. E. DANIELSON.

The population of Minneapolis is about 400,000 and, therefore, precans are used generally by all large firms, of which there is a goodly number. The principal industry is milling, but here there is not apt to be much use for precans by the mills, although a great number of precans are used in sending out grain samples, etc., from the Chamber of Commerce post office.

Minneapolis precans are not as common as you might think, and it is rather hard to get a stock of them from the dealer's viewpoint because the post office (they have their own printing plant) has a varied set of electrotype plates which they change off about every six months. They have been using type V since around the first of the year, giving us this type in the 11 perforation for the first time. Now they have reverted to type IX, another double bar type. Single bars are not so plentiful.

The reason for this switching around of plates is, no doubt, to aid in checking up on the users of precans, as the local inspectors are very much afraid that users will get hold of the stamps and make them do extra duty. A precan with a design out of season would certainly arouse suspicion from firms which had recently laid in a supply of stamps, and the idea is a good one if it is as we suppose, for the average user is not apt to notice slight or even great differences in types. Going a step farther, how many people know what a precancel is?

Along with the cautious moves indulged in by the local authorities, they are not very anxious to sell precans higher than the 20c denomination and every once in a while they will tell you at the wholesale windows that they are not going to precancel any more fifty centers, but they let a few out now and then. This value will never be at all plentiful in any type, and the catalog prices should be higher. We have seen a few 50c type V, and with the stricter policy in force, it is not unlikely that this value will not be precancelled again in type V, so that it bids fair to be one of the scarcest Minneapolis precancels. The 13c type V is also another scarce one; the plate was not long in use in the perf. 11, and this may be our last chance to get them.

The Minneapolis precans are all quite free from speculation and strictest discipline is exercised in the printing department. There was a small scandal in the post office a few years ago, when as we have been told, one or two collectors pasted 100 cancelled stamps of various denominations (even Canadians, we are told) on a sheet of paper and had a friend at the post office to run them off with regular sheets. Soon after, there was a vacancy in that department, as there was a leak somewhere, or else the news was spread because the victim thought it was O. K. and didn't keep quiet.

Inverts and doubles are very scarce in the stamps which have come out during the past few years. We have seen perhaps as many of the late type V as anyone and only one of them was an invert. If discovered at the post office, this should be good for one demerit.

Orders here are to deface or destroy any Minneapolis precans on parcels or cartons which are used for returning goods to the city. For instance, on repairs to milking machine parts; a request comes in from a customer for a new part while his old one is being repaired. The new part is sent with precancelled stamps, and the customer immediately sends in his old part in the same carton when he gets it. There you have a carton coming back to Minneapolis with Minneapolis precans.—Precancel Gazette.

A NEW P. O. LABOR SAVING DEVICE.

The Worcester, Mass., post office is to be equipped with the first circular mechanical facing-table to be placed in any post office in the United States. This table, which costs about $2,000, is a labor saving device around which eight men can easily sort mail. A motor drive carrier around the edge of the tab conveys the letters to slots where th are sorted according to size and stacke ready for the cancelling machines.

Postmaster James F. Healy is ver much interested in this device as it n only saves work for the employes b also reduces the expense of sorting th mail.

A BED RIDDEN DEALER.

Special Letter to the Winnipeg Tribune.

VANCOUVER—To lie on his bed for 12 years, unable to move hand or foot, or even to turn over, has been the fate of Albert E. Reeve, of 1850 Fifth ave. west, Vancouver. Despite this predicament, Reeve for several years now has been able to make a good living for himself and family. He does this without charity, for he loathes the suggestion of charity, without even calling to his assistance the sympathy that would naturally go to a man in his condition, for many persons with whom he does business never see him and know nothing of his personal experience.

The story of this man's remarkable achievement in the face of apparently overwhelming difficulties is an interesting and inspiring one, bearing out the axiom that where there is a will there is a way.

ROSE TO TOP.

Twelve years ago Reeve was chief accountant of the Canadian Pacific railway system from coast to coast. He was in his thirty-ninth year, stood 6 ft. 2 in., weighed 180 pounds, and had risen from a lowly position with the company to the top of the ladder in his vocation.

Without warning, he was stricken with a strange paralysis that allowed him only the use of his tongue, his eyes and his head. Other than these he could not move a muscle of his body. His case puzzled the best medical experts of Vancouver, Montreal and New York. Numerous tests were taken of his blood; doctors went over his body seeking for the cause of his malady. The case could not be diagnosed, for apparently nothing was wrong, excepting that he had paralysis.

Then, financially broke, and without a cent of income from any source, Reeve was taken to Vancouver to rejoin his family.

DETERMINED TO FIGHT.

One can imagine the tragedy through which he lived the first few months of his affliction. His wife, true to her sex, was the first to react to the new condition of the family fortunes. She went out seeking to take the place of the breadwinner. This but added to the stricken husband's misery. As he said, "I used to smile and try to be cheery during the daylight hours; but through the long nights I lay awake, shedding tears of despair and of rebellion against the thing that had come upon me. Then I determined to fight it out somehow, not to succumb but in some way to assume my responsibilities in life. I fought it out with my God and I won the first battle, for I conquered myself."

Reeve's first attempt to retrieve himself was in dictating three little booklets of verse to his wife. Their sale was meagre, but the man did not lose heart. One day a neighbor, knowing that in his youth he had been a stamp collector, brought him in a fair collection of rare stamps. It was propped up on the stand before his eyes and suddenly Reeve had an inspiration.

BECOMES STAMP MERCHANT.

His daughter resurrected his stamp catalogue. Under his direction she

MARKS STAMP CO.
TORONTO, Dept. W, CANADA

pasted up his stamps in new albums. Then word was sent to Prof. Eastman of the University of British Columbia, a stamp collector, that Reeve had a fine collection for sale. Eastman came and made the first purchase from Reeve, who now called himself a stamp merchant. He went away with a magnificent collection of 12,000 stamps for $300. Since that time this man from his couch has directed a business that sends correspondence to all parts of Canada and the United States, to Japan, India, Europe, any place where stamps are used. Since then he has gained a reputation as a square-dealing stamp merchant, reliable and knowing more about stamps, their history and their value, than most men in business.

His wife and his 14-year old daughter act as his secretaries and, while there is no fortune in the business, he is as least able to meet his obligations.

DISLIKES COMMISERATION.

One may enter Reeve's little room which acts as bedroom, office and living-room filled with the sympathy one would naturally feel for a man in his circumstances. But one soon falls under the charm of the man's conversation on his cheery philosophy of life, on stamps, on the topics of the day, and forgets that here is a man who has been unable to move hand or foot for 12 years. That, after all, is the greatest compliment one could pay him for he hates those who commiserate or who shower him with fulsome sympathy.

Reeve and his boy friends have wonderful talks about stamps. He tells them of the great events in history they call to mind; the advances in art, literature and science; the great men various issues bring to memory; the artistry in stamp-making; the general progress of the world depicted in the faded pieces of paper. Business men, professional men and working men, too, also stamp collectors—for their numbers are legion—also visit the workroom, and then the pleasant conversations are carried along on a higher scale and all leave better for the hour they have spent and thrilled with the indomitable spirit of this remarkable man.

EARNS LIVELIHOOD.

Reeve talks interestingly on many subjects, but he is at his best on stamps. He studies them constantly. To him they are personal things, not to be lightly regarded. He loves them for what they represent, for the part they have played in his life as an anchor to a livelihood, to the charm through them life still holds for him.

This expert's particular fancy in stamps are the early Canadian issues and all the British colonials. He has a contempt for the modern European stamps, which have been issued in such tremendous quantities since the war, and, largely through his influence, many collectors throughout the British Empire have been induced to devote their energies to collecting the British colonials, in which field, he says, there are sufficient to keep any ordinary collector busy for the remainder of his or her lifetime.—Winnipeg Tribune.

A NEW AIR MAIL FRANK.

We have received a letter from Raymond V. Bahr of Springfield, Ill., which bears upon the envelope an airmail marking in purple, consisting of two circles, one within the other and between the circles are the words "U. S. Air Mail." There are wings to the right and left of the circles which bear in the center in large letters "U. S." We quote from Mr. Bahr's letter:—

"I am forwarding this letter to you via Air Mail Service, from Springfield, Illinois, to Chicago, thence via the regular route. This service is Special on account of the Illinois State Fair. The Air Ship will leave here about two o'clock Saturday afternoon, September 23rd, 1922. This will be the first service ever put in force and will be for this one trip only.

From Chicago to Springfield, Illinois, there was special service leaving Chicago about ten A. M. on Sept. 21st, 22nd, and 23rd, only three days. The mail on these trips was cancelled with the special rubber stamp. Just thought this information might interest you."

—From Austin, Texas, comes the following new postal cancellation:—"Central Texas Fair and San Sam, Austin, Oct. 30 to Nov. 4."

—A. A. Wasserscheid of New York sends us a cancellation from Greenville, S. C., as follows:—"Fifth Southern Textile Exposition, Oct. 19-25, 1922."

STAMPS OF THE U. S. LETTER EXPRESS.

By ELLIOTT PERRY.

The statement credited to the great Napoleon that "history is a lie agreed upon" is occasionally true in a philatelic sense and the work of identifying and establishing the true character of emissions that have enjoyed the admiration of philatelists without meriting even their respect has not wholly ceased. Philately may be commended however, because in the period since stamp collecting became sufficiently prevalent to be classed as a hobby—a period hardly longer than the threescore and ten years of man's allotted span—so many stamps that purported to be what they were not have been relegated to their proper place, and so few whose position is doubtful still cling to reputations they never deserved. These latter are indeed frauds ancient but not honorable.

The present article deals with an issue of stamps that apparently has never deserved nor received the confidence of collectors and in all probability never will become otherwise than it is believed to be today—quite fraudulent. No firm, business or enterprise calling itself the United States Letter Express, or any proper abbreviation or modification of that title is known to have existed anywhere in the United States. The early writers who were familiar with both genuine and fraudulent issues of the various Local Posts mention neither this express nor the stamps purporting to have been issued by it. Apparently it was not known to Kline in Philadelphia as early as 1865, and the Moens printing of Coster's work on the U. S. local stamps, (Brussels, 1882), is also silent regarding it. Coster's book does mention and illustrate a bogus emission in the design of a mail-box inscribed "Express—U. S. Post—PA 5 ID" but this is only too palpably an imitation of the design used by Clark & Co., and by Brady & Co., of New York.

The United States Letter Express labels are all perforated—a feature strongly indicating they were not made in the period before 1860 when the local posts were at the height of their activity. They may have been printed as late as 1880, or even much later, but there is no way now of establishing the date of their manufacture unless a chemical test of the paper on which they are printed might determine when the paper itself was made.

Yet, in spite of all that can be said against them, there remains a very remote possibility these labels are part of an issue that was in actual but very limited use, or was manufactured and intended for legitimate use as postage stamps.

Many of the reprinted and counterfeited local post stamps, perhaps including some of those printed in fancy and unissued colors, were not made nor sold fraudulently. They were made for "space-fillers" of rare and almost unobtainable stamps at a time, (1860-1880), when there were comparatively few stamps in the whole world for collectors to gather and were openly sold for just what they were, imitations, at nominal prices. The bulk of the supply came from Hussey, Kline, Taylor and one or two other dealers and in its restricted sphere was a "quantity business." It had to be at the prices charged.

This is why most old collections made in America and some collections made elsewhere so frequently contain an assortment of local post stamps, few of which are apt to be genuine originals. If the reader were to examine a hundred such assortments, from as many old collections, he would immediately note a marked similarity—75% to 90% of the stamps would be the same in each assortment. The reason, of course, is perfectly obvious, but the point the writer wishes to emphasize is that the U. States Letter Express stamps are nearly always missing. Not one such old assortment in a hundred contains any of the "stamps" which are the subject of this article. Is it not strange that if these labels are an entirely fraudulent issue, made for no purpose other than to swindle stamp collectors, they are rarely found?

Furthermore, the "space-filler" business required that the "stamps" be produced at little expense and one reason, if not the chief reason, why the reprint and counterfeit locals usually occur in other colors and on other colors of

TESTIMONIALS UNSOLICITED

New Order enclosed. I "cleaned up" on last packet I received from you (1000 variety) already realizing more than I paid after securing 400 varieties for myself.—B. Buchanan. Liverpool, Ohio.

Well satisfied with 2000 packet. Secured 900 stamps for my collection, selling the rest to my friends. Have already cleared over $5.00.—A. Wahlberg, Oakland, Calif.

Very much pleased with 1000 packet. Order enclosed for a 2000. I was greatly surprised at the quality of the stamps in the packet.—F. C. Elmes, Berwick, Pa.

Use bonds sent as payment for 10,000 variety packet. The packet proved highly satisfactory as a basis for a general collection.—F. M. Bigelow, Chicago, Ill.

Received 1000 packet some days ago and have had a fine time looking them over. Secured 250 new stamps for my collection of 3700, traded 43 for other new varieties and replaced 100 that were better specimens than mine. I never saw any stamps in such good condition, not a poor one in the lot. Order for 2000 packet enclosed.—T. Herrick, City Treasurer, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

H. F. COLMAN

paper beside the colors approximately imitating the genuine stamps is that sometimes designs of several different stamps were drawn on one stone or transferred to it and each sheet printed from such a stone contained not 25 or 50 or more reproductions of one certain stamp, but contained one or more reproductions of several stamps. A block of four of these imitations might consist of one stamp the original of which had been printed and used in New York, another from Philadelphia, another from Chicago and still another from New Orleans! This method of reproduction enabled the printer to reproduce many different stamps from only a few lithographic stones and thereby greatly reduced the cost of printing them, but also resulted in the appearance of many "varieties" that do not correspond to the original stamps in color or in color of paper.

As will be seen later, the U. States Letter Express stamps were produced in a manner very different from that used for most of the imitation and reprint locals and although the method used was less expensive than line engraving, only an issue of considerable magnitude could have justified the expense involved.

If issued legitimately, or intended so to be issued, what date can be assigned to them? The earliest date would be about 1860, for perforation of stamps had come into extensive use by then and the efforts of the general government to suppress the local posts had not yet been completely successful. If genuine, these stamps may have been intended for use by a concern doing or contemplating a metropolitan business of carrying both letters and packages, hence the high and low values, or by a concern in the Far West where both a local (low rate) and distance (high rate) business might be carried on.

Local posts appeared spasmodically in the '70s and '80s only to be quickly suppressed by the government, whose monopoly of the postal service became firmly established soon after 1860. Any concern attempting to do what the U. S. L. E. lables indicate that enterprise, if it ever existed at all, expected doing, would have been put out of business very quickly during any time when it is reasonable to believe their stamps were made. Possibly the letters U—S in the upper corners of the stamps and the abbreviation "U.STATES" appearing on each of them hastened their suppression or made their issue for use extremely unwise.

The stamps are produced by lithography on yellowish white wove paper, unwatermarked. The sheet probably contained a single pane of forty subjects arranged in five horizontal rows of eight, but may have contained two such panes placed one above the other. The individual subjects are scant 25mm wide by 30mm tall, with 2½ to 3mm between them each way. The pane measured 8½ inches long by not quite 6½ inches tall. The different denominations were all on the one pane and were arranged in the following rather peculiar manner:—

Second row—TWO CENTS.
Third row—TEN CENTS.
Fourth row—FIVE CENTS.
Fifth row—TWENTY CENTS.

It will at once be seen that horizontal pairs always contain the same denomination while vertical pairs always contain different denominations. This arrangement may have been accidental or may have been purposely made so that certain rates, viz., 3c, 12c, 15c and 25c, could be covered by the use of unsevered pairs.

The various denominations were produced from a single design. This is proven by the recurrence of certain flaws or other marks which appear on all specimens seen. A break in the inner frame lines where they should meet at the lower right corner of the lower right corner square is one of these characteristics.

The label for the denomination was probably left blank on the original design. The five denominations were produced by taking transfers from the original design and adding the proper denomination to each of the five. In making these transfers certain imperfections resulted and the next step was to touch up some of these. Each of the five completed designs was then reproduced seven times to make a horizontal row of eight subjects. The modifications and imperfections on each denomination were reproduced together with other parts of the design and this makes plating any individual specimen a task of considerable difficulty even when the impression is clear. The design, execution and printing are rather crude work but the work of duplicating each denomination was so extremely well done that every flaw or mark by which the eight varieties of each denomination might be identified is usually found on all of them whenever the printing is good enough to permit these marks to be seen at all.

The marks peculiar to each denomination are:—

One Cent—Upper right corner square is defective; the inner frame line at the top appears bent downward over the letter S.

Two Cents—Left side of the lower right corner square missing except for a small piece that resembles a period after the S of CENTS.

G. B. BALDANZA, Box 102, Fort Lee, N. J.

Ten Cents—Horizontal background over Washington's head partly re-drawn, also left end of curved lines forming label containing the word LETTER. Inner frame line at left end of this label is badly broken. Right serif at top of L of LETTER missing.

Five Cents—An irregular dot of color in the background between Washington's chin and the left inner frame.

Twenty Cents—A narrow blur of color in the background running diagonally from Washington's forehead toward the first E of LETTER.

On all specimens seen the perforation gauges 12½ and is usually clean cut. The left, right and top sides of each pane are imperforate and therefore all the 1c stamps have a straight edge at top. The bottom edge of the pane was perforated as all specimens on the 20c stamp seen were perforated at the bottom. All positions on the pane have been seen except the two right hand corners which are occupied by No. 8 and No. 40 and are the end stamps in the 1c and 20c rows. The colors known are rose, green, orange, blue, and all denominations must exist or did exist in all four colors. The only color varieties not yet noted are the 20c in rose and in green.

Regarding the scarcity of these near-stamps; the writer has seen less than one hundred copies all told and no copy not previously noted by him has come to his attention for about seven years.

FRATCHER TAKES 5,000 LINES.

W. F. Fratcher, proprietor of the Michigan Stamp & Coin Co., Detroit, Mich., has just contracted for 5,000 lines of space in the WEEKLY to be used during the year beginning November 1. This means that the company will make an extensive campaign along philatelic lines. Our business relations with Mr. Fratcher have extended over a number of years and we are pleased to announce this business move upon his part. He is one of the dealers who is noted for promptness in dealing with correspondents.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.

In sending us the new locally printed ½d Unpaid, Mr. L. Gillen states that he expects the London printing of the same value is likely to be good as very small quantities were used. We should imagine that this applies to used copies only, as it seems to be possible to get unused without any exceptional trouble. The new ½d is much more satisfactory than the weak 1½d by the same printer. South African philatelists are sportsmen. We have more cuttings and notes from readers there than from any other part of the world, and we have to acknowledge the kindness of all those who sent us cuttings relating to the competition for new postage stamps. Twelve designs are asked for, which must be definitely associated with the Union of South Africa. In order to avoid overcrowding by the use of bi-lingual inscriptions, alternate values will have the inscriptions in English and Dutch respectively. The new series will consist of ½d, 1d, 2d, 3d, 4d, 6d, 1s, 1s 3d, 2s 6d, 5s, 10s and £1 denominations. Mr. C. C. Smith states that 1s 3d stamps are no longer obtainable over the counter, being affixed to telegrams by the counter clerk, after having a hole punched through them in the bad old English way. Postally used copies of this value will not be plentiful.

In correction of above remarks re the ½d Due, Mr. G. W. Reynolds writes us:—

"I have much pleasure in enclosing herewith a complete sheet of the new ½d Postage Due, printed by the Government Printer, Pretoria. The only variety I have managed to discover in this value is in the first stamp of the 2nd row, in which you will observe a small dot to the left of the serif of the figure "1." This dot appears in every sheet I have so far examined, and I take it therefore as constantly recurring. In sheets of this value that I have so far examined, I have observed that the space between the roulettes vary; in some sheets the spaces between are fairly constant, while in others I have found the space varying from 19½ mm. to 21 mm. In the 1½d value, a sheet of which I sent you a few weeks ago, I have known that the distance between the roulettes varies from 20 mm. to 21½ mm.

"The new ½d Postage Due was first issued on the 6th June, 1922, to Stellenbosch, Britstown, and a few other post offices. The 1½d was first issued on the 3rd June, 1922, to Cape Town and other post offices.

"It may interest you to learn that the De La Rue printing of the ½d Postage Due is now entirely exhausted, and the total quantity of this value received from the printers was 1553 sheets of 60. The ½d Due has always been a very difficult stamp for local philatelists to acquire, and now the stocks are exhausted this stamp should increase in value. The new 1d Postage Due, printed by the Government Printer, Pretoria, is expected to be issued in about two months' time.

"Supplies of the 3d with the colour changed to blue, have been received in Pretoria, but these have not yet been issued, since the authorities wish to dispose of their stocks of 1½ first."—Gibbons' Monthly Circular.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—We have had word from Ross O'Shaughnessy that he is "having lots of fun hunting the Irish Free State errors on their native heath." He expects to leave for the continent again, starting at the Netherlands and proceeding to Italy.

—Bela Szekula has informed us that he has arrived in New York City "with the most wonderful rarities and collections" from Europe.

—Mr. A. C. Zimmermann of the publication department of the Scott Stamp & Coin Company, New York City, was a delegate of one of the junior organizations to the recent Grand Army of the Republic national encampment at Des Moines, Iowa. Mr. Zimmermann knows his business well and with our feeble voice we say that he is the right man in the right place. Mr. Zimmermann cannot see any clouds on the philatelic business horizon this season, speaking in terms of albums and other things closest to his heart.

—Mr. N. E. Carter, Elkhorn, Wisconsin, pays periodical visits to Chicago, where he renews old acquaintance and scouts around for preferred stock. Mr. Carter speaks of the zippiness that now characterizes the stamp market, after the month of unseasonably hot weather.

—Here is something that we welcome with a whoop. "Melville's Philatelic Press-List," compiled by that good and great philatelist, Mr. Fred J. Melville, London, for the use of "publicity and propaganda committees," is a list of twenty pages, printed on gummed paper, giving the names of all the publications devoted to philately, throughout the world. There are nearly two hundred labels with the names and addresses; and the price asked, one shilling, is a mere nothing in comparison with the convenience afforded by the list. An examination of the names on the list shows that especial care has been taken to give the information correctly; and that the compilation is up-to-date is indicated by the inclusion of the names of the very latest publications. Post free, 1 shilling, 1 penny. London Agent: H. F. Johnson, 44 Fleet St., 4 E. C., London, England.

—M. J. Fenster has removed his business to 790 Riverside Drive, New York City. Signs of prosperity, surely! Will correspondents please note the change of address. His advt. of Sept. 9 brought in 56 replies.

—Frank A. Goldsmith has shown us three new advertising cancellations, as follows:—from Lancaster, Pa. "Electrical Show, Lancaster, Oct. 18-19-20-21, 1922"; also from Stockton, Cal. "Visit Yosemite National Park, Open All Year," and the third from Kansas City, Mo. "American Royal Live Stock Show, Nov. 18-25, 1922."

—Max Beck, 438 E. 70 St., N. Y. City, would be glad to procure the name of a party from whom an order was received with only the street address, 834 41 St., Milwaukee, Wis.

—R. E. Depue has shown us a Pomona, Cal., advertising cancellation which reads as follows:—"Los Angeles Co. Fair, Pomona, Calif. Oct. 17-21, 1922" in three lines.

—H. Preston Hoskins sends us a list of eight different cancellations received in a day's mail. Of one variety four different cities are represented and on another two. All have been mentioned in the WEEKLY previously. We must advise correspondents that we are not listing other than U. S. markings.

—From far and wide clippings have come to us dealing with the issue of the new 11c stamp at Fremont, O. A Detroit paper gives Herman W. Boers publicity in connection with the early receipt of the stamp and Mr. Koslowski informs us that at a meeting of the Michigan Stamp Club three covers bearing the stamp with date of issue brought $1.25 each. The members also had the pleasure of dividing a sheet amongst them.

—S. Hyman sends us a copy of the first number of the Russian Collector, the first philatelic journal published in Soviet Russia. It contains an article stating that the postal rates were increased July 1, as follows, on foreign mail:—postcard 270,000 rubles, ordinary letter 450,000 rubles, registered letter 900,000 rubles. Mr. Hyman also submits a specimen of the new 11c Hayes stamp for our inspection.

—We have been favored by the Stamp Shoppe of Washington, D. C., with two photographs of the interior of their offices. One shows Mr. Mason at his desk and the other Mr. McFadden, b being submerged with business. We knowledge the courtesy, and the pho graphs will forthwith grace the walls the Beverly office.

—The Eric Verrill postage star were sold at sheriff's sale in New Hav September 15. The stamps were s exactly as the sheriff received them, two lots. Before calling for bids an ventory of the lots was read, which t little however as to the real nature the stamps placed on sale. J. How Williams of Hartford made the first only bid of the day, $300, and bec owner of the property. Ten other sta folk were present, but they did not t kindly to buying unseen goods. H. Bradley who submits this informat encloses a copy of a 2c parcel sta issued by the Connecticut Co. on trolley express lines. The stamp printed in green and has the figure 2 circles in the four corners.

—Stephen G. Rich, who recently wr on the stamps of the Union of So Africa, has secured leave of abse from the Concord State Normal Sch of Athens, W. Va., where he has b head of the department of chemis He is now studying for the degree Ph.D. in the School of Education New York University. Mr. Rich gra ated at this university with the deg of B. S. and membership in Phi B Kappa, in 1914.

—The library of New York Univers at University Heights, Bronx, New Y City, is now in charge of Professor T Jones of that university, who is a p atelist. Dr. Jones has recently b making efforts to secure for the libr the collection of philatelic literature a New York collector; the library give the collection a separate room, the donor is to be honorary cura The library of philately thus establis will be accessible to the public for c sultation. The philatelic library in qu tion is reported to consist of over 1,0 volumes, practically all previous to 19 —In the issue of October 7, the na of H. M. MacLean was printed H. MacLean. They are both one and same party. The mistake was ours.

—The address plate in our mailing partment designed for Silas Weather Medina, O., reads "Silver Weather Our friend rightly protests at this de mation of his name and very respectfu asks, "Has the office boy been play with the addressing machine?"

—The office of the WEEKLY v favored recently with a visit from Durell of Worcester, Mass., secretary the Worcester Agricultural Society.

THE END OF THE YEAR.

We close the subscription record of the past year with a sense of gratitude to the many who have participated in the work of securing new subscribers. To the Fennell Stamp Co. with 460 subscriptions sent in especial credit is due. Allen Sears follows with 325 and L. B. Dover with 214. These three firms have thus furnished us with practically one thousand new subscriptions. We cannot name individually and express our thanks to all who have co-operated, but assure those whose opportunities have not been great that we appreciate such effort as has been put forward in our behalf. There has never been a year when the WEEKLY has served philately to the extent that it has during the past twelve months. There are so many dealers who do not have the time or inclination to bother with our subscription forms that it makes us doubly appreciative of the work done by our friends.

A new roll of honor commences next month and we covet the co-operation of every reader of our paper. It is quite true that we are compelled to look to the dealers for the larger results and we shall offer prizes to the three who lead in securing new subscriptions in the coming year. The contestant securing highest honors will be given a half page of advertising, and the next two will be given a quarter page each. The totals from Oct. 1 of last year to Oct. 1, 1922, are as follows:—

U. S. 24c INVERT AIRPLANE REPRINT.

Our readers will be very much interested in the following correspondence which has passed between Eugene Klein of Philadelphia and the Post Office Department at Washington. The following letter was written by Mr. Klein to the Third Assistant Postmaster General:—

"From a foreign stamp journal just received, I quote the following: 'Not least among the numerous international contributions to the Brazilian Centenary Exhibition, which opened at Rio de Janerio a few days ago, is the inclusion of displays of postage stamps by several Governments, including that of the United States. For the occasion the latter has brought upon itself doubtful renown by specially manufacturing to complete the exhibit of U.S.A. stamps, two "reprints' of the rarest of all aeroplane adhesives—the 24-cent red and blue of May, 1918, with centre inverted—a stamp with a "£150 look." One of these has been sent to Rio and the other deposited in the archives at Washington. Presumably the ultimate destination of the former is the National Collection in the Smithsonian Institute.'

"I am much interested in these stamps and would appreciate a verification of this story if true. Kindly also let me know, if true, whether two sheets were printed or only two stamps. If two stamps, were they printed from single dies? Also whether the stamps were finished in every way with regard to perforation and gum."

In reply Mr. Klein received under date of October 2, the following communication from W. Irving Glover, Third Assistant Postmaster General:—

"You are informed that the Department authorized the Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to prepare two die-proofs of the 24-cent red and blue issue of May, 1918, with the center inverted. This was done in order that the collection of die-proofs sent to the Brazilian International Centennial Exposition by the Post Office Department could be as complete as possible. In view of the interest manifested in this inverted stamp, it was believed that a die-proof would be of marked interest. No stamps were reprinted and no stamps will be authorized to be reprinted. The inverted die-proofs on exposition are printed on India paper with no gum and no perforations, and it is the intention of the Department that one die-proof will be retained in the exhibition cabinet for future expositions and the other will be part of the official record in die-proof album of the Division of Stamps of this Department."

EDITORIAL.

The new issue of the eleven-cent stamp, showing the portrait of President Rutherford B. Hayes, made its appearance at Fremont, Ohio, on the appointed day, that of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Hayes or October 4th, 1922. We should say that the artist who engraved the stamp did well with the central design, judging from our recollection, as "a mere child," of the large likenesses of President Hayes. This specimen is a foretaste of pleasures to come and while the portrait stamps will make their impression, curiosity is centered chiefly on the stamps of distinctive design. Of course, after having been regaled with stamps of the character of the Columbian and Omaha issues, not to mention others, it is not to be expected that older collectors will get any particular thrill from the new stamps, so far as the treatment of subject or design is concerned, but it is certain that for intimate relationship with the average user of the stamps, the new set may be counted upon to make a ten-strike. The sentiment shown by the department in issuing the new eleven-cent stamp so opportunely and having the five-cent stamp, picture of Roosevelt, ready on his birthday, is to be commended, as indeed is the manner in which the post-office department has proceeded from the inception to the issue of the stamps of the new set.

Much will be said about the new U. S. issue by the free and independent newspaper press and divers opinions will be expressed about the necessity, advisability or propriety of the new stamps. The attention of millions of people will be directed to the stamps that at first will seem unfamiliar and for a few seconds at least, the unresponding member of the non-philatelic public will feel a dull surge of interest in knowing that some stamps are different from others.

ST. LUCIA COLLECTION

Complete as shown in Scott's Albums, 19th Century Edition, except numbers 25 and 26; No. 24 being substituted for No. 21. All unused except No. 6, No. 9, No. 19. Every stamp looks fine, but No. 8, No. 17, No. 23, No. 31, No. 32 are thin. No. 2 has st. edge. This lot also contains a pair of No. 7b, unused but stained. The total catalogue value according to Scott's 1923, $388.97 and is a BARGAIN at $125.00.

Henry says, "I want your want list, or approvals on request BUT Satisfactory references are essential."

We do not mean to cast every thought in a dollar mould but it would be a great privilege to know just what the new issue will be worth in money as an advertisement of stamp collecting. We know that some of the people do not take the special issues commemorating fairs and so on, so whole-heartedly as they do a regular issue, and for a good many years we have had no entire new cast of regular stamps.

Each time the advance sheets of the new catalogue come with their price changes, we receive a few letters criticizing certain of the new quotations. While such communications are interesting, yet the complaints that they present, in the main, are of under-pricing and so are open to the suspicion that disappointment accounts for the criticism. At any rate, individual opinions of this kind are to be pitted against the findings of the cataloguer who it will be granted, scrutinizes closely each price. While it would be folly to claim infallibility for the cataloguer and his consultants, it is apparent that experience gained in the actual market combined with a knowledge of the conditions affecting each stamp must presuppose ability and intelligence in making prices that are fair and equitable. For years we have been aware of objections that are cited against the appraisal of this or that stamp and we cannot say that they have no foundation, but we are aware that the catalogue publishers have their side of any argument. The work of the cataloguer is not easy and there are many things to reconcile in a book of the kind. Even the changing value of the dollar in its purchasing power must be taken into consideration and care is exercised to determine, if possible, whether any sensational and sudden demand has elements of permanency. It is characteristic of collectors that they are free to speak their minds plainly about the prices in the catalogue and while some of the opinions show snap judgment, yet we would not have the critics doff the robes of judges. What we started to say was that some of the letters that we receive should be sent, instead, to the makers of the catalogue; we say this in good faith, as no doubt the publishers might find in them a suggestion or two that could be shaped into something of value.

There is a place awaiting the market student who is equipped with the knowledge that will allow him to pose as a price analyst of the individual stamp and to give special reports on it. For instance, the collector who was hesitating to pay say, thirty dollars for a five-cent of 1851, U. S., could hire him for a fee, to furnish a report on the stamp as an investment, much as a bond or a stock is dissected for the benefit of investors. The details entering into the scrutiny would include the soundness of the issuing country, the collecting qualifications of the specimen as indicating demand or popularity, its market course and its value as arrived at by comparison and other estimates. The longer the stamp has been "seasoned" the more unlikely is it to be affected by finds or other increases in the visible supply. A competent authority who would apply himself to philatelic price analysis might find that in time a demand for his services would be created. However, we suppose that the men best endowed to succeed in this work would shrink from any public prosecution of it, and so about the sole benefit of a suggestion such as this would come from the investigation that the collector or the intending purchaser would make, along the lines hastily drawn, for his own benefit.

If Arthur Brisbane reads the papers in which his editorials appear, he must have seen a neat parry of one of the thrusts that he made some time ago. In one of the Hearst papers, we noticed a syndicated article by a health exponent in which he said: "A few days ago I listened to the animated conversation of two friends of mine who are interested in collecting stamps" and the writer proceeds to say that they are called philatelists or experts in the stamp line. Neither of the two gentlemen has any regular business as they are financially fit and they do not care to follow any business or profession; and so philately fills the bill and gives them an occupation of mind and body that makes them alert and happy and in effect, conduces to longevity. All of it is well said by the sensible writer who in effect renders the Brisbane contentions very small and inconsequential, indeed. We remember having read years ago in a list of the "advantages" of stamp collecting as compiled in an English publication the count that philately afforded a congenial pastime for those who otherwise would have nothing to do, by reason of their position or wealth. Here the young man who by force of circumstances must drop business and the old man who should drop business as having had enough of it, should know that they have conveniently at hand a pursuit that will pass the time so pleasantly that perforce they are the better off mentally and physically for entering the stamp kingdom.

GOOD STUFF.

Victor is a philatelist.

Besides being chef at the St. Francis hotel, Victor Hirtzler is also an ardent Stamp collector.

"My collection does not compare with many others, but I have not purchased one stamp in my whole collection," said Victor. "All of my stamps I have secured from friends or through exchange."

Victor values his collection at more than $5,000. He has more than 25,000 stamps from all countries in the world.

Every stamp he has in his collection he has obtained since the fire of 1906. Victor started collecting when he was a boy and had a valuable collection when the fire of 1906 destroyed them all.

Some of the stamps in Victor's collection are priceless, as there are very few copies of them and they can never be reproduced.

"I have several stamps in a vault in Strassbourg," said Victor. "They are worth thousands of dollars and are part of a collection I had when I was a youth.

"I had left them in the care of my brothers, who were killed in the war, but now I am going to give them to my young nephews."—San Francisco Newspaper.

WHAT STAMPS CAN TEACH.

PART I.

By L. H. BRIGHAM.

The general knowledge the average individual acquires and its ultimate value to him depend altogether upon the following things: The natural opportunities for obtaining knowledge; the extent of one's ambition; the depth of one's capability for absorbing information; and the permanency with which acquired knowledge is retained.

"What has all of this to do with stamps?" our readers may ask. Nothing, other than to point out that "stamp knowledge" is just like other knowledge; some facts in regard to it being easily acquired because openly evident, while other facts must be sought after. How much of it all is ever eventually and permanently retained or is ever of any value to its owner, depends entirely upon the characteristics of each individual collector.

Of which type are you—the surface skimmer seeing little and remembering less, or one who is desirous of learning all possible?

Well, what can a stamp teach? Let's consider that we have divided a stamp into its two component parts—the actual things that it is made of and those that it is representative of.

The stamp itself is composed of paper which has been gummed on the reverse side and shows a printed or engraved design of some sort on the face of it in inks of different colors. We, therefore, have as the physical parts of a stamp paper, gum, ink, and in the sense that we are referring to them, engraving and color.

The representative parts of a stamp are equally as important, and consist of the design, the standard coin of the country of issue, the purpose of usage, the place of mailing represented by the cancellation if it be a used specimen, and the language.

If we are users of one of the world's standard catalogues, we find certain issues of stamps described as being engraved, lithographed, typographed, embossed, surface printed, rotary printed, etc. The paper is also referred to as being hard, soft, porous, quadruled, horizontally or vertically laid, watermarked, surface colored, chalky, granite, woven, pelure, silky, grilled, etc., and the stamps are referred as to being perforated, imperforated, part perforated, rouletted, serrate perforated, etc. The plates from which engraved stamps are printed are referred to as being re-engraved or retouched.

There is a proportionate number of descriptive phrases pertaining to the type of design, the gum, the ink, color and shade of the stamp and paper.

What is the difference between reissues, reprints, remainders, proofs, specimens, essays, counterfeits, fac-similes, and originals?

The foregoing references all pertain to the actually existent parts of the stamp. The representative side of the subject will be discussed in another issue.

Is there not something fascinating about being able to have all of this information at your finger tips; One is quite likely to hear or see references to these things almost anywhere: in books and newspapers, by lectures, foreign missionary workers, and others.

What a pleasure to be able immediately to understand and properly interpret these things wherever and whenever we come in contact with them. "Knowledge is power."

One may ask, "Well, how can I tell the difference between all these things so as to recognize them when I see them?"

When the catalogue describes a certain stamp as being "so and so" and states that it differs from another in "this and that" respect, note what these particular things are so that you always recognize them in other stamps.

One's stamp education then soon begins to broaden to such an extent that it is only a step or two to knowing how a stamp is actually made; the different papers, gums, and inks manufactured, the printing plates produced, and all the rest.

Next week, a continuation of "What Stamps Can Teach."—The Haversack.

A Few Weeks Ago

I offered U. S. Revenues in my ad in this paper. I was surprised at the number of requests received for approvals of these popular stamps. It shows collectors are aware of the scarcity of old U. S. Revenues and also of the possibility of increase in value of the really hard to get varieties.

I have sold some of the very rare values, but of the medium priced varieties, up to $30 catalog value, I have nearly everything, but only one to five copies of better kinds; so send want list in this line at once, and I will do the best I can for you.

Large stock Den Curios always on hand, list 5c.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

United States.—The first of the new series of postage stamps, the 11c peacock blue, perforated 11, unwatermarked, was placed on sale in both Washington, D. C., and Fremont, Ohio, on Wednesday, October 4th, the 100th anniversary of the birth of Rutherford B. Hayes, nineteenth President of the United States, whose portrait appears on this denomination. The stamp is the same size as the current series, the portrait is in the center within a circle and beneath within a small label we find "HAYES." Horizontally across the bottom of the stamp is the word "CENTS" with large figures "11" within ovals at each end. Semi-circular across the top, in full and not abbreviated as heretofore "UNITED STATES POSTAGE." Rectangular and triangular ornaments complete the design. Considering the purposes for which a postage stamp is designed I think the work is excellent. From an artistic point of view the figures are too large and out of all proportions but it must be remembered that these must be large and distinct so they may be readily and quickly distinguished by the postal clerk. The head is well engraved and both the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and the Post Office Department are to be congratulated. If the balance of the series are as well executed there will be little criticism.

Speaking of the other varieties Mr. Harold F. Whittaker writes that he recently visited the Bureau, at which time he had the good fortune to see die proofs of some of the other values. He states that they are very beautiful and that the "5c Teddy" which will be issued on October 27th, "will make a hit with users as well as collectors." It seems that the $5 denomination is the only value that will be bi-colored.

I overlooked mentioning that the 11c stamps placed on sale in Washington were all from plate 14058. They are printed in sheets of four hundred, flat plate, and these in turn are cut into post-office sheets or rather panes of one hundred.

1922, Perforated 11, Unwatermarked.
11c Peacock Blue, Hayes.

In my notes of last week full details regarding the new series as announced by the Third Assistant Postmaster General were given. This information was sent me at the same time it was sent to the press in general but it is to be regretted that we cannot have the release ahead of time for it takes nearly three weeks for our notes to reach our readers Because of the details contained in this most interesting report there was not sufficient space to warrant comments on the descriptions as announced. We recall reading a foreign Chronicle some years back stating that Marshall was an early President and that Farragut was a famous Army officer, so a few notes may not be amiss.

On the 1c we will have Benjamin Franklin, the first Postmaster General under the Colonies but not under the Constituted Government. He was one of our leading diplomats abroad and did much during the Revolution to bring about French participation in our struggle. "Poor Richard," a printer by trade, is also famous for his many wise sayings.

We will find George Washington on the 2c, our first President, and the greatest man America has produced. Abraham Lincoln, our sixteenth President and one who ranks second to Washington only will be on the 3c. It is to be regretted that he is not on the 5c denomination, which is a much more used denomination. The 4c will have Martha Washington, wife of the beloved George. Theodore Roosevelt, better known as "Teddy," our strenuous twenty-fifth President, adorns the 5c. On the 6c we have our 20th President, James A. Garfield, whose main claim to fame is the fact that he is one of our three "martyr Presidents." William McKinley, our twenty-fourth President, presided during the Spanish-American War and was one of the three martyrs. He occupies the place of honor on the 7c. On the 8c we have U. S. Grant, eighteenth President of the United States and leader of our forces during the Civil War. Thomas Jefferson, the third President, the first Secretary of State, the author of the Declaration of Independence, the author of the Virginia Bill of Rights and the Founder of the University of Virginia among other things is on the little used 9c. Monroe, the fifth President and father of our foreign policy, known as the Monroe Doctrine, is on the 10c. Hayes, our nineteenth President, is on the 11c. He is there because he happened to be born a hundred years ago and has an active son living who is seeing that the event is being celebrated. His most famous act during his incumbency was the ousting of Chester A. Arthur from the Collectorship of the Port of New York, which resulted in his being nominated for Vice-President, followed by the Presidency. On the 12c we have our twenty-second President, Grover Cleveland, who possibly ranks with our ten ablest Chief Executives. The 14c shows the first American—the Indian; the 15c, the Statue of Liberty, presented to us by the French and now in the harbor of New York City; the 20c, our National park, Yosemite in California; the 25c, Niagara Falls on our Canadian-New York border; a Buffalo, found in America only, on the 30c, while on the 50c we will have the famous memorial Amphitheater at Arlington, Virginia, just outside of Washington. The tomb to the Unknown Soldier will be prominently in the foreground. On the $1 will be illustrated the Lincoln Memorial recently dedicated in Washington; the $2 will show the Capitol Building where is housed our legislative branches in addition to the Supreme Court. The $5 will depict America. This will be our only bi-color, so keep your eyes open for inverts.

I wish to especially thank Messrs. H. W. Porter, J. H. Houston, G. C. Jok Dr. William Evans, Benj. Cadbury George Staplin, Jr., C. C. Dargue and J. G. Herndon, Jr., for clippings and information regarding this series.

I recently ran into a little lot of cover that are certainly of more than passing interest, for one of them I believe to b unique. They were addressed to Ger many and Austria. The circular letter each had a pair of the 1c 1857, some typ IV, some type V. I understand that 2 was the circular rate at the time but do not recall seeing pairs of this valu used on covers heretofore. The uniqu piece however was a beautiful block o five of the 5c 1851, in magnificent condi tion. It was originally a block of six making the 30c rate, but someone de tached a copy. The only other bloc that I have heard of of this variet either used or unused was a larger bloc off cover and in poor condition, foun

NOW WE HAVE SOME 10c 1851

For months we have been advertising for U. S. 10c of 1851-57. At prices mostly in excess of catalog we have accumulated a nice stock of these stamps, on and off cover. singles, pairs, and a few strips; most of the recuts, the shifts, and all the fancy curlycues. Some few nice cancellations, and three or four copies of the very deep blue-green shade, not listed by Gibbons or Scott.

Your want list for these most interesting stamps, or for other United States or Foreign stamps, will receive prompt attention.

J. O. MOORE, Inc., RHEIMS, N. Y.

sometime back in the middle west. This cover was sent to Prussia and while the stamps had black grid cancellation the cover was postmarked in black within a circle, "Pekin, Ill.—Jan. 20"; in red within a circle "N. York 7 Br. Pkt—Jan 27—Paid" in addition to "Aachen 13/2—Franco" in red within a rectangle. Along with the same correspondence was a vertical strip of three of the 10c 1851, a pair and a single on the cover and strips of three of the type I 10c 1857 on further covers, all making a 30c rate to Germany.

FEDERATED MALAY STATES.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the 12c ultramine on script watermarked paper and the 35c carmine on new yellow paper with the old watermark.

IRISH FREE STATE.—Messrs. Bright & Son have sent us copies of the ½d, 1d, 1½d and 2d Harrison Print Stamps that have been issued in rolls.

ITALY.—The Giuseppe Mazzini commemorative series, foreshadowed in these columns some time ago, is due for issue on the 20th inst., comprising three values, viz. 25c (allegorical), 40c (portrait), and 80c (Mazzini's tomb). The number printed is said to total 400,000, and they will be available only until October 31st next. We learn that not more than five sets are to be sold to any one person at a time at the Italian post offices, the number available in this way being restricted to 250,000. The balance are to be conserved until the beginning of November, when they will appear with a surcharge for some charity not yet indicated. What pretty ways they have in Italy!—Stamp Collecting.

NAURU.—Messrs. J. H. Smyth, Ltd., report that the definite set for this island was expected to be issued in August.

OUBANGUI-CHARI-TCHAD.—The plans of the Administration of this Colony contemplate its division into two separate territories, which will have their own separate stamps. This decision, writes our Special Correspondent (Mr. H. B. Gould), sounds the death knell of the present issue, the 1c value of which is already obsolete.—Stamp Collecting.

PORTUGUESE INDIA.—Messrs. Whitfield King & Co., send us a new provisional, viz.:—"1½ real" (in red) on 2r. black (Ceres). Portuguese India has already given us a sufficiency of 1½ reals, which is the present rate for newspapers circulating in Portuguese and British India.—Stamp Collecting.

RHODESIA.—Messrs. Bright & Son report the appearance of the 2d, in the current design, in brown and black.

THE DESIRABILITY OF A HOBBY

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.

(The following article will be read with a good deal of interest by our subscribers. Dr. Copeland is Commissioner of Health of New York City. Several subscribers have sent us this clipping, which is a syndicated article written for certain metropolitan newspapers. —W. O. W.)

A few days ago I listened to the animated conversation of two friends of mine who are interested in collecting stamps. They are called "philatelists" —experts in this line.

Both these men are well-to-do, so well-to-do, indeed, that neither has any particular business. They are so situated that the lure of business or profession has no attraction for them.

They have reached the time of life when it is natural to settle down and take it easy. There is no one of the ordinary incentives to get them out of bed and into the open with the usual physical and mental activities of the business or profession.

Men "retire" from business because they "have made their pile," or because they have tired of money-making or of the demands of professional life. They imagine they are to enjoy ease, and they make all sorts of plans for the long anticipated "vacation."

As a matter of fact, they become bored most speedily, they actually yearn for the old activities, they suffer from a form of "home sickness," and—in a very large percentage of cases—they die within a short time.

Years ago I made note of the process of "retirement" of half a dozen prominent business men. Every one died within a year of withdrawal from active life.

We need the stimulation of competition and the urge of a regular calling, no matter what that calling may be. To have the heart beat regularly and strongly there must be mental or physical activity. Without such action of the heart, the organs do not function. The kidneys, liver, stomach, intestines and the brain itself must have an abundance of blood or their action fails. The reason why doctors prescribe walking, swimming. horseback riding, travel or other forms of change from the usual daily program, is because it is necessary to improve the circulation, and in this way to put the whole body in good working condition.

Many persons who are engaged in sedentary occupations are well as can be. Their cheeks and lips are pink, their hands and feet warm, and they glow with health. This is because they love their work. They get pleasantly excited over it. The heart action is stimulated by the emotions.

So it is that any agreeable and mind-absorbing game will cause the heart to beat faster. You see, therefore, what a blessing to my two friends is this intense interest in collecting stamps. They get as excited over the prospect of obtaining a glimpse of a new stamp as a child does over the thought of going to a circus.

It is a good thing to have an avocation —something outside the monotony of everyday life.

It will add years to your life.

BOOK REVIEW.

We have received from the Melville Book Co., 26 High St., Plumstead, London, a copy of Melville's Philatelic Press-List. As the name implies it is a compilation of about 125 addresses of philatelic journals the world over. It is made up and printed in the form of prepared gummed and addressed labels, which should prove helpful to all secretaries of societies, publishers of books, etc., and to auction dealers for distribution of catalogs. The book sells for one shilling.

MARKET IN MODERN COLONIALS.

Malta.—The 10/- duty on the old C.A. paper has been changing hands at £5 and over. Of this, about 1600 were issued and it is interesting to compare it with certain other modern rarities which exist in similar number, such as Lagos 2/6 S.C.A. and Grenada 1906 10/-, from which it would appear that if the above price is right, many of the scarce items of the Edwardian period are undervalued, and those keen on the financial possibilities of their stamps may benefit by the knowledge.

The 2/-, Self-Government on the old C.A. paper, although much dearer than three months ago, is probably only at the commencement, as yet, of its upward career. Of the low values the 2½d, 3d and 6d on the old C.A. paper are all likely to turn out well, the later duty on script paper is also well worth watching.

It is seldom that one finds palpable errors in the Red Gibbons, but the numbers given for the totals of the "N.F." surcharges on the ½d and 1d Nyasaland stamps must be very wide of the mark, as large stocks of these are still in existence, and the catalogue quotation will doubtless show a further decrease. The three higher values with the same overprint are very much scarcer, and the issue of these must have been very limited.

Some of the old "White Back" varieties are on the upgrade again, after a comparatively slack period. Especially some of the higher values, of which can be mentioned the Ceylon 5 rupee, Nigeria 5/-, and Brit. Guiana 96c, all on surface-tinted paper, which are well worth watching and likely to show increases.

Many of the high values of the first-named colony (Ceylon) have turned out well, the Single C.A. set being the best, of which the highest denomination, 2r 25, reached 22/- at a recent London auction.

The Universal series of 1910 has always been scarce, but a largish parcel recently coming on the market will tend to ease prices a little.

Trinidad and Tobago.—For those wanting a good range of shades, still to be picked up cheaply, Trinidad and Tobago offers an interesting study. The ½d on bluish paper is not often seen, whilst the 5/- duty on the old paper exists in 4 or 5 quite distinct shades, not yet listed; these were all relatively small printings and are now obsolete. The same duty for Trinidad alone is becoming scarcer and the 1901-6 issue on S.C.A. paper is the best, but of the lower values the 1904-5 set on multiple paper has turned out very scarce, whilst the 2½d issue of 1910, with figures all four corners, is another good little stamp.

Nigeria.—Now that Nigeria has been unified, a very large mail arrives every week bearing these stamps and most values up to 2/6 are common. Above this, however, they are very much scarcer, and well worth acquiring on the current Catalogue basis, in view of the changes pending.

The 1/- on emerald throughout is now in general use, the older colour having been used up, but the 1/- on emerald surfaced paper had only a short life and is much better mint than used.

Of the old issues for the Northern territory, it is worth noting that the 5/- duty of K. George is under-priced and is scarcer than the 5/- Edward. Of the Edwards the 1905 issue has turned out very well, and all values of this set above 2d are scarce either mint or fine used. The Georgian issue for Southern Nigeria has also turned out much better than appeared likely a few years ago. All the 5/- denominations of this colony, and of which five different issues were made, have turned out very well, and do not appear to have been in much demand for postal purposes. Of the lower values, the 2½d and 4d are generally the scarcest, both mint and used, and the unconventional design of this Colony is much more attractive than the type at present in use and has made it a very popular group.

Rhodesia.—The modern emissions of Rhodesia have been in considerable demand recently. Curiously enough the Arms type has not turned out so well, probably because it was also on sale in London, but the double portrait type is likely to do better and big increases may be expected in the next catalogue. Several interesting perforation varieties exist, of which the 8d, perf. 13½, is one that appears to be scarce, judging by the price demanded by London dealers. Some of the Die II varieties of the current series also are elusive, whilst the perf. 15 set in both series contains some really scarce items as yet unpriced.

B. W. I.—An interesting problem may arise shortly as to the status of certain stamps released in London but not issued in the Colony. The 2½ Trinidad in blue on script paper was sold in some quantities from London but, although sent out to the Colony, it was decided not to place them on sale owing to the arrival of the 3d blue, but it is stated a few appeared by mistake at a certain post office.

Like the Edwardian series, some of the Georgian issues of St. Lucia are turning out well. The 1/- on green and in brown may do well, whilst the 2½d blue on script is likely to show a considerable increase on present quotations The corresponding stamp of Grenada will probably be still better, as it has already appeared in grey, but it is noteworthy that no colour has been definitely settled yet for the 2½d duty.—Philatelic Magazine.

STAMPS OF FALKLAND ISLANDS.

By DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG.

Amongst the lesser stamp issuing colonies of the British Crown, the postal issues of the Falkland Islands are particularly attractive to the moderate specialist in philately, on account of their handsome design no less than their actual philatelic interest. The normal issues are comparatively easy of completion and make moreover an exceedingly handsome display, whilst the philatelic student will discover that there are many elusive varieties to be sought after. For him the chief interest lies in the well defined shades of the 1891-96 series, which owing to the small amount of postal business transacted usually represent individual printings.

By reason of their artistic appearance and delicate engraving the stamps of the Falkland Islands have always been held in high esteem by philatelists, the high values of 1898 in particular being universally regarded as some of the most beautiful examples of the stamp engravers' art that have been produced. In point of intrinsic value they have appreciated to a remarkable extent within the past eight or nine years, and owing to the small numbers printed of the earlier issues are becoming every year increasingly hard to obtain.

EARLY POSTAL FRANKS.

Prior to the year 1858 no organized postal arrangements appear to have existed at Port Stanley, the chief settlement of the Falkland Islands, but according to a statement made by the Colonial Postmaster, published in the Royal Philatelic Society's work on West Indies on June 25th, 1858," the rate of sixpence was fixed for postage of all letters, books and papers not exceeding half an ounce, to be prepaid by affixing the following stamps."

The "stamp" referred to is an oblong handstamp enclosing the words "FALKLAND—PAID—ISLANDS" in three lines, but there is reason to believe that this was not actully brought into use until March 11th, 1868, nearly ten years later. It did not represent any particular value, but was applied to all mail matter which had been prepaid in cash, according to the prevailing tariff.

Some ten years later a second type of postal frank was introduced, circular in form, and enclosing the same inscriptions, but struck in red. Both "franks" continued in use until the issue of adhesive postage stamps in June, 1878, an event which foreshadowed the entry of the Colony into the Universal Postal Union on January 1st, 1879.

Ten years later the original handstamps used for impressing these postal "franks" were still in existence, and about the year 1889 a number of posthumous impressions from them were made on behalf of certain collectors upon scraps of plain white paper.

FIRST POSTAGE STAMPS.

Meanwhile an order for a supply of 1d and 6d postage stamps of special design had been placed through the Colonial agents in London with Messrs. Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., a well known London firm of bank note engravers and printers, who were just then invading the postage stamp field.

For the main feature of the stamp design this firm made use of a master-die bearing the head of Queen Victoria in an oval, looking to the right, which was also used for certain stamps of the Transvaal produced at the same period, the frame work and inscriptions surrounding the vignette being added by hand.

It is probable that the engraver responsible for this most artistic stamp was the late Mr. Herbert Bourne, who is known to have been one of several engravers working for Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., at the time. Unfortunately no record was kept of the artist to whom this particular piece of work was entrusted. The source of this delicate profile portrait of Queen Victoria, which is unlike any other to be found upon the stamps of her reign, is likewise veiled in obscurity, although it was reproduced upon some Essays for Postal Orders or Postal Office Notes which were submitted about this time.

The original die had the value tablet at the base left blank, and from it subsidiary dies were constructed with value inscriptions inserted as required. With CATASTROPHE!

I am inviting this delightful member of the cat family to "Stop at Hudson" by saying I have use for and wish to buy in the very finest condition the following United States:—
1851—Covers of 1c, 5c, 10c and 12c singles.
1851—Horizontal pairs of 1c, 3c, 10c, 12c.
1851—Horizontal Strips of 3 of 1c, 3c, 5c, 10c, 12c.
1851—Horizontal Strips of 4 of 1c, 3c, 5c, 10c.
The catastrophe will probably be the price, but I am ready to pay well—yes, more than well—for goods that are worth it. I want almost the impossible—margins on all sides, undamaged and not heavily cancelled. Of course, the pairs and strips are not desired on covers.

H. F. COLMAN

the aid of these dies separate plates of 60 impressions each were laid down for printing the different duties by the ordinary mill and die process of stamp engraving.

Much has been made of the fact that a number of dots, or so-called "secret marks" may be discovered in various parts of the stamps, but Mr. P. L. Pemberton has shewn that these are merely the customary printers guide dots peculiar to the work of Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., and have no special significance.

The earliest printings were made upon thin, hard, greyish-white, wove paper, without watermark, and the sheets were perforated on a single-line machine gauging 14 to 14½. The outer edges of the sheets were frequently left imperforate. Copies may be found showing portions of the paper makers watermark.

These two stamps were first placed on sale by the Falkland Islands Post-office on June 19th, 1878, the 1d representing the local single letter rate, and the 6d the fee upon letters to Great Britain. Following the admission of the Falkland Islands to the Postal Union the charge upon letters to all Postal Union countries was reduced to 4d per half ounce, and in September of the same year a stamp of that denomination, together with a 1s value, was brought into use, both derived from the same matrix die, and printed in sheets of 60 (six rows of 10) as before.

4d grey-black (Sept., 1879)
6d green (19th June, 1878)

WATERMARKED ISSUE 1884.

From the commencement of 1884 the printers were furnished by the Crown Agents for the Colonies with the special watermarked paper provided for printing Colonial stamps supplied through their agency.

The grouping of the watermarks (in ten rows of six), however, did not coincide with the make-up of the Bradbury, Wilkinson plates, consisting of six rows of 10 replicas of the design, with the natural consequence that the watermark in this issue is almost invariably off-centre, and, indeed, it is seldom that a stamp showing a complete Crown CA watermark is met with.

Only the 1d and 4d denominations were included in this issue, as, owing to the reduction in postal charges, the others were in but little demand.

1884, February.

1d red-brown (Wmk. Crown CA).

SIDEWAYS WATERMARK 1886.

No further printing of Falkland Islands stamps appears to have been made until the early part of 1886, when the 1d value appeared with the watermark sideways, instead of upright. This was the result of an experiment in cutting the sheets of watermarked paper with a view to making them fit the plates more exactly, and so avoid the issue of stamps without watermark. A new printing of the 4d stamp, issued at the end of the same year, also had the watermark sideways.

PROVISIONAL ½d 1891

The reduction of postage upon letters to Great Britain and the Colonies from 4d to 2½d per half ounce gave rise to a demand for postage stamps of the latter denomination, or failing that a ½d duty, to make up the new rate. Neither of these being available, the following official notification was published.

Government Notice.

"Notice is hereby given that on and from the 1st of January next, letters posted for Great Britain, India, and the Colonies, will be charged at the rate of 2½d, the single rate instead of 4d as hitherto. Until the arrival of 2½d stamps, the 1d stamp cut in two diagonally, may be used for halfpenny stamps, thus:—

By Command
(Signed) FRED SHEDDEN
Sanguinetti,
Ag. Postmaster."

The above notice makes no mention of any surcharge, and it was probably as an afterthought that the Colonial Postmaster caused a supply of 1d stamps to be twice overprinted with the figure "½d" by means of a metal handstamp in black. Postally used halves of the 1d claret are, indeed, known without the surcharge. A new printing of the 1d stamp in an orange-brown shade received in December, 1891, was also employed for the production of these ½d provisionals for a few weeks, until they were finally abolished by a Post Office Notice dated January 11th, 1892, which stated that "from this date any letters received with the Provisional Halfpenny stamp affixed will be treated as insufficiently paid to the amount of ½d, and the addressees will be liable to double the deficiency."

Double and inverted surcharges exist in this issue as well as impressions struck partly upon the half stamp and partly upon the letter to which it is affixed.

SCOTT'S DRAWS THE LINE.

By EDWARD L. WENZ.

Scott's, so we are informed in their September Monthly, to relieve their catalogue of at least a few unnecessary and undesirable things, have decided to draw the line and, as a beginning, are not listing stamps issued for propaganda or advertising purposes. Overprints that do not alter the face value of the stamps or their mode or place of use are to be banned. The Malay-Borneo exhibition, the Costa Rica coffee sacks, and the Salvadors overprinted "Centenario" are cited as examples.

Now, I hold no brief for the Borneo, Costa Rican, or Salvadorean stamp manufacturers, but it strikes me that Scott's are presumptuous in their attempt to dictate to collectors what they shall buy and collect. If they should make their ruling retroactive, it would indeed have the effect of making the catalogue more comfortable in one's pocket—however, dropping a few items, whilst they retain hundreds of others of a similar character, is not going to remedy matters. For example, would they dare strike out the Leewards Sexagenaries—to me the most alluring set this colony has produced and for which many collectors must have paid very fancy prices. Then the Uruguay "Par" stamps occur to my mind and a host of others, all very instructive and highly interesting. To me the Costa Rican stamps with the coffee sack overprint are the most interesting of all this little country's issue. Before their appearance I had not known that Costa Rica had produced coffee for a hundred years or at all, but these little stickers have stamped it indelibly on my mind. They are as full of interest and to my way of thinking as collectible as surcharges that make a half-penny stamp out of a 5 shilling one or transform a Leewards' into a Barbudan. The same is true of the Malay "Exhibitions" and Salvador "Centenarios."

It is very true that some of these stamps may be speculative but why have collectors never attempted to protect themselves against the truly speculative stamp. This is not a job for dealers, naturally many of them would handle most anything that they can acquire advantageously and dispose of profitably, nor do I mean to accuse stamp dealers in the main of dishonesty of purpose—they simply would lack complete information.

I am not a profound philatelist and when I add that I have a passion for the stamps of Liberia, ultra-respectable collectors of early imperforates and U. S. before '69 will, of course, have no sympathy with or for me. Nevertheless, there must be many collectors with perverse notions like myself and it is to such that I especially appeal—collectors who delight in Salvador and Nicaragua and Costa Rica and all such like. Collecting Liberia, I am naturally aware that many of their stamps—not only of the surcharged varieties where the almost criminal purpose is palpably evident but even of their regular issues—have been prepared solely for collectors to feed upon. And, of course, many of the Central and South American and Neuropean countries have sinned most fearfully. Does not even England wink at this habit in the issues of her colonies? I read that Barbuda has 200 inhabitants and to be sure they must have their set of stamps—and that is only an instance.

Why cannot the collectors of the world decide what are and what are not legitimate and collectible stamps? Why could not the leading societies of all countries, through their representatives, select a commission composed of one or several persons of undoubted integrity, which commission would decide upon the legitimacy of all stamps as issued. This to my notion is the most crying need in philately today. With such a commission operating, the "a b c" varieties at $2.50 each and the gumpaps would disappear from the catalogues and stamp collectors could have new overcoats every few years.

6 MILK STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

A. P. S. PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

In accordance with the resolution adopted at the A. P. S. Convention at Springfield, Mass., in August, the Board of Vice Presidents are now prepared to inaugurate a campaign of such proportions, such quality and thoroughness as has never been equalled in this or any other country.

A contract is being arranged with a philatelic writer of unusual merit, who has had broad experience in writing and having published full page, illustrated stamp articles in leading Eastern newspapers.

It is planned to greatly extend this service, placing it weekly at the disposal of hundreds of newspapers and magazines in all parts of the United States.

The impetus this will give stamp collecting will doubtless be tremendous.

The expense is estimated at $1000 and one-half of this amount it has been suggested will be raised by the dealers who are members of the A. S. D. A.

It has been suggested that, as the trade would be mostly benefited by this campaign, it should stand all of the expense. In this opinion the writer does not concur, and believes that the other half should be donated by the membership at large.

We can now insure our private collections against fire, flood, theft, or other actual loss. Here is an insurance against loss in value. Assuming that you have $50,000 more or less, invested in your collection, that being its value today, what would it be worth a month or a year hence should stamp collecting lose in popularity or cease altogether?

The one and only thing that maintains and increases the value of your investment, whether it be $1,000 or $100,000, is continued interest on the part of present collectors, and the acquisition of new devotees to our hobby. The writer firmly believes that every collector with any considerable investment in stamps should spend at least ½ of one per cent of their value annually in promoting stamp collecting.

The Board is ready to proceed with this campaign immediately upon advice from Treasurer Elliott that $1000 is in his hands for this purpose.

There is little doubt but what our dealer members will raise their half in short order. Let's beat them to it. Send your donation to Howard H. Elliott, Treasurer.

BOARD OF VICE PRESIDENTS,
W. W. MACLAREN, Chairman,
JAS. A. HARRIS,
OTTO F. MOSES, Recorder.

NEW ISSUES FROM GUATEMALA.

By C. M. TYLER.

In Scott's Monthly Journal for September is recorded the new issues of provisionals from Guatemala, being Nos. 192-201, or a series of ten of the 25 centavos on 75c, 1p and 2p of the 1902 issue; on the 30c, 60c, 90c and 3p of the 1919 issue, and on the 1p 50c, 5p and 15p of the 1921 issue. There is a note at the bottom stating, "There are five types of the numerals "25."

This foot-note does not clearly explain the number of each type and would lead the average collector to understand that there are as many of one type as of the other. This is not so, for on examining the sheets, and designating the types in the same order as found in the sheet, there are 57 copies of type I; 30 of type II; 3 of type III; 8 of type IV, and 2 of type V. The arrangement of the various types is as follows:—First row, all type I; second row, 9 of type I with the tenth stamp of type II; third row, 9 of type II, the tenth stamp being type III; fourth row, 8 of type IV, the ninth and tenth stamps being type V; fifth and eighth rows the same as the first row; sixth and ninth rows the same as the second row, and the seventh and tenth rows the same as the third row.

If the sheets are broken up to the best advantage to the specialist, who would desire as many of each types in one single block as he could get, there could only be one block of nine which would show all types, being the eighth, ninth and tenth stamps in the second, third and fourth rows. In addition, there could be gotten out of each sheet two vertical strips of three showing types I, II and III; seven vertical strips of three showing types I, II and IV; eight blocks showing types I and II; four blocks of four showing type I only; two vertical pairs showing types I and II, leaving twelve single stamps of type I. It can easily be seen that types I and II will be the common varieties, while the others will command higher prices, especially types III and V.

A new 12½ centavos stamp has just been issued, showing as a center design the Palacio de Centenario, printed in light green. This stamp, as usual, is the work of Waterlow of London.

Arrangement of the five types on August, 1922 provisionals, 25c.

BRITAIN'S "GERMAN" WAR STAMPS.

By W. WARD.

Lord Northcliffe was "not fair" when he founded the "Propaganda in Enemy Countries" Committee, and he was most certainly unfair when he copied the German 10 and 15pf stamps for affixing on missives for posting within Germany itself!

From a philatelic point of view, these British imitations—forgeries if you like—were far from as good as they might have been and their very perforation betrayed the fact that they had been executed by the printers of the British Stamps.

Two values were imitated, the 10pf red and the 15pf violet, Germania types for use on printed matter, postcards and letters respectively. They did not have a very long life, as naturally the sedulous correspondence soon got to the Wilhelmstrasse, and it was not long before it was discovered that the Imperial Post-office itself was aiding and abetting entente propaganda by carrying and distributing the missives.

These "Spy Stamps" as the Germans called them—are fairly and easily distinguishable from the originals. Both the T and H of Deutsches are without serifs. In the originals the eyebrow of Germania joins the shading to the eye pupil, but does not reach the forehead whereas in the imitations the eyebrow is heavy, and joins the profile of the face, and there is no shading between the eye and the brow. There are of course other minor differences, but these are the most noticeable. The imitations are perforated 14 x 14¾-15, as the current British Stamps, whereas the "Kaiser's Own" had an all round perforation of 14. The paper on which they were printed is a "dead" white, and the originals were on a toned. Imitations were also prepared for use in Bavaria, Austria and Hungary, but owing to the early discovery of the corrupt "German" stamps, they were never brought into use.

The British were however not the first to avail themselves of the enemy's postal services. The Germans, it was discovered, had an ideal method of giving exact particulars of the course and damage done by a Zeppelin during its travels by posting apparently harmless letters which would pass the most exacting censor. The only information carried was the particular postmark that the packet or postcard bore.

This was discovered after the great raid over Lancashire, when Bolton and other towns were attacked, and afterwards the cancelling of mail following the raid was purposely left until the town of destination was determined or by a travelling mail tender.

Though probably the first time that stamps have been imitated for war purposes, that other form of currency, bank notes, have often been used by an enemy, the last on record being the Russian Soviet Government.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Alvin Good was in Chicago on October 17th and 18th at the Hotel LaSalle where he showed the Worthington stamps to a score or so of Chicago collectors.

—We were grieved to hear of the death of Charles Roemer of San Antonio, Texas, a gentleman whose allegiance to philately endured through scores of years. We are grateful to Mr. Parsons, the secretary-treasurer of the Texas Philatelic Association, for a photograph of Mr. Roemer from which we have had made a half-tone to accompany Mr. Parsons sketch of Mr. Roemer.

—The Milwaukee Philatelic Society is early in issuing its programme for the coming season; and we notice that the calendar is filled out to July 15, 1923.

—From Dr. C. F. Rich we have received a postal card with the cancellation, "Briefmarken-Handlermesse," meaning Stamp Dealers' Exposition of Leipzig. Inscriptions on the postal card are translated, above, "Take (or open up) a post check account" and below, "Paper-value addition, 10pf," that is, the buyer has to pay 10pf extra to the 75pf for postage, for the value of the card.

—One of the best things ever done of its kind, "The Secret of the J. P. S." by H. P. Terry, is worth having, at a cost of sixpence. A well-printed booklet of fourteen broad pages, cleverly illustrated, is filled with text that snaps with enthusiasm for the Junior Philatelic Society of London. If any collector can read the pamphlet without being charged with Mr. Terry's electricity, he is a cold proposition. Mr. Terry sings of the J. P. S. in just the right key and his words are pat and fitting. It is a very good recruiting document, say we.

—Correspondents of N. B. Paulson, the Chicago dealer, are notified that Mr. Paulson has been suffering from a serious illness, but that at last accounts he was getting ready for his office work once more.

—It has been a matter of regret to the WEEKLY that the half-tone of the three generations of Charles Whitfield Kings in the issue of September 16, did not come out more clearly. It was no doubt due to the character of the photograph used for illustration. Mr. King, Senior, has just sent us some printings taken upon a heavy white stock from a half-tone that was finely executed. A specimen will be sent to anyone asking for the same and a request to Charles Whitfield King, Ipswich, England, will be responded to with pleasure.

—J. L.—We do not know of any catalog of foreign revenues that is up to date. We advise you to write F. H. Vallancey, 89 Farringdon St., London, England.

—The committee in charge of the International Stamp Exhibition to be held in London, May 14-26, 1923, has just issued a very handsome prospectus. It contains a list of the "Committee of Honor," illustrations showing the exhibition headquarters, plan of stalls, and a new model stamp factory. The scheme of competitions is fully described, with rules governing the same. The prospectus is printed in colors, consists of 12 large pages and may be obtained from F. J. Melville, 14 Sudbourne Rd., Brixton, London, England.

—Arthur Barger informs us that the Northern Stamp Co., operating from Montreal, Canada, has removed its business from that city to Framingham, Mass., where offices have been taken in the Barger Building. Mr. Barger's venture in the northern city was not sufficiently satisfactory to warrant his continuing there, and he believes that he can serve his business to better advantage at the new location.

—E. M. A.—We take the liberty of answering your question publicly. We know of no market for back volumes of the WEEKLY. So many societies and individuals offer back numbers for transportation charges that the market is apparently glutted.

—We have received from W. R. King a list of advertising cancellations, one of which is new to us. It comes from Hutchinson, Kans., and reads as follows:—"50th Anniversary Hutchinson & Reno County, Kansas State Fair, Sep. 16-22, 1922".

—J. C. Matthews, Olympia, Wash., would like to know the present whereabouts of W. K. Braman, formerly 308 So. Williams St., Bay City, Mich.

—Milwaukee has furnished us with a new advertising cancellation. It reads as follows:—"Wisconsin Products Exposition, Milwaukee, Dec. 14-20".

—The Jax Novelty Co. has taken out a 5000 line contract with the WEEKLY. This means a lively and energetic campaign upon the part of this firm during the coming winter.

—Rev. R. Stollenwerk has but recently returned from an extended European trip and the philatelic results of the trip will be reflected in his advertising during the coming winter. He has just taken displayed space in our columns. Mr. Stollenwerk is largely entitled to the credit of assembling the famous Powell packets which were formerly advertised in the WEEKLY.

—A. W. Whitten who has sent us many advertising postal cancellations, submits from Hope, Ark., "Arkansas State Fair, Little Rock, October 9-15, 1922".

—Many subscribers are sending us clippings, the receipt of which is acknowledged in this public manner. We use all that our limited space justifies, and regret we cannot show a heartier appreciation of the services rendered.

—E. H. Taylor, Vancouver, B. C., would like the name and address of his Mexico correspondent who made remittance and neglected to give either name or address.

—If you will send a self-addressed envelope with a one cent uncancelled stamp in the upper right hand corner to A. H. Pike, 80 Grant St., Buffalo, N. Y., you will receive without charge illustrations and description of all the different Types of First Class Mail Permits, including metered mail, and also over fifty illustrations of postal markings, including the main type of slogan cancellations (advertising marks). This is a reference work that all philatelists should appreciate.

—"I would be very grateful to you if you would kindly publish a few lines in your esteemed journal expressing the appreciation of the Greek Nation for all that was done by the U. S. Navy and the American Red Cross during the massacre and sacking of Smyrna by the Turks after the town had been evacuated by the Greek troops. I have been told by refugees that hundreds of lives were saved from death through the individual action of the U. S. marines who risked their lives to protect them from the Turks, and showed splendid conduct throughout. U. S. destroyers were constantly plying between Smyrna and the ports of Greece, landing refugees who are loud in their praise for all that was done for them and who would not be alive today had they been left without the means of escape".—P. J. DROSSOS, A. S. D. A.

DID YOU SAVE THAT DOLLAR?

Then here's your chance to invest it in either 19th or 20th Cent. stamps, not bonds! But the investment may prove just as good! All these are 1923 cat. prices:—
19th Cent.—200 Varieties Foreign, cat. up to 75c, total $11.00, @ $1.00
20th Cent.—450 Varieties Foreign, cat. up to 15c, total $15.00, @ 1.00
Or, both—650 Varieties Foreign, cat. over $25.00, for 1.75
Other packets will contain more stamps—but consider the cat. value! And this is not inflated with foreign revenues—there's a place for every stamp! Approvals sent "2. U." upon request.

EDITORIAL.

The postal department is certainly forehanded. It is issuing its instructions for handling the Christmas Mail and we shall clip for use elsewhere, the regulations attending the employment of precancelled stamps.

Please do not call us down for the general aspect of the new eleven-cent stamp; we didn't print it. Anyhow, we have the opinion that a postage stamp, while it may be a thing of beauty, should have a practical side, judging from the use to which the stamp is put. We should like to print the remarks of one of the critics of the new stamps who addresses himself to the Babbitts of the P. O. D., but he is too severe; he dwells in the clouds and should come down to earth and mingle with the men on the street.

We read that "an excellent writing-ink may be made by soaking discarded typewriter ribbons in water" but a scout has just phoned us that he has an easier way in which to manufacture writing fluid. He says that after soaking a few hundred used current Dutch Indies he found that most of the color of the stamps remained in the water.

It is curious to notice that the stamps that have advanced in price in the advance sheets of the new catalogue are appearing almost to the exclusion of all other stamps, on the want-lists of collectors throughout the country. In this connection we are paging the old-fashioned dealer who did not increase his prices on stock until the catalogue actually had appeared.

A reader tells us that he was the victim of the worst case of insomnia on record that would not give way to any treatment. He says that he read last night in a house organ, the following, and fell into a deep sleep, just as he got to the end: "How they perforate their stamps in Poland, we don't know. Probably they throw the pins at the sheet and trust to luck, judging by a parcel of used recent issues we have just sorted, in which there were thirty-one different perfs.! Some of these are going to be rare."

Certain of our remarks have interested several readers sufficiently to lead them to write us giving their views on some of the subjects discussed recently and we have been asked to pursue a few of the topics, one of which is the need for improved conditions in marketing collections. One commentator "doubts whether facts bear out our optimism" in saying that the field of disposal has been broadened latterly, and he cites his experiences in converting "a lot of valuable stamps" into money, which soured him on the dealers in his town from whom he had bought the stamps "some years ago," in support of his contention. Finally, he was "forced" to sell the stamps to one of the ungracious dealers for "about half" of the price paid for the stamps, originally. We assume that our correspondent is a business man and we know that he thinks that he did not receive a square deal. We shall give our complainant the benefit of the doubt and say that the condition of his valuable stamps bought "some years ago" had not a good percentage of their value wiped away by the condition demands that today enter so largely in stamp appraisal. The externals of the case may be dismissed by saying that there are many dealers who bring a reasonable degree of courtesy to bear in their relations with sellers, and it is unfortunate, of course, that an occasional dealer departs from the line of approved conduct in this regard, but "shop methods" are a matter of choice on the part of the dealer. If he is disposed not to recognize the advantage of courteous treatment of customers, he may play fast and loose with established custom, as he will.

If the "valuable lot of stamps" once possessed by our correspondent was worth much more than the price realized, he paid the penalty of not trying the slower methods of conversion, such as the auction sale and the sales department of the best society. Too, he should have sought the dealers of other cities as possible buyers of the stamps. If his need for cash was urgent, he probably was in the weak position of the man who just has to raise money. We are not given specific information of the character of the valuable stamps but we do know that if they were in the "desirable" class, it is strange that he could not liquidate to better advantage. We could cite cases where dealers have paid much more for stamps than they sold them for, after a lapse of years, it is needless to say; and the differences in favor of the collector in some instances are sensational. Now and then a collector is found who is deficient in what in card games would be called card sense; and when he cashes in, he finds that his lack of proper contact has wasted some of his money. The stamp buyer who turns seller must exercise his salesmanship as much, if not more, as the dealer did who first sold him the stamps; and at best, for quick cash, he must pay an added tithe. He buys at retail and sells at wholesale. To a great degree, the auction market reflects the value of stamps and the commission charge is no onerous toll. The sales departments of a few societies are acceptable vehicles for stamp movement; and some collectors have cultivated the possibilities of "private sale" to profitable ends. In fact, we know that it is easier to place stamps today than ever before and that the position of the seller is improving.

What everybody in stamps should work for is an active market. Dealers will not try to sail against the wind. As they are compelled to re-stock, they will have to pay higher prices for their wares to meet the competition of other dealers, who must restore depleted stocks. A lively market is maintained by an increasing number of collectors and, too, of dealers; and it is on the recruiting of the collecting ranks that effort should be centered. At least the number of the stamps in a closed issue does not increase and when the greater demand comes from a larger number of collectors, prices are strengthened. The advance comes before the increase in the catalogue price as the catalogue takes cognizance of a price-raising demand after and not before it becomes a reality. It is not the place of the catalogue to anticipate demand but it is its duty to show the effect of demand on price.

There are stamps and stamps. Some stamps are suitable for investment; some are suitable for the investment of the "spare funds of the business man"; some for "spec-vestment"; some for speculation and some for a gamble, according to the sign of the dollar. A few collectors have the ability of discriminating between the classes of stamps almost as shrewdly as a financier can analyze securities. We think that the successful dealer has a pretty sound sense in this regard and in buying stamps from collectors he brings it into play. The collector should strive to match this ability by studying conditions as affecting stamps and in this connection, no blanket instructions may be given, as there are too many cross-currents to allow of generalization. One of our greatest students of stamps in their market phases when asked what stamps he thought could best be bought for profit said that if he knew, he would be the first to buy them. However, the big buyer always has a good reason for buying the stamps that he does and in the purchase of the stamps he uses the same acumen that marks his transactions in more material things.

The foregoing observations leave the "just collector" who likes his stamps independently of financial considerations on a pleasant footing. He collects as he wishes, undisturbed by thoughts of market position and he is a law unto himself. He does not get into embarrassments that cause him to liquidate his stamps in a hurry; and his collection, large or small, is a source of satisfaction to him. He may not be a very spectacular figure but he is the mainstay of our pursuit and if he will multiply fast enough, as he bids fair to do we shall have a stabilizer that will never let philately be thrown off its balance. It sometimes happens that the "mere collector" becomes favored by circumstance in that some of his stamps turn out to be very good investments and even though he is not out for the coin, this circumstance adds to his pleasure. We want a host of collectors of this kind and we wish we knew how to get them without advertising for them. To us it seems that the only way in which we can recruit this class is by publicity in the newspaper and periodical press. The trick is to get the new collector and then to keep him and if we are content to just ease along without making any effort to get him, or spend a bit of money to introduce him to stamps, we shall about hold our own but our aim should be more laudable than that.

TWO NEW CONTRACTS.

We are pleased to welcome two new advertisers, Ray Bovard and I. Sonnee. Mr. Bovard will be remembered as a user of WEEKLY space some years ago, when he built up quite a lucrative business, but was forced temporarily to suspend business operations. Mr. Sonnee was represented in adlets last season and now branches forth with displayed space. We welcome both to our columns.

COMMUNICATION.

TO THE EDITOR:

With reference to the Rev. J. B. Dudek's article on Insurance of stamp collections, it may interest my co-readers to know of my experience in this matter.

On September the 4th last year I took out an "All-risks Policy" with Lloyds, London, through brokers in N. Y. (Van-Derhoef and Cawley Co.), half of which covered personal belongings and half my stamp collection, the premium on the whole being rather high at 2.25% but in view of the difficulties experienced by my collector friends I was very pleased to be able to get insurance at all. A few days ago while in New York, called on the above named brokers mainly to see about my automobile insurance and while I was there I was shown a cable from the firm's agents in London, which stated that they could no longer carry insurance on stamp collections as Lloyds had made a ruling against it. I was, of course, disappointed, but the Rev. Dudek's statement certainly appears encouraging and as I am returning to England to live next month I will be able to look into the question when I get home, and will be glad to let you know the result of my investigations.

Yours very truly,
C. E. CALDERARI.

DEATH OF CHARLES ROEMER.

By H. S. PARSONS.

Philately has lost another well-known figure by the death of Charles Roemer, which occurred at San Antonio, Texas, on August 24th, shortly after he had undergone a severe operation.

He was born October 13, 1852, in Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, and spent his early life in that city, where he was connected with a large banking institution. In 1886 he went to London, and in the following year he came to the United States, engaging in the raising of cattle in Calhoun County, Texas. Since 1890 he has resided in San Antonio.

As a youth he became interested in the study and collecting of postage stamps and in his first collection accumulated many stamps which today command high prices. After taking up his residence in San Antonio, he entered actively in business as a stamp dealer and followed this vocation until his death.

He became a member of the Texas Philatelic Association in 1897, and as a member and an officer rendered valuable service in behalf of that organization throughout his long period of membership. He served as Exchange Superintendent (in charge of sales) from 1899 to 1904, from 1906 to 1908, and again in 1912 and 1913. In 1915 he was elected Sales Superintendent, filling this position until 1921, when he gave up the work to devote his entire time to his private interests.

He became affiliated with the old Southern Philatelic Association in its infancy and in 1906 was honored with the presidency of that body. He was Sales Superintendent of the S. P. A. from 1907 to 1915, and later resigned from that society. He was also a member of the American Philatelic Association for many years.

His association with stamps for more than fifty years developed a keen judgment of stamps and their values and gave to him a rare knowledge of philatelic matters. He possessed to a remarkable degree the faculty of remembering individual stamps passing through his hands, a gift comparable to that of remembering faces and names. In looking over collections he would frequently point out stamps he had sold years before and relate the details of the bygone sales.

His integrity was manifested in all his personal and business relations, and he unfailingly adhered to the principle of the square deal.

He was married in 1890 to Miss Mathilda Sonneman. Surviving him are his widow, four sons, Francis A., of Houston, Texas; Roland C., of Hoboken, N. J., and Carl R. and Herman G., of San Antonio, and one grandson, Carl R., Jr. Three brothers are also left, Adolph and Gustave, of London, and Edward, of Frankfort-on-the-Main.

Charles Roemer was a loving husband and father and a true-hearted friend. His presence will be greatly missed in philatelic circles, and his memory will always be treasured by those who loved and esteemed him.

ATLAS STAMP CO. (P. C. Smith) W. Somerville, 44, Mass.

U. S. 2c SURFACE, IMPERFORATE

TYPE I—THE RARE BIRD.

The first 2c surface print imperforate, type I, designated by Scott as type IV was first located in Chicago, where a very few sheets were found. This find is in a light shade and has always been rare.

Here of late a larger find has been coming from Pittsburg in a much deeper color and certainly different from the early find. As for scarcity it is not to be compared with the early lot.

It will also be recalled that the same stamp comes in an imperforate condition in what we know as type II and III and these three types, in addition to a type IV, are known perforated 11. For those interested I offer fine mint blocks of four as follows:

2c surface (offset) print.

Type I, II, III, IV—Perf. 11 ..... $ 1.00
Type I, Imperf. (Chicago Find) 15.00
Type I, Imperf. (Pittsburgh) 7.00
Type II, III Imperf. ..... .50

Pair at the same rate.

The plate numbers to the Chicago find were in the 10800 series, while the Pittsburgh are 10918.

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

United States.—Mr. H. W. Porter sends a clipping from one of the daily papers containing an announcement of the Postmaster General relative to the colors of some of the denominations of the new series. "Cigarette blue" is the official color of the 20c, so named because the same color of ink is used for printing the internal revenue cigarette stamps. "Secretary of Senate compensation check pink" is the description of the pink color of the 9c stamp and the 4c will be in a "Fifty-dollar Liberty Loan Bond back" brown. In other words the new 4c will be in about the same color of brown as the present issue, the 9c in a little deeper pink while the 20c will be in a blue. The 1c, 2c and 5c must, of course, be in green, red and blue respectively in order to meet with the U. P. U. requirements.

Mr. Erwin Strasser is the first to show us a copy of the new 11c stamps used from Fremont, Ohio, on the day of issue, namely, October 4th. Mr. Strasser also submits for inspection a vertical pair of the current 1c green, perforated 11, unwatermarked, imperforate between. He located this in a sheet of stamps that he had purchased at the post-office. Sometime back a similar variety of the same stamp was found in a horizontal pair.

Mr. B. K. Miller, Benj. Cadbury, L. G. Barrett, H. W. Porter and others have called our attention to the fact that the 1c stamps in sheets of one hundred now have the plate number in the corners instead of on the sides as heretofore. Through the kindness of Mr. L. B. Hill, Director of the Bureau of Engraving & Printing, we are able to inform our readers that the first plate so marked was number 13745, which was certified for press on May 12, 1922. Since then these rotary plates have had the number in this position.

Mr. A. E. Owen states that he finds some of the numbers which we have announced in accordance with the official lists furnished us were in error and we take pleasure in making the corrections. The following are the correct listings:

Plates.	Den.	Class.	Series.	Subj.
13810-13	1c	Ord. Cvd.	1911	170
13836-39	20c	Ord.	1911	400
13844-47	1c	Due	1894	400
13876-77	1c	Ord. Cvd.	1911	400
13852-55	8c	Ord.	1911	400
14002-05	2c	Ord.	1911	400

Mr. W. F. Goerner submits for inspection booklet panes of six of the current 1c showing a plate crack running vertically along the right edge of the pane. The crack is rather strong and is readily noticeable.

Rev. C. L. Young sends for inspection two new overprinted envelopes not listed heretofore.

During August we called our readers' attention to the fact that at the U. S. Postal Agency in Shanghai, there was issued early in July the 1c and 2c stamp with a local overprint. Through the courtesy of Mr. W. Irving Glover, Third Assistant Postmaster General, we are able to announce that on June 20, 1922, the Postal Agent at Shanghai, China, was authorized by the Department to have 20,000 each of the 1c and 2c ordinary postage stamps surcharged by a local printer and in a letter received from the Agent, dated August 3rd, it is stated that these stamps were placed on sale July 1st.

Mr. E. G. Young in writing further regarding this provisional issue states that "There were only two or three days when they would sell you a full pane. At first it was a block of 25, later five of each, and towards the end of the period you had to look innocent of philatelic attributes to get them at all! The local price is about 20c—say 11c in gold, and the Chinese dealers seem to have very few at that price." Regarding minor varieties, Mr. Young inspected panes of each value very carefully and found nothing "except for a few misshapen periods, and one or two slightly broken letters, probably more a matter of inking than anything else."

We wish to thank Messrs. Paul J. Siddall and Richard Shockley for notes of interest.

Azores.—The Economist Stamp Co. submit for chronicle a copy of the 8c dark green stamp of Portugal, with the usual overprint for use in this colony.

Egypt.—All values of the current series are to be overprinted with an Arabic superscription commemorating the proclamation of King Fuad, and that the definitive stamp with portrait of His Khedivial Majesty are to be issued in April next. These stamps are now being printed in London (not, as has been stated elsewhere, at the Boulac National Printing Bureau).—Stamp Collecting.

Gambia.—The new stamps have arrived and make a very attractive series. There are two designs, the lower values from ½d to 10d bear on the right the King's head in a shield, surmounted by a crown, on the left is an elephant and palm tree. The higher values are of larger size, but the King's head is in the centre with palm tree and elephant on each side. In all the 19 values the King's head is in black, and all are on script CA watermarked paper except those on yellow, which are with old CA watermark.

On examining our consignment, which amounted to over £1,500 face value, we found some interesting varieties. Two sheets of sixty of the 1sh stamps were found with inverted watermark. The 4d, 7½d, 1sh and 5sh values are on deep yellow paper, varying slightly in shade with the exception of one sheet of the 5sh which is on a pale yellow-buff paper quite different from any of the others. The 4d and 7½d stamps are of the same colour as the others, but are of a different make of paper, originally white but dyed yellow after making, as the yellow dye can be completely discharged by immersing the stamps in water, leaving the paper quite white, without a trace of colour. It is possible there may be a few sheets of the 1sh and 5sh stamps printed on this paper. All remainders of ITALY.—The Economist Stamp Co. have sent us three values of a commemorative set of stamps that have recently been placed on sale. At the top of each are the words "Cinquantenario Mazziniano 1922". The values are 25c red, 40c brown and 80c blue. The first two are upright oblong stamps, the first showing a hand with a sword and beneath the figure the word "Amor"; the 40c has the portrait of the honored man. The other value shows a marble building with the name "Giuseppe Mazzini" above the entrance.

LUXEMBOURG.—A Philatelic Exhibition and Congress was held at Luxembourg from August 27th to 31st, and at a Post Office installed in the Exhibition, special postage stamps were on sale. These are of the type of the current issue, but are printed on paper watermarked with horizontal lines, and are imperforate. Only two values were issued, 25 and 30 centimes, of which 60,000 of each were printed, the 25c stamps are printed from plate No. 1, and the 30c from No. 4. The price of admission on the opening day was 5 francs, and each ticket of admission entitled the holder to purchase ten each of the special stamps. For the remaining four days the admission was 2 francs, entitling the visitor to purchase four pairs. The stamps were sold at their face value and the whole issue was exhausted before the close of the Exhibition. Letters posted at the Exhibition were stamped with a special postmark.—Whitfield King & Co.'s Bulletin.

SEYCHELLES.—The Economist Stamp Co. inform us of the appearance of the following values on script watermarked paper: 3c black, 4c green, 6c purple, 12c carmine rose, 15c yellow and 20c ultramarine.

A LETTER FROM MR. ADUIT.

We have just received a letter from A. Leon Adutt of Margate, England, president of the Isle of Thanet Philatelic Society. It has so much of interest in it that we reprint it in its entirety. The brochure referred to by him is a very interesting 32-page booklet dealing with the Cecil and containing as the author styles it "A glimpse of Old London and the New." As the headquarters of the great exhibition to be held in London next May, this hotel will be much in the public eye as a philatelic rendezvous. The letter follows:—

"I am in receipt of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS of September 16th, containing your Editorial Review regarding the Confederate envelopes and plates and other matter that I had the pleasure of sending you recently. I thought I would just like to send these lines to thank you for your kind notice and I am also obliged to you for pointing out one or two errors that had unfortunately crept into the article, in reference to dates—these were purely printer's errors —no doubt owing to the trouble at the time in connection with the printers' strike. The article which appeared in the July number of the London Philatelist was really not published until late in August. I have had, however, numerous letters from all parts of America from well-known collectors, all expressing their appreciation of the photographs of the Confederate envelopes, as well as the little article I had the pleasure of contributing. I had no idea that the same would prove so popular and I am pleased to report that it has been the means of collecting quite a quantity of interesting matter that I had not hitherto obtained.

No doubt you have already received particulars of the forthcoming stamp exhibition but in case you have not, I have pleasure in sending under separate cover, the first brochure published in connection with the same, also particulars of the Hotel Cecil.

I had the pleasure—with Mr. F. Melville—of making the arrangement at this hotel for the forthcoming Congress and Exhibition, and I hope as many as possible of the delegates from overseas will make a point of making the Hotel Cecil their headquarters, as the management is going to some considerable trouble and I know are in every way interesting themselves with a view to making all their guests comfortable whilst under their roof.

There is no paper I look forward to with greater pleasure weekly than your STAMP NEWS, which usually arrives here every Monday."

PRECANCELED IN CHRISTMAS MAIL.

Precanceled stamps: Many postmasters have found the use of precanceled stamps advantageous, in that it enables them to handle the crowd in the lobby more expeditiously and consequently with more satisfaction to the public. This is a matter which is well worth considering.

The usual method of using precanceled stamps, and the one that appears to be the most practical during rush periods, is as follows:

One clerk receives the parcels from the patron, weighs them, and with a colored pencil marks on the wrapper of each the amount of postage required.

After making these notations he passes the parcels to a clerk working alongside of him, preferably at his right, who collects the postage and in turn passes the parcels back to a third clerk who affixes the stamps and makes a primary separation of the parcels into baskets or bins properly labeled. Insured parcels are thrown into a basket by themselves from which they are taken to the clerks who write up the insurance slips. (These insurance receipts are given to the patron by the clerk who weighs and rates the packages.) The three clerks whose duties are outlined above constitute a unit. These units can be multiplied as many times as the amount of business will warrant or the counter space permit.

The use of precanceled stamps is permissible on parcel post matter, but care must be taken to see that such stamps do not get into the hands of the public. If used at all, they must be affixed to the parcels by employees or firms who have permits for the use of precanceled stamps.

A PASTEUR POSTAGE STAMP.

(The following editorial was taken from the Boston "Herald" and once again we have evidence of the fact that at least one upon the editorial staff of this great daily is following along the fortunes of philately. No daily paper in the country has made the valuable comment upon philatelic conditions and circumstances as has the "Herald".—W. O. W.)

France must issue shortly a new 50-centime stamp, in compliance with the Madrid postal convention. Whose face or figure shall be chosen for delineation? There is always at hand the artistic fancy of a figure representing Liberty, or one that may stand for France herself. If the face of a ruler be preferred, after the long prevailing fashion set by Alexander the Great in coinage, shall it be the face of Millerand or Poincare, or some other who, in former years, as president, king or emperor, directed the affairs of the French nation? Perhaps none of these. Some independent thinkers would like France to drop the habit of paying the highest honors to political celebrities. Consequently, the French government has before it the interesting proposal that the new postage stamp shall bear the portrait of Louis Pasteur.

That novel suggestion deserves serious consideration. By his life-long research as chemist and microscopist and his remarkable success in the application of his discoveries, Pasteur brought honor to his country, did her people and some of her valuable industries eminent service, and gave to the world a knowledge of diseases and a power of overcoming them that now work for the benefit of all humanity. His mastery of micro-organisms was a revelation to his contemporaries. It led to the revolution of surgical practice by Lister, and to that cultivation of bacilli and use of inoculation which counteract anthrax and other dangerous diseases. Of his research in the disease attacking the silk worm and his discovery of the active germ of vinous ferment, Huxley said that Pasteur's work in terms of money only was enough to cover the whole cost of the French war indemnity of 1870. The great pathologist devoted himself unselfishly to human service. A Pasteur postage stamp would do honor to France.

THE MICHIGAN STAMP CO.

An old meteor is again flashing across the philatelic sky. W. F. Fratcher, owner and manager of the Michigan Stamp & Coin Co., Detroit, Mich., has begun an advertising campaign in the Weekly that will cause other dealers to sit up and take notice. A beginning is made this week and a minimum of 5,000 lines will be used during the coming year to tell our readers the quality of the company's stock. Mr. Fratcher we have known for many years and we bespeak for his firm a generous response to his advertised offers.

A BOOST FOR U. S. REVENUES.

By H. R. J.

The revenue stamp branch of philately doesn't seem to be given much attention in your paper. Am still hoping to get a chance to obtain a new pamphlet bringing this matter up from 1898 to date. It is a wonderful field and the almost impossibility to obtain for instance the higher values of the present current documentary, stock transfer, and future delivery, etc., adds considerable interest. I presume many would like to see more on this subject.

What is more beautiful than the 1898-1902 battleship set, and the higher values also, but my goodness, what a fall from beauty the lower denominations of the 1914 and the present set, altho the $1.00 and up denominations of the 1914 and 1917 sets are quite presentable. To my mind the 1914 black Prop. set and the blue 1918 Prop. set, which were retired January 1, 1922, are not what would be called works of art. By the way, I had to obtain unused copies of the 20 and 40c of this set at the Chicago post-office, after signing up a death warrant and certificate required by the Int. Rev. Dept. I venture to say that few dealers have this entire blue set for sale, and the Government has probably destroyed them all by this time, and they are not listed in the stamps for sale by the Government Stamp Agency.

For real works of art the Civil War revenues 1862-1875 are hard to beat. The colors of these stamps for the most part hold well, but I can't see why the catalogues describe the 5c, 20c, 25c and $5.00 first issue as "red"; they are mostly brown. But I have several really "red" first issue $1.00, altho some of the $1.00 have faded to a brown. The greens of the first issue have held out against time very well and seem to be the best of the series for retaining color; this is especially true of the 70c, $3.00 and $10.00, also 3c, but the $50.00 Mortgage I have has faded some. Some of the second and third issue 1871-4 look as tho printed yesterday instead of 50 years ago; this is particularly true of my copies of the $5.00 and $10.00 third issue. My copy of the first issue $3.50 blue and $25.00 red, are really perfect. They evidently put time and expense into revenues in those good old days.

THE HOUSE OF CHAMPION.

Two years ago it was the writer's privilege to be in Paris for over a week, during which time he had the opportunity of seeing the philatelic life of this great city. He made his headquarters at a hotel near the stamp shop of Theodore Champion and made several visits to this famous store. A brochure is just at hand from the firm entitled "A Visit to the House," and it is wh a no small degree of pleasure that e review the same. The book is print on very heavy calendared stock. The are 24 pages and upon each page i a half-tone illustrating the various partments. The quaint staircase le ing to the first floor, the private office Mr. Champion, the office of the manag sales rooms, store rooms, wholesale partment, salon, pay office and publi tion room are among the features t tured. This booklet can no doubt e obtained by writing to Theodore Champion, 13 Rue Drouot, Paris, France. t is a work of art and the firm's regi for English patronage is shown by fact that it is printed in excellent E lish.

PUZZLE REPORT.

Our contest based on the questions asked in the issue of September 9, 1922, by Mr. T. H. Ames, was entered into by about fifty readers. While the close of the competition was announced as October 1, several lists received from distant points that came later were considered eligible. The first prize was awarded to Charles F. Schell, 48 Ash Street, Braintree 84, Mass., and the second to Mr. S. G. Rich, Box 64, Athens, West Virginia, and a third prize must be added, as Mr. J. D. Sague, Cristo, Oriente, Cuba, was almost perfect in his answers. The following entry by Mr. Schell conforms to the answers as given by Mr. Ames and is interesting enough to publish in its entirety.

1. The letters A., H., P D., appearing on the stamps of Azores, 1906, are the initial letters of the names of the three principal islands of the group, Angra, Horta and Ponta Delgada, which formerly were supplied with separate issues of stamps.

2.—The inscription "Afrique Occidentale Francaise means "French West Africa," and appears on the stamps of all the French colonies located in this region. The following is a list of these colonies.

Dahomey.	Senegal.
French Guinea.	Togo.
French Soudan.	Upper Volta.
Ivory Coast.	Upper Senegal
Niger Territory.	and Niger.
Mauritania.

I believe that the stamps of Upper Senegal and Niger are now obsolete.

3.—The stamps of Panama, 1878, picture the isthmus of Panama, and show the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. Latter issues of this country show maps of the isthmus, which contain portions of both oceans.

The stamps of the first issue of Costa Rica also picture two oceans, each with a ship on it, as in the case of the first issue of Panama, separated by a range of mountains.

The 1896 and 1897 issues of Nicaragua also depict a map showing portions of both the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

4.—The gentleman on the 1863-70 issues of France is Napoleon III, Emperor of France. The decoration of the laurel wreath was added to his portrait after the victories of his troops over the Austrians at Magenta and Solferino.

5.—I believe Italy's airpost issues of 1917 bear the earliest dates of any airmail stamps listed in Scott's Catalogue.

6.—I believe the country referred to by this question must be Jamaica, but a slight mistake has been made in the question, as Jamaica's issues now include four stamps picturing a contingent; both the 1½d green "Contingent embarking" and 2½d blue "Return of a Contingent" have appeared with both the old CA and with the Script watermark. The die for the 2½d on script paper has been re-engraved, correcting an error in the Union Jack.

7.—The motto "Dieu et Mon Droit," a portion of the arms of the royal family of England appears on the stamps of Antigua, 1903, which depict these arms.

8.—The 25 centimes stamp of the "Don Quixote" issue of Spain (1905) depicts Sancho Panza, esquire of the Knight Don Quixote being tossed in a blanket. I believe according to the story, Don Quixote and his esquire refused to pay for their lodgings at an inn, maintaining that it was the duty of the innkeeper to furnish them with food and lodging free of charge, as was expected in the days of real chivalry. In revenge the inn-keeper and his servants tossed the squire in a blanket, managing also to obtain possession of Panza's purse.

9.—I think that our own United States is the largest country, both in area and population, which has never issued a surcharged postal adhesive stamp.

10.—The first stamps used by Eastern Roumelia are stamps of Turkey overprinted with letters R. O., the initials of the French name for the country, Roumelie Orientale.

PRECANCELLED PROPRIETARIES.

Franklin S. Smith.

A more exact title than the above would be "The Cancellations Made by the Proprietors of Articles upon which there was a Stamp Tax." This would be comprehensive enough to cover all the Revenue issues with both printed and hand-stamped cancellations from 1862 to 1919, when the burden was shifted from the proprietor to the consumer. Hence very few of the recent blue issue of 1919 can be called "Proprietary Cancellations," nearly all being those of the drug-stores or other sellers of proprietary articles requiring a stamp-tax. In many cases even the placing of uncancelled stamps upon the bottle or package depended on the individual opinion (or indifference) of the clerk.

There are so many cancellations on what are called "Civil War Issues" that it is hard to decide just where to begin a description of the authentic varieties.

Mr. E. B. Sterling of Trenton, N. J., published in 1888 a list in his "Price Catalogue of the Revenue Stamps of the United States," numbering some 250 varieties on the regular issue, and 400 on the private die Match, Medicine, Perfumery, and Playing Card stamps, a number of them listed as "written dates." He says in regard to them: "A provisional substitute for the private dies not then in use, but afterward prepared for their special benefit, and also used by such firms while waiting for their stamps to be delivered by the Government, which in many cases were delayed through various causes; also such firms as had private medicines and used the regular Proprietary Stamps to advertise their specialties. Hence, these surcharged Stamps all have a history, and are worthy of a place in all collections of Revenues as Provisional issues."

"Only those that can actually be traced to private firms, or mention the business on the face have any collectible value."

The valuable book "The Revenue Stamps of The United States," published by The Boston Philatelic Society in 1899, lists 323 cancellations of proprietors on the Civil War issues.

Mr. Julius Adenaw in his "Complete Catalogue of the Revenue Stamps of the United States" gives lists of several hundred varieties, and says very wisely, "I would not advise a beginner to collect these stamps, but a well advanced collector of U. S. Revenues will certainly find them of sufficient interest to warrant their collection.

The earliest printed cancellation is that of A. Dougherty, OCT. 1881 on the 1c Playing Cards. and he also cancelled the 1c Express and Proprietary, 2c Playing Cards blue, Playing Cards orange, Proprietary blue, 3c Playing Cards, Proprietary, and Telegram, 4c Playing Cards and Proprietary, 5c Playing Cards, Express, and 10c Proprietary. From OCT. 1862 to NOV. 1863 the cancellation was in three lines; initials A. D. in script, the month, and the year. In 1864 the cancellation was in two lines; A. D. in Roman capitals, and the year below. In 1864, 1865 and 1866 he got his private dies and used no more of the regular issue. Other Playing Card cancellations are those of Caterson & Brotz, Samuel Hart & Co., J. J. Levy, Lawrence & Cohen and Victor E. Mauger.

Among the proprietors of matches are found American Match Co., Byam, Carlton Match Co., Brockett & Newton, Brown & Durling, James Eaton, Nathan Fenn, Thomas Gorman & Bro., G. W. Gaffitt & Co., P. T. Ives, Newbauer & Co., E. R. Tyler, S. R. Van Duzer, and F. Zaiss. Twenty-two of those using their own private dies also precancelled them. A few hand-stamped cancellations are also found on the regular issue.

A list of the proprietors of medicines and perfumes would be longer, for the later issues of 1875 to 1881 were used as well as their own private dies. The combined lists of Sterling, Boston Philatelic Society and Adenaw would be incomplete and complete lists of all the foregoing would be almost impossible owing to their being scattered among all the specialists in these cancellations, as well as found in nearly every general collection of U. S. Revenues.

Many of the printed cancellations vary from the new initials and dates, and some are quite unique and of artistic design. "Benton's Pine Tree Tar Troches" cancellation is a framed rectangle having a pine tree in the middle with the names, title and date grouped around the tree symmetrically. It is found on the 1c red Proprietary, 1c black and green 1875, and 1c green 1878. A 2c blue Proprietary has in five lines,

Dr. Fitler's
Carminative for Infants and Adults.
Price 35 cents.

Another on the 2c Proprietary has a druggist's mortar and pestle with a three-line inscription on the side of it, POLAND'S MAGIC POWDERS. A 1c red Proprietary has a seven-line cancellation,

Scovil's
Worm Killer.
Christie's
Ague Balsam.
Dr. Bicknell's
Bitters.
1870.

A story is told of a hospital patient who had been kept on a restricted diet for some time, and finally the doctor said he was well enough to have some solid food. A vision of a plate of corned beef and cabbage, a cup of coffee, and a wedge of pie came to him, but the nurse gave him only a small piece of buttered toast, and a few spoonfuls of broth. As she turned away she asked him if there was anything else he wanted. and he asked for a postage stamp so he could do a little reading. She might have brought him a 1c, 2c or 4c Proprietary with the following inscription:

Walker & Taylor.
PROPRIETORS.
M. B. SLOAN'S
Condition Powders,
Horse Ointment,
Family Ointment
Instant Relief,
P. & B.'s Magic Oil.
Irving's Pain Curer.
1866.

The 1c and 2c black and green, and the 1c green have a similar inscription but shorter.

Some red cancellations are those of American Eye Salt Co., H. E. Buckl & Co., Gillet's Chemical Works, Hu rick's Family Medicines, Hall & Ruc Rumford Chemical Works, James Swa and R. & G. A. Wright.

The two-line cancellation of H. S Stevens on the 3c green and black, i the 3c orange extends across two stam used as six cents, as well as the two li in smaller type on single stamps.

The tax on proprietary articles w removed July 1, 1883, and the re series was that issued in 1898 cal "The Spanish War Series."—Precan Gazette.

PHILATELIC NOTES FROM FRANCE.

By LOWELL J. RAGATZ.

I spent most of the month of September along the Riviera, and while I was interested chiefly in scenic sights, I was able to get hold of some nice things in the stamp line, and found out many matters of philatelic interest.

I motored from Grenoble, where I had been summering, to Nice, via the route over the French Alps. A few hours out of Barcelonnette, our party ran into a snowstorm which developed into a blizzard and piled up six-foot drifts. We sought refuge in a chalet some two kilometers away, and there we found a party of fourteen who had headed from Nice, and who had been snowbound since the preceding evening.

Among those in the chalet was the former commander-in-chief of the Dutch colonial forces with headquarters in Java. The general had seen thirty years of service in the Indies. I learned from him that some ten years ago, orders were given to government employees to save the stamps from all correspondence which came into their offices, these to be sent to Batavia.

This, of course, explains the source of the tremendous lot of carefully classified stamps, including huge quantities of official issues offered for sale at auction by the colonial administration of the Dutch Indies about four years ago. Persia conducted a similar sale about 1915. The example of these two countries might well be followed by many of the smaller states who are constantly pinched for lack of money. Dealers at least would prefer this to having stamps made for the sole purpose of reaching into the philatelist's purse.

There are two very fine stamp shops open in Nice during the summer, those of "Old Stamps" at 3 Boulevard Victor Hugo and of Ch. Creutz at 19 rue Hotel des Postes. Both are much above the ordinary American stamp shop in appearance, and both are on the ground floor. "Old Stamps" has a considerable stock of the early issues. Among the interesting things noted in the window display were Spain baby heads, 73 of 20c and 42 of 25c used on one cover, and 22 of 40c, 9 of 20c, 2 of 25c and 1 of 1P used on another. These are not philatelic covers, but were used in the regular course of business by a commercial house in Cadiz to another in Marseilles, in 1895.

Monsieur Creutz carries a very complete line of stamps, his counter books being among the most attractive I have ever seen. His shop is much frequented by foreigners and he does considerable advertising in tourist leaflets and on menus and in programs. As a sideline, he carries fountain pens and stationery.

I spent three days in Monaco and was as much interested in the postal service arrangements as I was in the Casino, where Mary Garden was doing spectacular playing and was giving her winnings to charity.

Monaco, as every one knows, is one of the six petty states of Europe, and is located in southeastern France, and has managed to maintain its independence solely through a series of historical accidents. But this sovereignty is purely nominal—a pleasant bit of fiction. For all practical purposes it is a part of France, and the postal service of the principality is in charge of the director of posts of the French Department of Alps Maritimes.

The whole country is situated around one bay, and in appearance is one city, and that a French one. However, there are four distinct cities, three in the principality, and one in France. The former are Monaco City on the promontory around the prince's palace, La Condamine around the port, and Monte Carlo built around the Casino; the latter is Beausoleil in the department of Alps Maritimes. Presumably no one, not even the natives, knows the exact boundaries of the three cities of the principality. I asked innumerable persons, and not one could tell me. As for that between Monte Carlo and Beausoleil, the matter is more simple. One has merely to look for the street on one side of which the posters bear French revenue stamps, and on the other side, they appear with Monacan revenues.

An amusing incident occurred the first time I set out to buy Monaco stamps. I left the Credit Lyonnais and asked a is again to appear with its new fur for 1923. You know how it looks—blue in color—3¼ inches wide and 5¾ inches long—just pocket size. If it was a year old for each page, it would be 44 now.

This is my annual price-list that so many find handy as a pocket check-list. It is being revised to 1923 quotations and ought to be ready by December 1st.

PRICE—10 CENTS

which is refunded on your first purchase of $1.00 for it.

I'm proud of my cat and many collectors are lonesome without its purr. I've been told that when it arrives at a collector's home, its purr plainly follows the notes of "Home, Sweet Home." It's the kind of a cat that don't like to "Stop at Hudson."

H. F. COLMAN

passerby for the way to the post-office. I found it close by, and asked the lady clerk for 500 sets 1c to 1F. She smiled and asked if I knew where I was. It developed that I was in Beausoleil, where, of course, only French stamps, for which no one cares, were on sale. She said that the same mistake was made several times a week.

Monaco has only 23,000 inhabitants, but there being three cities, there are three post-offices, each in charge of a commissioner under the director of posts at Nice. Stamp collectors supply about a fifth of the revenue of its postal department, according to the estimate of an official with whom I conversed. The same gentleman said that about one in 500 pieces of mail matter passing through the post was for the principality itself. French postal forms are used throughout, the stamps are printed in the same plant as the French ones and in the same sheet arrangement. Letters for France and vica versa travel at the French domestic rate of 25c.

At Monte Carlo I found a most obliging person in the person of M. Jouquet, who presides at the wholesale window. There were three persons, all collectors, in line ahead of me, and it was a delight to a philatelist's ears to hear him say, "Here is a beautifully centered block of four of the 5F. I saved it for a collector." He has a special post-office stock book (not a dealer's stock book!) in which copies for collections were available in singles and blocks, and furnishes customers with envelopes for their purchases.

On sale were Albert I, 1, 2, 5, 10, 15, 25 on 10, 40, 50 and the 75 with December surcharge centime values, the 1F Albert, and 5F palace type, the old type dues 1 and 5 centimes, the new type 1, 20 on 10, and 40 on 30 centimes. Also the 10 and 15 centime cards and the 10 centime letter sheets, and, strange as it may seem, French orphan charity stamps, the old unsurcharged issue. No Monaco charity stamps were available.

It will be noted that there is no unsurcharged 75c included in the above. There are none, the 75c yellowish-brown having been sold out in one day. No 75c whatever are available over the regular counter, the 75c December surcharges being in reserve for collectors only, although the normal price for this variety is now three francs, and M. Jouquet is well aware of the fact.

None of the old dues or anything in the line of a 75c value is available at either La Condamine or Monaco City. The Monte Carlo office is therefore the one at which collectors can best be served. Orders addressed to M. Jouquet in care of the Monte Carlo post-office and accompanied by international money order will be properly filled. It is advisable to send a supplementary order however, as supplies of the old dues and the 75c surcharges are limited.

Prince Louis, the new sovereign and a brigadier general in the French army, will be crowned in October. It is almost certain that the event will be marked in a philatelic way, and as absolutely nothing has been done in regard to a permanent new issue, a surcharge can be expected. The only question is as to on what stamps. It is considered unfitting to overprint the Albert issue; the charity ones have been used up as such or with the March surcharge. There remain the dues, which are scarcely likely to be employed, and the beautiful 5F palace type. Opinion has it that the latter will be selected for the occasion. It might be mentioned that British dealers have already placed orders.

As in France, the tobacco shops of Monaco sell stamps at retail. They handle solely two values, however, the 10c and the 25 on 10c.

Stamps of the principality are on sale in many places, such as curio shops, souvenir stands, and newspaper kiosks. They appear to come from a common source, where, I could not learn. Prices are very high, two and three times catalogue. These are intended for tourists, naturally.

A nice stock of all issues practically complete is on sale at the English Pharmacy, with quotations at current rates. The same firm has on sale a small general collection.

A collector consulting the latest edition of Yvert's cannot help feeling that had visitors to the principality invested in recent surcharges at face value instead of in Casino chips, they would have been very much the gainers.

At Marseilles, I visited the large, well-lighted second floor shop of J. Nitard Fils et Cie. This firm has a superb and well-balanced stock, with especially good items in early Europe and in the line of French colonials. I understand that it supplies the local kiosks and stands with the sets and packets which one sees at every turn. There is scarcely a block in the business section of the city where one cannot buy stamps of one sort or another for a collection.

At the colonial exposition there is much of interest to the collector. Current issues are on sale at face in the commissariats of the respective colonial pavilions. Huge quantities have been sold, but strangely enough, according to several persons in charge of stocks with whom I talked, the principal sales have been made in wholesale to persons who make up colonial packets and cry them on the grounds at the following prices—1c values at 1F the dozen varieties, packets of 25 varieties at 3F, of 50 at 5F, 100 at 10F, and 150 at 25F. I saw at least a dozen packet vendors, black, brown and white. At these prices, naturally, a handsome profit is made.

stamps in frames appear in the respective postal exhibits. That of Tunis is of particular interest, as it includes the original designs of the current issue. The drawings are about twelve by eighteen inches, and are done in black and white, the design being drawn in ink, and the filling in work being done in wash. One has been touched up in colour to match the 35c. and that value has been filled in the tablet.

The Tunisian commissariat has not only the ordinary postage stamps on sale, like the others, but has the parcel post, the 1920 airplane, the regular postage dues, and the 1914 2F on 5F as well. The latter is a remarkably scarce stamp, and with dealers asking several times Yvert's price, it is somewhat of a surprise to find it on sale at face. These items are all in the hands of Madame Lombard, at the commissariat of Tunis. National Colonial Exposition, Marseilles. She carefully fills mail orders, but no orders, however, can be considered after November 1, the closing date of the exposition.

Among the exhibits of printing and publishing houses of France, I noticed a number of sample stamps in one and two colours and in different designs, printed in the plant of B. Arnaud of Paris and Lyons for submission to interested governments. It will be remembered that American Bank Note Company samples in several designs were prepared for a similar purpose some forty years ago and are now and then met with in auction sales.

In the Senegal exhibit, collections of scenic view cards each bearing a cancelled to order current 1c, were on sale in lots of 10, 25, 50 and 100 at 1, 6, 10 and 20 francs respectively.

In a small mountain settlement post-office four hours north of Marseilles I located a lot of about 150 imperforate dues, of the early issue, in between trains. Needless to say, I bought the lot.

All through southern France, Marseilles excepted, one sees a line of packets and sets put up in very distinctive form and supplied to small shop dealers by a firm in Lyons. I was told that a supply man calls regularly to check accounts and to leave new goods. At Toulon I noted an entire large show window given over to offerings of this concern. Prices ran rather high, that is, about catalogue, but the attractive arrangement and display of the goods sells enormous quantities. Very good clean copies are supplied.

I have noted that French dealers display their sample sets in the office, not in counter books as is done in the States, but in large frames. Most of the wall-space in the Nitard shop is covered with such sets in frames.

I have learned through correspondence with a Parisian dealer and with two American collectors in Paris, that the available supplies of a European number 1 and of a certain low-priced but popular and rather hard-to-get United States stamp are being taken up. Several thousand dollars have been invested already. I do not feel free to name the stamps, but as news of this kind soon leaks out, two sharp boosts will certainly soon occur, as was the case in the prices of Norway, No. 1, and of the odd value 1901 Victoria, head issue of Canada after one dealer began to sweep the market.

The French postal officials have determined to get rid of the orphan charity stamps, the sale of which had dwindled to nothing, and so on September 1, we were greeted with new varieties, the old issue with postal value remaining the same but the surplus to charity being reduced by means of a surcharge. This is the makeup of the new issue—2c plus 1c, 5c plus 2½c, 15c plus 5c, 25c plus 5c, 35c plus 5c, 50c plus 10c, 1F plus 25c, 5F plus 1F. The old issue was supposed to be officially withdrawn the same day, but I bought all values unsurcharged up to the 5F as late as September 28, in small country post-offices. The old issue is valid for interior service up to October 31.

The buying of these charity stamps is made so hard that it seems almost as though the administration did not want to part with them. None of the values are on sale over the regular counters, wholesale or retail. They are handled in the accounting office only, and it has happened twice, at Cannes and at Menton, that when I went there to inquire for them, no one present knew of their existence. Again, wholesale purchases appear to be frowned upon. At Marseilles I attemped to get several hundred short sets. An earnest attempt was made to sell me complete ones, but when I declined, I was allowed to purchase only about one-half of the number I wanted. Furthermore, central post-offices only, carry them, and the shortest time I have had to wait to get the stamps was half an hour. It is surprising if anyone but collectors and dealers buy these stamps, considering the red tape one must unwind to get them.

A NEW AIR MAIL.

We have received from Olin H. Clark a specimen of an interesting cover used in airplane mail between Hartford and New York on October 6. The U. S. Mail Plane No. 32 left New York for Hartford carrying mail, and returned on the afternoon of the same day carrying mail to New York and the west. This is probably the first airplane mail service that has been established between a New England city and New York. The envelope bears airmail impressions that guarantee the service rendered, and the cover also has the familiar aviation meet advertising cancellation that the Hartford office has been using for some weeks. This meet is to be held November 10.

AT SENTOUS JUNIOR HIGH

Miss Auerbach is going to resume the meetings of the Stamp Club this term. It is only for B7's and A7's. But those who joined in the seventh grade last year may remain as long as they are in Sentous.

Last year there were about thirty-five members. The club will meet every Wednesday. The object of the club is to get the students of Sentous to start a collection of foreign and United States stamps. and put them into books and keep them to hand down for generations. Some very old stamps are valuable.—Comet, Los Angeles, Cal.

IN PRAISE OF HAYES.

By Charles H. Ball.

Your Chronicler of New Issues is rather severe in his comment on former President Rutherford B. Hayes, whose portrait is on the new 11 cent stamp. He says, "Hayes never did anything that history will remember, and I imagine our only reason for having him is because he happened to have been born just a hundred years ago."

Hayes may not have been a great president, but he was a courageous figure on the battle-field and in the Presidency. It may pay some people to look him up in the cyclopedia. Two courageous things he did were to reform the civil service and to conciliate the Southern states. He was resolved to serve his party best by serving his country best, and for this politicians never forgave him. I think he deserves a place on the stamp.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—In our issue of October 14, Walter T. Holmes, 39 Gore St., Hamilton, Ont., Can., had an advertisement of unused Canadian stamps. In some way a * was affixed to what should have been a used item. Mr. Holmes offered 100 different foreign British Colonials for 20c. We print this notice in the hope that he may secure sufficient orders to pay him for the extra trouble given him in correspondence.

—H. E. Robertson submits a new British metered cancellation. It is quite interesting in its design. It consists of a long rectangular frame in which is the name of the city, accompanied by the word PAID also ½d with date "Oct. 6, 1922." The one before us is from London and the color of the cancellation is red. We do not intend to note these various cancellations as they appear, but shall leave it to our English exchanges to give to us the essential matter dealing with the new order of things. A. A. Wasserscheid sends us a marking from Hamburg, Germany, of a similar character, but in this latter instance the words "DEUTSCH REICH" are given with 125 in bold figures in the center of the design. No value is indicated.

—"I think it is about time I gave you some expression of what I think of the pulling qualities of the Weekly. As you know I have had a small advt. with you regularly for several years, first as my new issue service and later on the A. P. S. Every week brought replies. Even now from the A. P. S. advt. I am averaging several replies a week. You are evidently reaching a bunch of collectors who are out of the beaten paths and therefore very responsive to the Weekly advts.—J. E. Guest.

—We are indebted to Frank A. Goldsmith for two new advertising cancellations:—"Florida State Fair, Nov. 17-25, 1922" and "Landing of Ponce de Leon, St. Augustine, Apr. 4-6, 1923." The former is from Jacksonville and the latter from St. Augustine.

—The philatelic papers of Europe and various dealers as well are expressing themselves vigorously concerning the laxness of American stamp firms in settling accounts. Philatelic Francaise has an editorial bearing on this in which dissatisfaction as to existing conditions is very plainly stated. It is up to American dealers to keep the reputation of the trade upon a high footing.

—F. W. Reid of Denver, Colo., has just issued a pricelist of Australian Commonwealth stamps at wholesale. Stamps are priced per 10, 100 and 1,000. A copy will be furnished on request.

—F. L. Belanger, Sherbrooke, Quebec, is about to prepare a serial on the telegraph stamps of North America and would like any information possible concerning these stamps that our readers can furnish. He would like the loan of books or articles dealing with telegraph stamps and will appreciate any co-operation that can be given him.

—We have a letter from Peter P. Canteen of Buffalo in which he claims that his city post-office should share with Worcester, Mass., in the credit of being equipped with the circular mechanical facing tables that will soon be in general use in the larger post-offices. The letters short and long are sorted by clerks and dropped into the proper slot faced correctly. They are then carried to a rack similar to the one employed on a cancelling machine and there piled so that the operator of the cancelling machine may choose a stack of shorts longs as he desires.

—A. W. Whitten advises us of tw new postal cancellations. One is fro Wilmington, N. C. "Armistice Day C ebration, Reunion of Veterans, Nov. 1 and the other "Red Cross Roll Ca Nov. 11-30, Join." This latter will doubt appear from various cities.

—Alfred F. Lichtenstein sends us very interesting stampless cover fro England. The postage is represented a circular paid marking. It bears simp the inscription "Bungay, Paid, 40C22 A. M." The color is red. The cov enclosed a circular.

OUR NEW HALF DOLLARS.

Within a few years we have had a number of commemorative half dollars coined which are legal tender, but have not sold from the beginning at a premium, the U. S. receiving from them only their face value, and the extra premium realized going towards the expense of the exposition, or for some other object of National or State interest, such as a park or a monument.

The first one was the Columbus half dollar of 1892, being the 400th anniversary of the landing of Columbus in America. These sold at one dollar each to help the great Chicago fair. After selling thousands of these, which it was expected from the premium paid would be treasured up as souvenirs, a foolish thing was done in ordering a large quantity coined in 1893 which commemorated nothing, and were distributed at par, causing a coin which caused no end of issues from those who refused them as legal tender.

The next was the Panama or San Francisco half dollar issued in 1915 at the exposition there, and also sold at a color, the premium going to the fair.

These have been followed by 1918 Lincoln, 1920 Pilgrim, to commemorate the landing of the Pilgrims in 1620, 1920 Maine, 1921 Pilgrim (a fresh supply needed with both dates), Missouri, Alabama, and lastly the Grant half dollar in 1922.

Of the Missouri half dollars there are two varieties, one of which has on it small figures 24, which signifies that it was the 24th state admitted into the Union, as will be seen by the following classification of the stars on our flag arranged in rows, 8 states in a row.

1st row—Penn., N. J., Ga., Conn., Mass., Md., S. C.
2nd " Va., N. Y., N. C., R. I., Vt., Ky., Tenn.
3rd " Ohio, Ind., Miss., Ill., Ala., Me., Mo.
4th " La., Mich., Fla., Tex., Ia., Wis., Cal., Minn.
5th " Colo., Nev., W.Va., Nev., Neb., Col., N.Dak., S.Dak.
6th " Mont., Wn., Ida., Wyo., Utah, Okla., N.Mex., Ariz.

Making 48 states and 48 stars on our flag in 1912. It will be seen that Maine and Vermont were not in the original thirteen states, but were subsequently set off from Massachusetts and New York.—Light.

VARIOUS MATIERS CONSIDERED.

By Frank L. Applegate.

In Mr. Ward's department mention is made of the discovery of a $15 California Insurance stamp printed in blue being a hitherto unknown variety. This variety was checked in the Mss. copy for the State Revenue Catalogue as No. 140d but the check mark was inadvertently omitted by the printer. I have it checked as the possession of a prominent specialist in state revenues residing in New York City. Of course it is very rare as are all the blue Insurance stamps. Possibly Mr. Selianoff refers to the same copy, or if another possibly there are only two in existence.

Under "Some Philatelic Problems" I would like to state for the benefit of "Preplexed Collector" that U. S. 2c 1898, No. 279b c so-called "rose carmine," is not the stamps surcharged to make Cuba No. 222 and 223a, both of which are on the 2c carmine of 1895, No. 252, which was the common variety in use at that time and which was never entirely superseded by either of the shades listed in the catalogue under 1898.

The orange red 2c (279b) appeared in considerable quantity late in 1898 and was used for part of the Cuba and Philippine surcharges, but after being printed in orange red for only a short time the regular carmine color of 1895 was restored. In fact I doubt very much that there was any conscious intention of changing the color. The other color listed as a sub variety of the orange red, viz.: the "rose carmine" is a rare variety. Both should rather be listed as sub varieties of No. 252, as far, I believe, as the intentions of the Bureau were concerned.

During the period of their use (about January, 1899) only a single copy used on the envelope came to my notice and it was so striking in contrast with other 2c shades that I noted it particularly and retained it in my collection for a number of years, but unfortunately removed it from the cover without taking any note of its mailing point. Rose carmine is hardly an accurate term to describe this color. Rose is better, in fact, I would call it a very good rose, color analysis showing it to be about Red 90 Violet 10, against Red 100 for carmine, R.94V.6 for carmine rose and R. 97V.3 for rose carmine.

A carmine rose "shade" was common as early as 1897, in fact, I can show one on cover mailed to me in Dec., 1897, from St. Louis, which is much more of a rose than the regular carmine, and it is this shade I am sorry to say which has sometimes, and recently too, been offered in prominent auction sales as the rare 279b c which it resembles, but lacks the full rose depth of the true 279b c.

"Perplexed collector" is entirely wrong when he concludes 279b c to be a fade of 252. He has not yet identified properly No. 279b c whose strong beautiful color is impossible to be produced or deduced from No. 252.

WHY $32,000 FOR THE 1c BRITISH GUIANA?

(This clipping is taken from "Light," a new publication from the office of Wm. P. Brown, Richmond Hill, N. Y. City. Mr. Brown will be remembered as the oldtime N. Y. City dealer who was located for many years on Nassau St. This article will be of particular interest, written as it is by Mr. Brown. We recall that in 1876 the Managing Editor of the WEEKLY purchased his first stamps from Mr. Brown.—W. O. W.).

We read in the papers of the sale at auction in Paris on April 6th of this year of a 2c Hawaiian Postage Stamp of 1851 from the collection of Count Ferrary bringing $15,000. We sold two of these stamps to him in 1872 for $25 each. We also read of another stamp from his collection, a used British Guiana 1 cent stamp of 1856, black on red paper, a rude type-set affair, which is the only one known to exist, which brought $32,000, bought for an American collector.

Count Ferrary's collection was sold in several sections and was expected to bring over a million dollars, as he was very wealthy and had been a heavy buyer for many years. When we visited him in Paris we passed the sentry in his stone box-like hut at the heavy gate entrance to his grounds, and were ushered into a large room, looked like a junk shop on the second floor, and in talking with him we remarked, "I suppose you intend to leave your collection to the French." "Me leave my collection to the French!" he angrily replied, stamping his foot on the floor. "I hate the French!" By the irony of fate, when he died in Germany in 1917, being a native of Austria, his collection which he had willed to the Berlin Museum was confiscated by the French government and sold by them towards reparation payments from the Germans.

This sale of a postage stamp for $32,000, which had an original value of 1 cent, which had no artistic merit, and no historic interest, is of special interest to any one to whom that amount would be a competency for life. Why was that sum paid? If the purchaser wanted a lot of reproductions made that would require an expert to tell the difference with a powerful glass, for $20 he could get a thousand of them made which would cost him 2c apiece, and for all purposes except that they were not the original stamp, would be just as good as the one he holds.

There is but one answer to this question. It is the result of covetousness which is denounced in the tenth commandment in the law, as shown in the purchase of diamonds, pearls, dazzling attire, costly equipages and palatial residences. Christ said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and thy neighbor as thyself," comprised the whole law. If we love our neighbor as ourselves we will have such sympathy for them that we would consider it wicked to live in luxury while they lived in penury and squalor. There is enough in this world of the necessaries of life to make all with a proper spirit contented, and if we have more than we need for our own comfort, and have the right spirit toward others, instead of wanting to spend it for things with which to dazzle, and which are unnecessary, we would want to spend it to make the world around us more comfortable.

EDITORIAL.

In our opinion, one of the most momentous events in the history of American philately is the decision recently of the American Philatelic Society to sponsor a publicity movement and to contribute from its treasury a sum of money to seal the pact. It has been a long time since the American Philatelic Society has appeared in the role of a solicitor of funds for an object of this kind; and we believe that the society will be instrumental in collecting a fund of a size to allow the plan of directed publicity to be given a fair trial. A good many years ago the A. P. S. collected from the dealers a sum that was applied to missionary work among the boys; and instructive leaflets, containing stamps to illustrate the text were employed to advantage. At the time, we regarded these philatelic lessons as just the thing for the boys; and the results of the campaign justified the work, we are sure. We were in close touch with the committee who had charge of the plan and we remember how we were impressed for several reasons, the most striking of which was the puzzled inquiries of the few adults who were considered as prospects as to the why and wherefore of stamp collecting. At best, while the work was effective, it was slow and the individual adherent was gained only after almost an undue amount of concentration was centered on him. Now, in accord with the spirit of the times, the mass method should be employed.

The course of action of the committee or officers having the publicity work in hand, probably will take the line of articles correctly and capably written by newspaper men of training. In this way, the contributions, which will be acceptable to the best newspapers and periodicals will have that important if somewhat intangible quality of readability. If an adult who is receptive to the philatelic appeal reads a good article on philately, he is apt to become a collector, sooner or later. It would be idle to say that the number of stamp collectors in this country has not been growing faster than any natural increase could account for; and the pleasing condition arises from the burst of public mention that stamp collecting has been receiving in the press for some time past. While philately is still a timely topic for the newspapers and periodicals, we want to improve the tone and give a "handle" to the articles that the readers may grasp. These are merely surmises on our part, but it is safe to say that whatever plans will be adopted, they will be well-measured and worthy of men who have a clear business view.

We have no doubt that the fund that will be collected by the authorized agents of the A. P. S. will be adequate for a thorough test of the plans and while the money will not come in a golden shower yet we know that there are enough professionals in philately, who in their approval of the work proposed, from luke-warm to enthusiastic, to ensure a fund of fair proportions. There are always skeptics to consider in pushing a movement of the kind but even they may be induced to pay something for the confirmation of their judgment in seeing their prophecies of failure realized! We want to see the dealers get behind a campaign of this kind not alone for the results that are almost certain to be achieved, but also for the pooling of their common interests. The dealers should become better acquainted with one another through association in a work of this kind so that if, in time to come, they will have to mobilize hastily to repel aggressions on their business, they will have some knowledge of mass movement. The dealers will be the first to feel the benefit of a successful prosecution of this paid work of publicity, but ultimately everyone who has money in stamps will have some advantage.

Another sheaf of letters has accumulated from readers who have been interested enough in remarks made in this column on questions of publicity, marketability of stamps, shop and business methods of dealers and what generally may be called ethics of trade. In these letters there is nothing wholly new but some unusual side-lights are afforded. In the course of a letter, Mr. P. L. Manning says that it would be advisable to do away with conditions that the beginner is apt to meet and to protect him from dealers who prey on his ignorance. Assuredly it would, but the dealers who habitually defraud the new man in collecting by selling him things, such as perforated proofs, cleverly mended stamps and other manipulated specimens as the real things, are the camp-followers of philately. They are not among the recognized dealers and the best pickings come from the solitary collector who pursues his collecting, without the aid of stamp papers, philatelic societies and other exponents of light on philately. It is unfortunate that the buyer should fall into the clutches of these irregulars, but the intelligent beginner, if an adult, certainly will not be hoodwinked to any great extent if he is willing to seek counsel. At that, the day must come when the dealers who fleece the ignorant will find that they cannot do it with their present seeming immunity.

From Mr. A. H. Pike, Buffalo, we have received an envelope bearing the two cent green, U. S., 1887 issue, and also the label of the National Letter Return Association of Chicago, Ill. This trade-mark, perforated, lithographed black on white, is not seen often nowadays, but about the years '87 and '88 it was rather commonly met with. If we remember aright, a Mr. Woodward started the association and sold the labels in quantities to persons who did not use return cards on their letters for any reason. Each buyer was listed under a number that appeared on all the stamps he used and thus when a letter was returned to the association, it was forwarded to the sender. We believe that the authorities did not view the plan with favor, but we are inclined to think that the enterprise failed from lack of patronage.

A question that is asked occasionally is whether Europe is "dumping" the quantity of good stamps on the American market that some prophets predicted it would, some time ago. Speaking in general terms, it is to be said that while there have been indications of liquidation in this way, yet so far as any engulfing of our market by such stamps, the question does not seem to be worth serious attention. The fact of the matter is that the demand here for the best stamps is such that we doubt that isolated cases of selling of European holding would have any decided effect. The stamps from abroad could be absorbed so easily that they would not cause America to gulp. It is not probable that any sufficient quantity of stamps of real value would be sent here for sacrifice and we should surely begin to feel uneasy if we had sold "short" in the expectation of rebuying at cheaper prices, due to the European invasion of stamps.

A 12c METERED STAMP.

We are advised that a 12c metered mail stamp has just appeared bearing a Boston postmark. It is permit No. 28 and meter No. 1350 and was used upon registered letters sent to the stockholders of the General Electric Co. We are indebted to Albert W. Claflin and Frank A. Goldsmith for this information.

NEWFOUNDLAND-HALIFAX AIR MAIL.

By Harry E. Huber.

Following the forced landing at Deer Lake, on December 10, 1921, and the injuries received by Major Cotton on the 15th, which necessitated his going to St. John's, for medical attention, a second attempt was made on January 4, 1922, to take off from Botwood, in the Martinsyde plane. This attempt was not successful, as the ice on which they were taking off was soft, and the machine went through. In flying from Deer Lake to Botwood on January 11th, the De-Haviland, which was used for the first attempt, crashed at Cassandra, near Grand Falls, due to the engine stopping dead.

On January 14th, a successful flight was made in the Martinsyde machine from Botwood to St. John's, bringing mails, the 200 miles being covered in 2 hours and 10 minutes. In the following days several flights were made overtown and to nearby towns, with mails and passengers.

Finally, on January 28th, it was definitely decided to abandon the flight to Halifax, and the Minister of Posts & Telegraphs ordered that the aerial mail, which was at Botwood, be sent to Norris Arm, the nearest point on the railway, and taken up by the Trans-insular Express leaving St. John's on January 31st. From Portaux-Basques, the steamer Kyle conveyed to mail to North Sydney, N. S., and thence by rail to Halifax, arriving there Saturday night, February 4th. The letters were all run through the electric cancelling machine, and backstamped "Halifax, N. S., Feb. 4, 11.30 p. m., 1922," with the advertising flag "WORK AND PROVIDE—WORK TO REDUCE—UNEMPLOYMENT." The St. John's cancellation is that of the electric machine, without the advertising die "BUY MADE IN NEWFOUNDLAND GOODS," with dates ranging from November 21st to 26th, 1921.

In February, 1922, a find was made in St. John's, of two panes (25 stamps each) of the 35c Halifax Air Mail stamp, with inverted overprint. One of these was secured by a New Jersey stamp dealer, and the other was broken up and disposed of to local collectors. As in the normal, there are six varieties, positioned in the setting (5 x 5,) as follows:

Air Mail, Wide Spacing.
No period after 1921. 2-7-10-12-18-20-22.

Normally, the initial "1" of "1921" is under the "L" of HALIFAX, but on stamps 4 and 5, it is under the letter "F".

At the request of those interested in the air flight, the Canadian Post Office Dept. arranged for a mail to be carried by the plane on the return flight to St. John's, and in the Post Office Weekly Bulletin of November 26, 1921, full instructions were given to the Postmasters:

"Experimental Aerial Service from Halifax to Newfoundland, about December 10.

A trip by aeroplane from Halifax to Newfoundland is being arranged for about the tenth of December, and the Department has been asked to encourage the venture by dispatching a letter mail from Halifax on the flight in question. It has been agreed to co- perate in this way provided those sending the mail matter assume the risk.

The requirements for this mail are:—

(1) "By Aerial Mail" to be prominently written on the address side of the envelope.

(2) The usual four cents postage for a one-ounce letter to be affixed on the address side of the envelope.

(3) Additional postage stamps to the value of THIRTY CENTS to be placed on the address side of the envelope, in payment of the special charge for transmission by the aerial service which has been fixed by those making the flight.

Postmasters will please give out the above as a news item to the local newspapers.

As regards the handling and dispatch of these letters from their offices, Postmasters will take special care to see that THE EXTRA POSTAGE STAMPS which are added as payment for the aerial service ARE NOT CANCELLED AT THE OFFICE OF POSTING OR EN ROUTE, as arrangements are being made to have these EXTRA stamps specially cancelled at Halifax.

Postmasters should forward such letters to the Halifax Post Office under Special Delivery wrapper, this merely in order that when they reach that office they may receive special handlinig."

The special rubber stamp furnished the Halifax Postmaster (Col. Fred. A. Oxley) was in the form of an upright rectangle, measuring 16 x 22 mm, with seven lines of lettering:—

FIRST
HALIFAX TO
DECEMBER
1921.

Failure attending the first start, and Ottawa receiving word from Maj. Cotton, that the plane would probably reach Halifax, about the 15th January, a second rubber stamp was sent to Halifax, with the month and year changed to "JANUARY 1922."

On January 21st, the Postmaster at Halifax was instructed by the Department that the proposed air mail had been definitely cancelled, and the air mail was either returned to the senders (where known), under official cover, or forwarded to destination by the ordinary route. On some covers returned the stamps were cancelled in dull violet, with the JANUARY 1922 rubber stamp, but these do not bear the dated cancellation of Halifax. However, those covers addressed to points in Newfoundland were received at St. John's, on January 24th, with merely the ordinary machine cancellation.

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—Through the courtesy of the Post Office Department as well as Messrs. C. J. West and H. W. Porter we are in a position to give detailed information regarding the colors of the new series of postage stamps.

Under date of Oct. 11th, the Department released through its information service department, the following details. The colors and the designations of the dye-stocks carried by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing for the printing of the stamps are as follows:—

1c Franklin, regular green.
2c Washington regular red.
3c Lincoln, regular purple.
4c Martha Washington, $50.00, Liberty Loan Bond back brown.
5c Roosevelt, regular blue.
6c Garfield, regular orange.
7c McKinley, note black.
8c Grant, bond olive.
9c Jefferson, Secretary of the Senate compensation check pink.
10c Monroe, regular yellow.
11c Hayes, $500.00 postal savings light blue.
12c Cleveland, $500.00, regular back 2% U. S. Bond purplish brown.
14c Indian Head, regular yellow green.
15c Statue of Liberty, $5,000.00, Federal Farm Loan Bank dark grey.
20c Yosemite Falls, cigarette blue revenue stamp.
25c Niagara Falls, note green.
30c Buffalo, sepia.
50c Arlington Amphitheatre, 1c, Philippine Island Internal Revenue lavender.
$1.00 Lincoln Memorial, Philippine Island, documentary brown.
$2.00 U. S. Capitol, regular blue.
$5.00 American Head, bi-color, border regular red, face regular blue.

The distinctiveness of the colors and designs are expected to save the Department thousands of dollars by making short paid mail matter more easily detected. The next denomination to be issued will be the 5c Roosevelt stamp which will be placed on sale in Washington on October 27th, the birthday of the former President and at the family home of former President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, N. Y. This variety will have appeared before these notes reach our readers. We understand that proofs for all denominations have been approved and that just as soon as plates can be made that the other denominations of the new series will appear. It is expected that all values will be on sale previous to January 1st.

It will be noted that the colors of the lower denominations are about the same as our current series, the 14c taking the color of the former 13c and the 25c taking a new shade of deep green which has heretofore been used in the case of the 11c. The 30c that resembled the 6c in color will now be in sepia while the 50c, $1.00 and $2.00 will remain about the same. The $5.00 will resemble in colors the former 24c aeroplane.

The Scott Stamp and Coin Co. inform us that they have recently located a correspondence addressed to Annapolis, Md., in which they found a very beautiful copy of the 10c adhesive Buchanan Baltimore Provisional on a cover addressed to Cornelius McLean. The stamp is on blue and is said to be the finest copy of the four of this value which are now known. The stamp is in the upper right corner and on the left end of the cover we find in an oval frame the notation "Barnums City Hall, Monument Square, Balt. Md." This has since been acquired by one of our foremost collectors.

The same Company has also recently acquired the well known 30c of the issue of 1857 on cover without perforations. This is the copy that was in the Paul collection and later was sold in the Worthington sale. I have never had the pleasure of inspecting this before, and it may interest our readers to know that it is in the color of the perforated stamp of 1857 and it is not in the brownish orange shade of the well-known imperforates. The stamp has small margins on three sides and on the left shows part of the guide line between the two panes of the sheet. There is little doubt but what the perforations were absent when the cover was mailed, for the cancellation clearly covers this stamp and there is not the slightest doubt but what there has been no tampering with the cover. There however will always be a question as to whether the perforations were trimmed or not.

We note in a recent auction sale in the Middle West that there was offered a 3c circular die envelope, in the error of color, red on amber. This variety is well known on white in both dies A and E and is known in die E on blue. I have not seen this amber variety and consequently simply make this note as a matter of record.

I have just received a communication from Mr. Clyde S. Ford, Postal Agent at the U. S. Postal Agency in Shanghai, China, stating that the locally surcharged stamps which were placed on sale July 1st, were withdrawn around the 1st of August and that since that date none of these stamps have been sold. In view of the fact that they were on sale for such a short time and as they were really required to meet an urgent postal need it is quite likely that but few were saved to philately.

BELGIUM.—Mr. Henry Hooreman sends us copies of the 5c grey, 10c green and 20c brown in the new set. Mr. Hooreman adds that they were placed on sale the 10th ult.

BRAZIL.—Mr. Frank Pollard Brown has shown us the new 100r Centennial commemorative stamp. The stamp is oblong in shape and the design is adapted from the painting by Pedro Americo representing "El grito de Ypiranga." The color is blue, perforated 14, on white wove paper.

CAYMAN ISLANDS.—Mr. R. Robert sends us the following new issues: ¼d brown, ½d green. 1d carmine, 2d grey 2½d ultramarine, 6d lilac, 2sh purple and blue and 3sh violet, all script water marked line engraved. Also 4d red on new yellow paper, old multiple C watermark.

CHINA.—The Bulletin Mensuel chronicles a 1c brown with the words "Famine Relief Stamp" at the base in two lines and above is a view within a circle. The profits from the sale of these stamps are to go to the victims of the famine according to the correspondent.

DAHOMEY.—The Bulletin Mensuel announce that the 75c violet and rose on the 1913 set has been overprinted "60" in the same manner as noted for Ivory Coast.

EGYPT.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Circular is in receipt of a cutting from one of their correspondents that states pending the appearance of the new issue the present postage stamps are to be overprinted "The Egyptian Kingdom, March 15, 1922," the date on which the independence of Egypt was proclaimed.

FRENCH SOUDAN.—The Economist Stamp Co., have called attention to the 75c violet and rose of the Upper Senegal and Niger set of 1914-18 issue with the surcharge "60" over the former values.

GERMANY.—Mr. Albert W. Claflin calls our attention to a wrapper that has just been received bearing what appears to be a postal meter cancellation. Two impressions are shown totaling Marks 6.2 and the post mark is Possneck 9-22-22. It is also of interest to note that the paper was apparently mailed with only a 5 mark stamp on it and the 1.25m was applied the following day either due to overweight or change in rates.

IVORY COAST.—The Bulletin Mensuel reports the 75c violet and rose of the 1913-18 series surcharged "60" with parallel lines just below the figure in black. Each stamp bears this overprint twice.

JAMAICA.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Circular prints the following: The Philatelic Magazine states that an issue of Christmas Charity stamps is contemplated in imitation of the Swiss "Pro Juventute" series. They will be sold at a premium of ½d in aid of a child welfare scheme in which the Governor of the Colony is interested.

JUGO-SLOVAKIA.—Mr. A. Woodbury has shown us the 60f in the type A in violet.

ISSUE BEARING LIKENESS OF FORMER PRESIDENT TO BE ON SALE SOON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24—Postmaster-General Work today announced that the first stamp of the new five-cent denomination bearing the portrait likeness of former President Roosevelt will be presented to Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Oct. 27, when the issue will be put on sale at Oyster Bay, which was the late Col. Roosevelt's home, at New York city, which was his birthplace, and at the Washington philatelic agency in the post-office department.

Five stamps, each from the first sheet engraved, will be given to Lt.-Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., the assistant secretary of the navy, and to Mrs. Alice Longworth, son and daughter of the former President.

OBTAINS TWO SHEETS.

The Roosevelt Memorial Association has sent its check to the postmaster-general for two sheets of the new issue, containing 100 stamps each. Except at the three post-offices named, the Roosevelt stamps will not be placed on sale in the rest of the country until the present supply of old 5-cent stamps is exhausted.

The philatelic agency of the post-office department in Washington, which handles stamp sales to collectors, has sold $1,156 worth of the 11-cent Hayes stamps, which have been off the presses only a short time. One collector has placed an order with the agency for five sheets of each denomination of the new issues. This order alone means a profit to the post-office department of $5,160, since no service will be performed in exchange for the stamps. They will likely be re-sold to other collectors.

EN STAMPS WERE YOUNG.

ther day, upon looking over an copy of Chambers' Edinburgh for June, 1844, I discovered the article describing the "Queen's ssue of Great Britain. Written, by a contemporary writer of , it is very interesting. I am ou a copy, hoping you will find it of sufficient interest to reprint it in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS.

Very truly yours,
CECIL F. BLOGG,

POSTAGE-LABELS AND ENVELOPES.

The following facts relative to the manufacture of our present postage-labels and envelopes may not be uninteresting to the readers. They are gleaned from a paper by the Rev. J. Barlow, on the Chemical and Mechanical Processes, and the Social Influences of the Penny Post, read at a recent meeting of the London Royal Institution. The adhesive labels, or "queen heads," as they are commonly called, are executed by Messrs. Perkins, Bacon, and Petch, on Mr. Perkins' principle of steel-engraving by transfer. This process depends on the property of iron to become hard or soft as it receives or loses a small quantity of carbon—the soft plates receiving impressions of the original hardened engraving, and then being tempered to the necessary hardness for the purposes of the printer. Mr. Barlow lays great stress on the absolute identity of every engraving, however numerous, produced by this method. The engine-work on the adhesive labels is of so close a pattern that it cannot be taken off by lithography or any similar contrivance; while, on the other hand, the eye is so accustomed to notice slight differences between one face and another, that the most skilful imitators of a minute engravng of a human countenance (like that of the sovereign on the label) could not possibly avoid such a deviation from what he was copying as would insure the detection of forgery. With regard to the qualities of the coloured inks with which the labels are printed, Mr. Barlow remarks, that though sufficiently permanent to withstand the effects of sunlight, rain, etc., they would be discharged by any fraudulent attempt to remove the obliterating stamp for the purpose of issuing labels a second time. The gum used for fixing the labels to letters is chiefly derived from potato starch, and therefore perfectly innocuous.

The manufacture of the postage-envelope is effected by many powerful, yet accurate machines. The paper is pervaded by coloured threads, as a security against fraud; and when sent from the manufactory of Mr. Dickinson, it is delivered to the firm of Messrs. De La Rue. It is there cut into lozenges, by the engine of Mr. Wilson, with the utmost precision, and at the rate of sixty or eighty thousand a minute. Previously to being stamped, each lozenge has a notch cut in each side for the convenience of folding; this is done by an angular chisel. The envelopes are then stamped at Somerset House, by a machine which combines the operations of printing and embossing—the invention of the late Sir W. Congreve. The last process, the folding and gumming, is performed by the Messrs De La Rue, who employ thirty-nine folders on an average, and a quick hand can fold 3,500 in a day.

Mr. Barlow next noticed some statistical conclusions:—One engraving on Mr. Perkins' hard steel-roller will afford 1680 transfers to soft steel plates; these again will, when hardened, admit of 60,000 impressions being pulled from each, so that one original will afford 100,800,000 impressions of labels. Twelve years ago, common envelopes were sold at one shilling the dozen (now the postage envelope, with its medallion, may be bought wholesale at half a farthing, exclusive of the stamp); and yet, though the manufacture is peculiarly costly, it returns a small profit to the government. More than two hundred and twenty millions of chargeable letters were posted in 1843; so that, supposing all the letter-boxes in the United Kingdom to be open twelve hours in a day, and to communicate with one large spout, the letters would keep flowing through it at the mean rate of fourteen in a second. —From Page 400, Chambers' Edinburgh Journal, Saturday, June 22, 1844.

NEW CHINESE FAMINE STAMP.

By Francis S. Hsu.

During recent years China had been troubled by famine and flood. So the Chinese government issued a set of famine stamps, including three varieties, in the year 1920, but the trouble continues. Therefore the Chinese government issued another set of famine stamps on June 30th, 1922. It contains four varieties: 1c reddish-brown, 20c pink, $1 yellow, $10 green. It can not serve as postage. They are of birds yelling for help at the once rich valley, which signifies the hungry people are waiting for the food so much needed.

SSAU STAMP CO.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

U. S. 1870-88 A FERTILE FIELD.

By WARNER BATES.

Not long ago I had the pleasure of examining a splendid collection of U. S. issues 1847 to 1869, the possession of a philatelic friend.

The '47s were well represented with singles, pairs, strips and a cover or two. There followed several pages of the classic issue of 1851-56, including covers and fancy cancellations, hundreds of dollars' worth of stamps, all in beautiful condition! Included was a specialized lot of the 3-cent dull red, claret and orange brown, a beautiful lot to look at.

The perforated issue of 1857-60 seemed to be about complete—dozens of copies of some values, symphonies in blue, red, brown, green, black, etc. A red Christmas day cancellation on the 12-cent black particularly took my eye. And again a really fine collection of the three cent red.

And so it went through scores of album pages. Fine representative pieces of all the issues of '61, '62, '67 and '69, with many of the reprints and special issues. It was a sight that would make sore eyes the sorer—a real feast for the amateur who loves stamp collecting, especially if his tastes turn to United States.

But after 1869 there was very little to exclaim at—just single copies, one of each value, with an occasional block or strip to beautify the album page.

Then it came my turn to show my stamps. I felt apologetic. "Really," I said, "after seeing your collection I feel ashamed to exhibit mine."

I spoke the truth. I have, in reality, a great deal of affection for this little collection of mine but the sight of a real collection of the old classics always makes me feel like a rank newcomer. For it was only two years ago that I turned my attention to United States postage and many are the blank spaces in the pages of my albums up to 1870.

However, it happens that when I began seriously to collect United States stamps a couple of years past I went in rather heavily for the National, Continental and American printings, beginning with 1870, and I knew, after looking at my friend's collection, that, I had him "licked to a frazzle," after 1869. The problem was, would he be interested in anything so comparatively recent or was he so enamoured of the classics that my assortment would look cheap and worthless by comparision.

I opened up with my album of three-cent greens, a collection of perhaps 1,400 stamps (minor varieties and different cancellations) because that is the most complete of any value of these issues and I wanted my friend to get an idea of my methods of classification. He seemed interested and asked me many questions as we turned the pages.

When the three-cents were finished we turned to the book of two centers. I have not yet mounted the two-cent brown and green of '83 and '87, so almost my entire collection of perhaps 700 to 800 stamps is composed of the brown and vermilion Jacksons, a very pretty lot of stamps to look at, especially the pages of blue and other colors of cancellations. I could see that my friend was deeply interested.

After that we went over an entire album full of one-cent blues, a thousand stamps or more, and I could sense the growing interest of my audience. Next came 24 pages of the six-cent pink, various issues and some 50 pages of the other values of these issues, the seven, ten, twelve, fifteen, twenty-four (one of the most beautiful stamps in the world, in my estimation), thirty and ninety-cent values of all three printings, including a fair representation of the grilled stamps, and pages of the five-cent Taylors and Garfields, the four-cent blue-green and carmine, and a few (alas, far too few) of the three-cent vermilion. Certainly, so far as my experience proves anything, Dr. Davis has done a good job in cleaning up this vermilion portrait of Washington.

Well, when the end was reached, my friend displayed genuine enthusiasm. "You have opened my eyes to the possibility of these later issues!" he exclaimed. "I'm mighty sorry I have never gone in for these, but you can bet your bottom dollar I'm going to start now and extend my specialized collection right up to 1890. There are very few of the older stamps that I can afford to is again to appear with its new fur for 1923. You know how it looks—blue in color—3¼ inches wide and 5¾ inches long—just pocket size. If it was a year old for each page, it would be 44 now.

This is my annual price-list that so many find handy as a pocket check-list. It is being revised to 1923 quotations and ought to be ready by December 1st.

PRICE—10 CENTS

which is refunded on your first purchase of $1.00 for it.

I'm proud of my cat and many collectors are lonesome without its purr. I've been told that when it arrives at a collector's home, its purr plainly follows the notes of "Home, Sweet Home." It's the kind of a cat that don't like to "Stop at Hudson."

New Order enclosed. I "cleaned up" on last packet I received from you (1000 variety) already realizing more than I paid after securing 400 varieties for myself.—B. Buchanan, Liverpool, Ohio.

Well satisfied with 2000 packet. Secured 900 stamps for my collection, selling the rest to my friends. Have already cleared over $5.00.—A. Wahlberg, Oakland, Calif.

Very much pleased with 1000 packet. Order enclosed for a 2000. I was greatly surprised at the quality of the stamps in the packet.—F. C. Elmes, Berwick, Pa.

Use bonds sent as payment for 10,000 variety packet. The packet proved highly satisfactory as a basis for a general collection.—F. M. Bigelow, Chicago, Ill.

Received 1000 packet some days ago and have had a fine time looking them over. Secured 250 new stamps for my collection of 3700, traded 43 for other new varieties and replaced 100 that were better specimens than mine. I never saw any stamps in such good condition, not a poor one in the lot. Order for 2000 packet enclosed.—T. Herrick, City Treasurer, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

specialize in any more. I have been twenty years or more forming the collection I have shown you, and if I had had to pay present-day prices for all of my stamps it would have cost me three or four times as much money as I have ever had to spend on them. As it is I don't believe I have added two hundred stamps to my collection in the last five or six years and, frankly, my interest has been diminishing somewhat on this account.

"I can readily see, however, that I can have a great deal of sport at a comparatively moderate cost by going in for those issues you collect and there is no doubt but that it will be a good investment. Believe me, you have shown me a good many stamps tonight that I wish I had."

And so we parted, each a little envious of the other fellow's collection which, to my mind, is the way philatelic friends should part.

To my mind the issues of 1870 to 1888 are likely in time to become the most popular of all issues of United States stamps with the greatest number of collectors. This, I firmly believe, will come to pass within the next five or six years. Let me give you my reasons for this belief.

First, the grilled and ungrilled issues of 1870-71 are now more than 50 years old, while the most recent of these emissions were used some thirty years ago. Regardless of how plentiful the most common values of these stamps were when still in use, any stamp that is fifty years old is reaching a point of relative scarcity. You can still find many lots of thousands of three-cent greens, for instance, but it requires a real search to turn up a lot of a thousand or two thousand unpicked specimens. Still unpicked lots are to be had occasionally and, to the specialist, such a lot holds wondrous possibilities. But even lots that have been gone over are worth while, as a rule, because there are few collectors or dealers who really understand the stamps of these printings and valuable minor varieties may be discovered in almost any assortment.

Then, too, the supposed plentifulness of these stamps leads dealers to sell them more carelessly to the profit of the buyer. For instance, I bought about a year ago some 10,000 three-cent greens, done up in envelopes which evidently had not been opened for ten or fifteen years. I paid $1.25 a thousand for these and you can imagine my delight when I found that they were not only obviously unpicked, but contained to boot about 600 one-cent blues of the 1870-71, '73 and '79 issues. This lot yielded me many a splendid find.

I have gone into stamp dealers' shops and been accorded the privilege of going over thousands and thousands of stamps of these issues and taken my pick at from two to fifteen cents each, according to the denomination. Such research has yielded me thirty or forty copies of the two-cent brown (Jacksons) and three-cent green on ribbed paper (yes, and a few of the one-cent blue on ribbed paper), three or four stitch watermarks, an occasional shift, some remarkable plate varieties, and cancellations, black, blue, magenta, purple, brown, yellow and green.

For another thing, I think there are more sleepers to be found in approval books of these issues than elsewhere among United States stamps. "Specialized" approval selections of these issues usually consist of a large assortment of fine copies and shades, ending up with a bunch of colored and odd cancellations. One who collects in addition to these things the stitch watermark, ribbed and other papers, perforation varieties showing different sizes of the stamps from 21 by 26 millimeters to 24 by 31 millimeters or thereabouts, perforation freaks, wet printings, dry printings, smudged copies, thumb prints, color spots, worn plates, recut plates, early impressions, scratches on the plate, shifts or double transfers, various locations and oddities of the guide lines and

To Collectors of U. S. Revenues

Important Auction Sale—BOSTON, DECEMBER 6, 1922

NOTHING BUT REVENUES

This unusual sale contains 900 lots of Revenues only. It is comprehensive and offers everything except some of the very greatest rarities Many pairs, blocks, and strips will be found in it. The XX Century section is the most complete ever offered, being the collection of a specialist well known in New York City. A most magnificent line of proofs and essays is included, among them such real rarities as the $1 Proprietary and $5000 Second Issue.

Why say more! Catalogues free for the asking, and no Revenue collector can afford to be without one.

U. S. REVENUES are Five times as scarce as U. S. postage and that is saying a mouthful!

BERTRAND L. DREW, 7 Water St., Room 605, Boston, Mass.

dots * * * * * well, that will give you an idea of what I mean, and I started to say that the fellow who is building up a collection of all these things and more will find many collectible varieties at reasonable prices in most any well-filled approval book of these issues.

To continue with the list, there are different sizes of grills, grills split top and bottom and left and right, split grills showing in all four corners (these are somewhat rare pieces) the end roller grills (real rarities), worn grills showing blank spaces in the center, stamps showing either an arrow in one corner or parts of the imprint or plate number at top or bottom, pane margins, paper creased before printing, double papers, silk and straw papers, pane margins, different colors of the gums and various minor varieties of the papers.

Naturally, the specialist wants pairs, strips and blocks for his collection and here, even in the case of the three-cent green, it is difficult to fill in, especially with interesting used copies. One of my strips of three-cent greens shows the dot on the right stamp only, another the dot at left of oval on all three stamps but each in a different position, etc.

Then come the postage stamps of these issues on checks, most of which are dated, and the town-and-date cancellations. These stamps are valuable in that they help place the earliness of the different papers and shades. Likewise, a cancellation showing month and year date is rare.

I will not go into the various cancellations as that is too long a story for this time. But these cancellations are interesting and good to look at, while long study will enable one to prove certain facts about his stamps that could not otherwise be determined.

Now as to the standard varieties: The double papers, with the exception of the three-cent green, are hard to get. I have never yet seen the varieties listed as "paper cut with a cogwheel" punch or with eight small holes in a circle, but hope to obtain them in time. The 1873-75 issues with grill and the special printings are very hard to find and fetch a goodly price. Of the imperforate stamps I have not been able to secure any, excepting one or two single stamps with big margins, but I do not count these as they may be trimmed. However, I have the three-cent green, 1873, imperforate vertically in a pair on cover and this is one of the pieces I like very much. The double impression I have never seen.

Another fruitful source for finding nice things in these issues is the regulation auction. Large lots of these stamps can often be obtained for a song simply because the issues of 1870-88 have been so long neglected by the collector of United States.

Last summer, during the dull season, I put in a flyer bid on a lot of 218 stamps cataloguing around $18. I was going on my vacation and not anxious to buy anything so my bid was low—$3.10 for the lot. Also, the cataloguer did not say anything about the condition of the stamps and I expected to find many of them damaged.

Imagine my surprise when the lot came and I found that it was composed of more than two hundred stamps, all in splendid condition from the Hopkins collection. There were several of the one-cent ultramarine grilled with nice cancellations, a two-cent brown Jackson with stitch watermark, four or five split grills, a page of three-cent green cancellations, including a Fredericksburg arrow and a number of colorless letters and figures on the three-cent grilled, a page of blue cancellations on the two-cent brown and the two-cent vermilion, a couple of fine strips, one of five stamps, and 34 copies of the four-cent blue green, 1883, all with fine cancellations.

The fact that one can often make such finds is one of the reasons I am collecting these stamps. I have written this article in the hopes that it will lead other general collectors to take up this delightful field.

If one had a hundred thousand dollars or so to spend on stamps it might be possible for him in time to gather a collection of one of each kind of all the varieties of United States postage stamps, and there undoubtedly would be a great deal of pleasure in the task. But the average collector could never hope to complete a collection of United States, one of each listed variety. Therefore, I think there is far more pleasure and profit in selecting a few issues and specializing in them.

And for the collector with a lean pocket-book there is no better branch of U. S. specialization than the National, Continental and American issues between 1870-88. And even the fellow who has plenty of money to spend will find enough to keep him busy. For instance, for such a fellow I might suggest a specialized collection of the 24-cent purple, 1870-71, grilled, showing several shades, an end roller grill at the left and another at the right, the stamp with the grill showing in all four corners, grill split right and left and top and bottom, various sizes of the grill from 8 by 10 millimeters to 11 by 12½, examples of worn grills, one or two gum varieties, a few colored and odd cancellations and perhaps some shifts or minor plate varieties. At from $100 to $200 or $300 a stamp, this would keep even a Vanderbilt happy and, if the amusement ever began to pall on him, he could go out and try to add a strip of four or five, a block of four and another of eight or twelve of the used stamps on cover.

STAMPS OF FALKLAND ISLANDS.

By Douglas B. Armstrong.

Series 1891-96.

Meanwhile supplies of ½d, and 2½d stamps in the permanent type had been received at Port Stanley, and placed on sale on or about December 10th, 1891. The plates were of the same size and composition as for the previous issues, but had the name of the printers engraved upon the bottom margin. The sideways cutting of the watermarked paper having proved equally unsatisfactory, the upright position was reverted to.

New printings of the 6d and 1s stamps were received early in the following year (1892), whilst January, 1896, saw the addition of two more values to the current series of the Colony in the denominations 2d and 9d respectively—the first for defrayment of the registration fee and the second for parcels postage for which the rate was 9d per lb. The design and general feature of these stamps were similar to those of the earlier issues except for the fact that the numerals in the lower angles were replaced by foliate ornaments. The sequence of shades in this series suggests that new printings of the lower values were made annually, and of the higher at less frequent intervals.

Series 1891-96 (Shades).
½d blue-green (Dec., 1891).
½d deep yellow-green (1892).
½d yellow-green (1901).

2½d Prussian blue.
2½d deep ultramarine (1896).

9d deep vermilion.
1s grey-brown (Jan., 1896).

High Values, 1898.

On May 1st, 1898, two large and ornate high value stamps were issued for use in the parcels post service with the Queen's Head as before adapted to a more elaborate setting. If not actually the handsomest they are amongst the most beautiful British Colonial stamps that have been issued. They were almost twice as large as the remaining values of the series and were printed in sheets of 60 (six rows of ten) upon paper watermarked Crown CC (Crown Colony) once in the centre of each and every stamp upon the sheet.

1898, May 1st
2sh 6d deep blue.
5sh brown-red

Edwardian Series.

This Colony was one of the last to change the design of its postage stamps as a result of the accession of King Edward VII. Not until the summer of 1904, were stamps bearing the head of the new ruler brought into use, the Colonial Government having caused the entire remaining stock of Queen's Head stamps to be used up before corresponding values in the new type were placed on sale.

With the advent of this series the stamps printing contracts was transferred to Messrs. De La Rue & Co., who were responsible for the production of the stamps of most other Crown Colonies.

The new designs were modelled closely upon the Victorian types, with the profile of King Edward, facing left, substituted for that of his Royal Mother. In engraving the dies the dimensions of the stamps were very slightly reduced. Plates of the ½d, 1d and 2½d values were made up of 60 impressions of the design ranged in ten horizontal rows of 6, but those of the remaining denominations up to and including 1s were grouped in six rows of ten. The two high values, in enlarged format, were printed in small sheets of thirty (five rows of 6) only.

All were recess printed upon pa watermarked Multiple Crown CA perforated 14, the 2d, 6d and 1s by me of a comb-machine, and the others u a single line guillotine.

½d yellow-green (July 18th, 1904).
1d vermilion (July 18th, 1904).
2d deep purple (Feb. 28th, 1905).
2½d blue (July 18th, 1904).
6d orange (April, 1905).
1s brown (April, 1905).
3s bronze-green (April, 1905).
4s lake (Feb. 28th, 1905).

Varieties of both the ½d and 1d val exist printed on thick paper.

The substitution of a 3s value for former 2sh6d is accounted for by fact that this represented the hghest r of postage upon parcels, viz., 3s for lbs. (maximum weight).

A small printing of the 1d Edward stamps of the Falkland Islands, issu on or about August 1st, 1907, had watermark sideways instead of uprig but whether this variety was due to ac dent or design is not known. In case it was not repeated.

1907 Aug. 1st (Sideways Wmk.).
1d vermilion.

Georgian Series.

The present stamps of the Falkla Islands in the Georgian type, from ½ to 5sh were placed on sale simulta ously on August, 1912, two supplement high values of 10sh and £1 being ad in March, 1914. Later in the same y the colour of the 5sh stamp was chang from red-brown to purple to obvi confusion with the newly issued 10 which was somewhat similar in colo It is noteworthy that this issue is t first to bear inscription "Postage—Re enue" indicating the dual purposes the stamps.

½d green.
1d vermilion.
2d purple.
2½d blue.
6d orange.
1s bistre-brown.

THE MARKET IN MODERN COLONIALS.

Seychelles.—The announcement that the remainders of the Seychelles Postage & Revenue stamps of 1917 will probably be withdrawn and burnt, will come as a surprise to some collectors, who had supposed them to have been obsolete for some time. In point of fact, however, this series, printed on the old CA paper, lasted longer than was anticipated, the local demand being small, so that the series on the new paper was only brought into use by slow degrees. Certain values of the Seychelles stamps in old colours but with script watermark have had very short lives, and some, such as the 12c grey, seem likely to be scarce. At present only the lower values have been affected by these colour changes. All values over the 6c of the script series are better used than mint. During the earlier War years parcel deliveries from these islands were heavy, owing to high freight rates, but are now much smaller. This accounts for the relative frequency of the two highest values of the 1912 series in used condition. Apart from these, all this series is becoming very scarce, especially the 18c to 75c, with the 30c mint being about the best. The 5 rupee of 1918 is also a rare stamp with postal obliteration, the demand being principally fiscal.

Telegraphic Cancellations.—A certain number of high values are constantly coming on the market with telegraphic cancellations, many being used for cable or Marconigrams, and it is a moot point whether the collector should take them; the price should certainly be much lower than for genuinely postally used specimens, but unfortunately the cancellations are frequently not sufficiently distinctive to enable the average collector to differentiate between them. The philatelist stands in need of a book describing all these cancellations of the various colonies, thoroughly up to date and including the numerous different types of obliterating stamps brought into use for telegraphic and wireless work in recent years, as some of them are very similar or even identical with the postal varieties. For those who take used varieties especially, of high value current Colonials, a good plan is to buy them on original piece showing full postmark, which is some sort of a guarantee as to the character of the cancellation. High prices for these, sometimes equal to or even higher than for unused varieties, are asked, so it behooves the collector to be on the lookout. Owing to the lack of knowledge of modern obliterations, a curious prejudice exists against coloured postal cancellations. Certain of the African colonies frequently obliterate with a violet ink on parcels, which some mistakenly think to be a fiscal cancellation, and will pay more for a black "hut tax" or similar variety under the delusion that it is a postal one.

With Union of South African stamps the appearance of the letters "C. T. O." on the postmark denote its telegraphic use. This is the commonest type of cancellation seen on the 10s and £1 stamps of this Dominion. The later value indeed is not on sale at many of the smaller offices, and the vast majority of the copies seen in this country show the above-mentioned obliteration, indeed genuinely postally used copies of the £1 are relatively rare.

St. Kitts-Nevis.—The latest of the blue Scripts to be superseded by a new colour is the 2½d St. Kitts-Nevis, and in view of its short life is likely to be another good item, particularly in used condition. A glance at the catalogue will show how scarce the ½d and 2½d bi-coloured issue of 1907 have become, which varieties had a similarly short existence. The 2d of this set of 1907 is getting scarcer, whilst the 6d provides several interesting shades.

Strictures have appeared in the Philatelic Press recently on those collectors who hoard for monetary gain. There is no doubt that hoarders are more numerous now than at any period, except the recent war years, when so many got bitten by laying down quantities of the common London printed War Tax stamps. One encouragement to the hoarder or bloater, is the number of dealers offering mint stamps in wholesale quantities at tempting prices.

Colonial Remittances.—It is a pity that some arrangement has never been made for cashing unused colonial stamps at a London office. It often happens that remittances are received in colonial stamps, or dealers may have surplus stocks that they wish to cash, and if instituted such a concession would prove a boon to many and no real loss to the Government concerned.

Used New Issues.—With the demand for used colonial stamps of the current issues, it is remarkable that no dealer has instituted a new issue service of used stamps on the lines of the existing mint new issue services. It would fill a want, and with good connections among the various colonies there should be no difficulty with most issues, although longer time would be probably necessary for complete distribution. It may be remarked, however, that some existing services are by no means punctual with the distribution of many of the new issues constantly being made.

Coloured Papers.—The forthcoming Red Gibbons, whose appearance has been unfortunately postponed again, will be eagerly awaited by many, and it seems probable that more attention will be paid to modern colonials than has hitherto been the case. The recent printings on experimental papers are to be listed for the first time, and many collectors will find items, recently cheap, at surprisingly high prices, of which mention has already been made in these columns. It is to be noted that mint stamps are to be recommended by the publishers for the study of these various experimental papers, and wisely so. The process of soaking off is a precarious one, and with highly fugitive dyes may lead to serious damage or alteration to these sensitive colours.

Boom in Current Colonials.—British Colonials seem likely to be more popular than ever during the coming season, and with the great majority of collectors who cannot afford to specialize in the early classics, the 20th century issues with their many varieties make a fascinating appeal. It is difficult for any collector to keep up with all the emissions of Europe, let alone the whole world, and the constant fluctuations in the exchange make it difficult and often very unprofitable to take the New European issues as they appear.—Philatelic Magazine.

EDITORIAL.

Strictly as advertised, the new five-cent stamp made its appearance on October 27th, 1922, the birthday of Roosevelt; and we received our first copy on a letter postmarked Oyster Bay, October 27th, through the courtesy of the Nassau Stamp Company. The Washington Stamp Agency sent out the stamp on October 27th also. The stamp Agency in its latest circular letter says that the 15c, 25c and 50c will be on sale November 11th and patrons are requested not to apply for the stamps before that date. We quote: "For the benefit of collectors who desire to make purchases direct, the Philatelic Stamp Agency is located in Room 217, New City Post Office Building, Corner North Capitol St. and Massachusetts Ave., Washington."

Another prompt arrival is the new edition of the catalogue which came at the appointed time; and now comes a pause while the philatelic public glues its eyes on the new prices but the stillness is the "silence of the spinning top" which will soon be succeeded by a babel of opinion on the thisness of that price and the thatness of this one.

A candidate for an important office assures us that in the hurly-burly of campaigning, he often thinks longingly of the companions of his quiet evenings at home and finds himself asking if it is wise to supplant philately with politics. If we did not know that this friend of the people was a real philatelist, we should suspect him of trying to corral the philatelic vote by a bit of hoakum.

Here is an artistic touch that is true to tradition. In explanation of his delinquency in paying a stamp debt, an artist says that his disappointment in disposing of a picture that was ordered has temporarily crimped him. but that he hopes to sell it before long, nevertheless. That's realism.

A wife snags her husband in this wise: "I agree with Carlyle that man is a tool-using animal. The head of the family each evening proceeds according to the following ritual: Where's my stamp tongs? My glass? My benzine cup? And my hinges? And my—? Now, what I want to suggest is that some dealer put a stamp accessory cabinet on the market. I cannot have the stamp tools cluttering up the library table but "a place for everything and everything in its place" would fill the bill.

Mexico is to have a new picture set, and among the themes for pictorial exploitation, we find the National Theater at present in construction. If the set is to await the completion of the edifice, we fear that it certainly will be some time in making its appearance, but if the unfinished structure is. to be shown, we shall have a novelty. A stamp with the design of a building in the process of making will have distinction, but no doubt the model of the building will be shown.

Some of our readers would have us arguing in a never-ending circle and we ask that certain of our critics refrain from placing us in the position of a blind advocate of investment in stamps merely for financial gain. We much prefer that the interests of the collector, rather than those of the avowed speculator, be protected, and we fail to see how the collector who buys his stamps for his album can meet with disappointment. The ascending trend in the prices of all good stamps protects him in a monetary way, to a considerable extent. One correspondent tells of his experience with the high value Columbians, which after holding for a long time, he sold at a loss. The older collector knows how rampant speculation was in that set of sets, the 1893 Columbians, and how almost every collector bought a reserve stock in the hope of reaping something of a harvest by selling at increased prices. The result showed that after a spectacular rise, there was a decided slump and the market did not recover from the burden imposed on it for many years. The new catalogue, by the way, shows firmer prices for the stamps in question. In 1898, when the Trans-Mississippi set was launched, speculators with the lesson of the Columbians in mind went to the other extreme and let the dollar values alone to a great extent. There were no reserve stocks of the Omaha varieties held by a host of speculators and the result was that these stamps have become more and more desirable, measured by the dollar mark. Certain axiomatic laws ever hold good in philately as well as in other lines, even though the caprice of circumstance change superficially what in essence are economic principles.

Some of the foreign dealers are retaliating on us. For a good many years it has been the custom for our dealers to recruit their stocks of United States stamps from Europe where prices have been lower than here and now some of the European dealers have been seeking connections through which they might secure here the early issues of their countries at prices under those that obtain at home. We find one dealer who writes in response to an inquiry for early Italian stamps that the applicant no doubt can buy the stamps in question to better advantage in the United States than in his own country.

The publicity plan of the American Philatelic Society has been made known and we are glad to see that the measures advocated are practical. It is undeniable that general opinion favors the experiment of planning proper publicity for philately; and the advisability of the A. P. S. standing sponsor for the movement is apparent. There are many arguments to show that even if we obtain publicity, as we have been doing for some time past, without any expense, this free publicity is not to be compared with the brand that the trained philatelic journalist can father. At first, we were thankful for any sort of advertising almost, in the outside press, but now that we have got our breaths and our vision is becoming clearer, we want the best publicity. In our opinion, the payment that is asked for service of the kind is moderate in comparison to the possibilities for good.

We have heard of several plans to be adopted by ambitious dealers to extend philately into the highways and by-ways of America, so to speak; and while it is not our custom to make capital of schemes for the extension of stamp collecting before they are out of the formative stage, we insert this paragraph in the hope that soon we shall have real news on the subject.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—From Mr. W. G. Whittaker, we learn that Emmett E. Elster of Buffalo, New York, died almost two months ago, and through an oversight, the announcement has not been made heretofore. Mr. Elster was in business for many years and was sixty-one years of age. At one time Mr. Elster was a member of the American Philatelic Society and other stamp organizations.

—We are pleased to learn that Mr. Aaron E. Carpenter of Philadelphia, president of the Metropolitan Philatelic Association, has recovered from the effect of "a minor accident in which he received a slight fracture of the skull."

—The Chicago Philatelic Society obtained a bit of publicity from its exhibit of the postal history of its city as exemplified by postmarks and other impressions, first to last, used in Chicago. A paper by Mr. R. McP. Cabeen on the early postal history of the city was a feature of the evening's entertainment.

—We are indebted to Chas. T. Ramsden for a specimen of the new 5c postmarked on the day of issue.

—"Leve's Lively Little List" is a new one and speaks right out loud. Ask A. A. Leve, Syracuse, N. Y.

LA FEMME DE FRANCE.

A paper read by Percy McGraw Mann at the October 24 meeting of the Philadelphia Stamp Club.

France! Known for its courtly manners, its exquisite women, its noble men, Liberty, Equality, Fraternity!

We have known the French men to be wonderful fighters. The Glory of their battlefields unfolds many a story of their bravery— but, Ah! the French women! What place does the French man take beside her?

The story of the fight between the sexes in France is unfolded by French postage stamps, women's rights have been the victors, suffrage for women is paramount, on these stamps.

Even back in 1849, when the first French postage stamps were first issued, woman was uppermost as part of the stamp design.

Some called her portrait "Ceres," others typified her as "Liberty." The little bunch of grapes as part of the wreath about her head proclaims her as "Ceres." Recent investigations, however, seem to prove that the artist's original intention was to portray "Liberty," the bunch of grapes being simply significant or symbolical of France's agriculture.

The Liberty woman didn't last long. In 1852 came Napoleon to displace her. Man was uppermost and for eighteen years woman was forgotten on French stamps. What must have been her thought when she saw him crowned with laurel in 1863? She suffered the laurel for seven lengthy years, when Hail, Hail! once more, in 1870, she won, and (should I say, alas!) since then woman has for fifty-two years not been missing from a French postage stamp.

French manhood did not give up the fight, however, because after six years of the lonely woman, she had to share her estate with man, and in 1876 man and woman shared equal space on the French postage stamps, Peace and Commerce, the design going around the world to all the French colonies, and they remained thereon, united in Liberty, Equality and Fraternity, for twenty-four years, until 1900.

What started the rumpus again, what kindled the fires of discontent between the sexes? Was it the "baby" that came in 1900—the fruit of a long union of man and woman? No, no.

It must have been the three designs, all portraying woman. Man arose, in his weakly might, against her. The designer revolted at the thought that man couldn't once more come into his own and have his features portrayed at least one in three. But woman won and the three designs containing women were issued in 1900; the low values portrayed a woman angelized with wings, God bless the women, and a male Cupid, for is not Cupid a male? This design shows the feminine influence, she permitted a representative of the opposite sex on the stamps, but she had him as minute as she could make him and represented as an infant, whom she could control.

The second design of this issue is where the male artist shone. Disgusted because the stamps of his country should have only women and nothing but women, he bethought himself of the ancient motto of the French Revolution "Droits de l'Homme," Rights of Man! and inserted the words on a placque carefully poised on woman's knee.

What mattered it to the women of France that they had won their way for years with feminity portrayed on their country's stamps, and on all three stamps of the 1900 issue. Rights of Man! Dieu! Where were women's rights? The ancient motto was like a red flag before a bull when placed before women's eyes.

Think you that the women sat back and folded their hands? Nay. They sincerely protested, they revolted, they fought, they fought some more, they postered the city walls! What rights have men got that women haven't got? was their hue and cry. They got out a stamp bearing the words "Droits de la Femme," they used them on their letters, they made their husbands, their sweethearts, their mothers and their daughters, their fathers and their sons, use these stickers of protest against the Rights of Men, Rights of Women said they, and for three years they kept up the cry until once more man endured and Rights of Man was removed from the postage stamps.

The Sower—La Grande Semeuse—was adopted as the stamp design in place of the Rights of Man design. Ha, and the artist was so excited when he made it, he was so frightened by woman's overbearing indignity, that he placed the sun in eclipse and the shadow on the side of the woman which was towards the sun. It was three years before this error was corrected and then the sun was removed and the designer gave woman the Earth to walk on. She was on the top of the mountain, woman's rights prevailed.

Still unsatisfied woman demanded the universe, so the French male gave her the ether, and there she trods sowing her seeds, of the earth, but not on the earth, sunless, maleless—and few realize that she is sowing her seeds against the wind, which procedure is against the agriculturists' ethics. Ever contrary, nevertheless woman has her rights, in France, on postage stamps.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—The new 5c stamp made its appearance as per schedule, it having been placed on sale in New York, Oyster Bay and at the Philatelic Stamp Agency in Washington on Friday, October 27th, the anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt, the 25th President of the United States, whose portrait appears on this denomination. I desire to thank Messrs. C. J. West and H. W. Porter for copies mailed for our inspection.

Four plates were made, namely numbers 14066, 14067, 14068 and 14069. Impressions from all plates were on sale in Washington on the first day. The stamps are engraved in blue in sheets of four hundred subjects on unwatermarked paper, perforated 11 and these as usual are cut into post-office panes of one hundred before being distributed. The general make-up of the stamp is similar to the 11c Hayes, this time, however, the portrait appears in a circle without background. It makes the head stand out more clearly and gives it a different appearance from any stamp ever issued by this government. Below the portrait within a ribbon we find "ROOSEVELT" and under this horizontally across the bottom of the stamp "CENTS" flanked by large figures "5" within ovals at each end. Semi-circularly around the top of the portrait frame we find "UNITED STATES POSTAGE" with triangles and rectangles completing the design.

The stamp is attractive, but the large figures and lettering tend to spoil its appearance. It must be remembered, however, that this detail is of importance to the post-office clerk and it is for postal, not artistic purposes that stamps are issued. The portrait of Roosevelt, a full face, is taken from the engraving made at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing at the time he was President. It is customary and has been for some years, for the President shortly after inauguration to submit to the Bureau a portrait which he considers the likeness that he cares to hand down to posterity. An engraving is made from this, approved and autographed by the President and this becomes his official portrait. In after years when the Bureau is called upon to engrave a note or a stamp or the like it is generally this portrait that is used. The Department informs me that only an unusually small quantity of this new stamp has been placed on sale, due to the fact that the Bureau is not as yet equipped to print this stamp in large quantities. There will, however, be plenty more to follow so every one will be supplied.

1922, Unwatermarked, Perforated 11.
5c blue, Roosevelt.

Through the courtesy of Mr. M. L. Eidsness, Jr., Chief of the Division of Stamps, we are able to inform our readers that on Armistice Day, November the 11th, there will be placed on sale at the Philatelic Stamp Agency in Washington not only the 50c denomination, depicting the Arlington Amphitheatre with the grave of the Unknown Soldier in the foreground, but also the 15c showing the Statue of Liberty and the 25c with a beautiful illustration of one of the greatest natural wonders of America, Niagara Falls. Our readers may obtain these together with the new 5c, 11c and Special Delivery which have been issued by addressing the Philatelic Stamp Agent, Washington, D. C., and enclosing money order to cover, including return postage and registration. Mr. H. A. Mount, the Agent, is very accommodating and will gladly pick out fine copies for our readers. Do not ask for stamps on approval, however, for our Uncle Samuel does a "cash-in-advance" business only.

I also quote from a letter received from Mr. W. Irving Glover, Third Assistant Postmaster General, under date of October 26th, details of more than passing interest:—"It may be of interest to you to know that the reason only one plate number of the 11-cent Hayes stamp has reached the public at this time is due to the fact that in order to have this stamp available for October 4th, only one plate was prepared and the printing was done entirely from this plate. No further printing will be made of the 11-cent stamp until the four plates are completed." This accounts for our plate number collectors being unable to find the other three plate numbers. Flat plates always travel in groups of four and it seemed unusual when we could locate but one in both the Washington and Fremont stocks.

The Department for a number of years has consistently refused to sell to the philatelic public the issues of postage due stamps. It was and in fact still is claimed that by placing these on sale some of them may be used to pay postage on a letter and in this way will cause trouble. All other Nations permit such sales and I do not recall ever seeing a postage due stamp on cover used through error to pay regular postage and I doubt very much if our post-office would have any trouble by permitting their sale through Washington. We can obtain them in a roundabout way if one is sufficiently well acquainted at some of the small post-offices and why make the less fortunate pay a fancy premium to obtain what should be sold him in straightforward aboveboard manner. The Division of Stamps has been considering this matter since the establishment of the Philatelic Stamp Agency, but has arrived at no definite conclusion. From a business point alone they should let us have them for it would net the Department thousands of dollars for which they would never be called upon to perform any service. If you think the same way write them a letter. Mr. B. K. Miller writes me upon the subject and many others have expressed disappointment in being unable to obtain especially the higher values in mint condition. We have today, from the Third Assistant Postmaster General down, one of the fairest-minded groups of officials that have ever had charge of the manufacture and distribution of our postage stamps and being business men realize the possibilities of profits that may be derived in behalf of the Department. Let us hope that they may change the ruling and permit the sale of postage due stamps.

BRAZIL.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us two values of stamps with the words "AGRICULTURA" in the upper left corner. In the centre is a view of the farmer at work, the name of the country at the top with the value in the lower left corner. The two stamps are the 40r brown and the 80r green.

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE
Stamps, Coins, Den Curios

For twenty years I have been gathering rare curios from all parts of the world. I have one of the greatest accumulations in this line to be found outside the large museums. If you have a den or cabinet, or wall space in your hall, that you wish to fill with old and rare specimens, let me hear from you at once. I am reducing my stock very rapidly, my aim is to devote more time to stamps and coins, so I wish to dispose of my old guns, pistols, lances, spears, swords, daggers, war shields, (from nearly every wild tribe) flint and stone specimens (over 20,000 specimens in stock). Beaded Indian trappings, minerals (some showy cabinet pieces in this lot), fossils (rare slabs of fossil fish that are very fine in this collection), Rare Coins.

Navajo blankets (suitable for rugs) some beauties on hand just at present, typical Indian designs, gaudy colors, A1 specimens ranging in price from $18.50 to $125.00.

As for stamps, my stock is large and varied. I can generally please all classes of collectors. I am especially long on scarce U. S. and B. N. A., good condition or a trifle defective.

Will send approval selections. Write today with reference, stating the line or lines you collect, I will treat you right. Cut list 5c.

CANAL ZONE POSTAGE.

(A letter to N. Y. Herald.)

To the New York Herald:

Referring to your editorial article on the Panama treaties it would seem that in at least one particular these treaties need revision, and this relates to the postal service.

It is probably news to most Americans that the United States pays tribute to the Republic of Panama not only for use of the canal, but also in the matter of postage privileges. The postage stamps used on the Canal Zone are purchased from the Panama Republic at 60 per cent. of their face value, surcharged and sold in the United States post-offices on the Zone. It is said that this arrangement is a result of the Taft agreement, but in any case it brings in a tidy revenue to the diminutive republic.

Those who live on the Zone are, therefore, experiencing a double treat; they are paying tribute to another nation and they are living on a part of the United States soil where United States stamps are worthless and cannot be used for postage.

INSURRECTO.

ALLENTOWN, PA., Oct. 9.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF CANADA.

The Postage Stamps of Canada by Edward E. Goodchild, is an example of intelligent repression, as it were, for in twelve pages the writer really covers from first to last the substantial stamps of his country. In fact, in four pages does Mr. Goodchild give an outline of the issues and they, with the illustrated check-list, furnish a compact guide that will appeal to the reader who has not a world of leisure. A little work of this kind has a practical value and we are pleased to have the compilation at hand. The cover, by-the-way, shows "a hospitable, but cautious Canadian stamp collector permitting a distinguished visiting collector the privilege of glancing at his famous five-cent Rare-e-tania valued at a quarter-million dollars" under the proper precautions; the visitor is bound to his chair with heavy ropes and the exhibitor, some distance away, stands guard over his exhibit, pistol in hand.

The next discontinuance of subscriptions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1659 to 1662 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

We are satisfied that the system we have inaugurated is the only one under which a newspaper can do business these days, and subscribers must understand that free copies of the WEEKLY will not be sent to those who are in arrears.

PORTUGUESE COLONIALS

We offer some of the scarcest varieties. Stamps dealers seldom have in stock. Finest of copies. We can supply practically everything listing $5 or less. Why not your want list, or try our approvals. Over 3000 var. of these on hand.

Remember our prices are for fine copies. The 19th offered are not from old collections, and all stuck up with hinges. Such condition is hard to get. Most of the 20th are mint when unused. We have solved the Port. Col. problem for some of the largest collections in America, why not yours? Remember that these stamps are not common or easy to get. Scott's 1923 numbers. Especial attention is called to the fine sets of scarce 1894 issues.

THE POSTAGE STAMP.

A Parable of Safed the Sage.

There came unto me a friend who is something of a Joker, and he inquired of me, saying, Dost thou purchase Fine Steel Engraved Portraits of Great Men?

And I said, A few.

And he said, I fain would sell unto thee a Portrait of George Washington.

And I asked him, Which Portrait, and How Much?

And he said, It is the most famous of all Portraits of Washington, but I remember not the name of the artist, nor yet that of the engraver, but it is Straight Goods. And I will sell it unto thee for Five Farthings. And I have also a Bronze Medal with the Head of Abraham Lincoln by a Famous Sulptor, and that also will I sell unto thee for Five Farthings; for I love thee, and would fain see these treasures added to thy Collection.

And I inquired of him, saying, How dost thou get that way? For I can buy thy portraits of Washington at the Postoffice for two farthings, and thy medal with the head of Lincoln do they sell at the Bank at the rate of ten for a dime.

So he did not get me that time, but it was a clever trick, albeit an ancient one. And I meditated on this portrait of George Washington that is finely graven in Steel, and selleth for two farthings, that it will go further than any other portrait of Washington known to Collectors.

And I said, Consider the Postage Stamp. It is Inexpensive, Unobtrusive, and well-nigh Ubiquitous, but how much it can convey of sorrow or joy. Hast thou a friend in Arizona? Thou canst write him a word of cheer, and drop it in the corner box or hand it to the Red man at the end of the route, and the little steel engraving of George Washington will convey it all the way. Hast thou a neglected brother in Skowhegan, Maine, there is ever available unto thee in his behalf a Postoffice and a Throne of Grace, and both of them are blessings of high order. Thou canst write unto thy Congressman, protesting against his vote, or unto thy Minister, thanking him for last Sunday's sermon, and stick on a picture of George Washington, and go to bed with a clear conscience.

And he said, All those things are worth doing, and the price is dirt cheap.

And I said, There are many more lessons of the Postage Stamp, but there is one which, though it be not new, is so important I could wish that all men might learn it. The Success of the Postage Stamp is in this, that it doth stick to one thing unitl it doth arrive at its destination and achieve its result.

And he said, That, indeed, is a good lesson.

And I said, If I could cause this lesson to go with the purchase, then would I invest a large fraction of my visible wealth in portraits of George Washington, and I would stick one on every

A NEW SOCIETY.

The Philatelic Order of Good Fellows is the name of the new organization and it is exactly what its name implies. Only honorary members are admitted and these must first prove that they are "good fellows." To be a good fellow it is necessary to preach and practice the old fashioned "Golden Rule": "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." It is all very well to part with nothing less than a thousand percent profit but some of us are in the game for pleasure and this class likes to give as well as receive. Already over three hundred have been admitted to the Order after giving evidence and proof of their qualifications.

Anyone who has access to the waste basket is eligible to make application for membership. Write the Secretary that you will look daily for new advertising marks and first class mail permits on the incoming mail. To become a member it is necessary to send at least one specimen of anything new in this line to the Secretary once or twice each month, or when convenient. He will use this material in compiling check lists and these check lists will be published and a chronicle of new issues will be kept up to date. This will give philatelists an opportunity to get this information and to obtain specimens while they are current, eliminating speculation and keeping the price down to the minimum so that all can get more pleasure out of this "New Philately." Instead of a promiscuous reporting to and publishing in the WEEKLY, this can all be handled under one heading and a much prompter service can be maintained. There are a lot of "Good Fellows" in the philatelic game. If you feel that you are one of them, don't hesitate to write to the Secretary, A. H. Pike, 80 Grant St., Buffalo, N. Y.

SSAU STAMP CO.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

ST. KITTS-NEVIS, 1890-1922.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

VI. Presidency Series, 1903.

When the separate Presidency series were discontinued in 1890, in favor of one series common to all, the Post Office revenue of the Presidencies fell off considerably, and the goodly sum which each had received annually in former times, from stamp collectors and dealers abroad, was now divided among the five Presidencies.

In 1898, the Executive Council of the Leeward Islands approved of the use of special stamps in the British Virgin Islands, though no formal Order-in-Council was ever issued. In the following year, the line engraved stamps, in the design of Madonna with lilies, made appearance.

It was not long before this privilege was extended to the other Presidencies, and by the Leeward Islands Stamp Act of 1902, it was enacted that the Governor might from time to time, by Order-in-Council, direct that special stamps be used in each or any of the Presidencies, concurrently with the uniform Federation series.

In the formal Order-in-Council, made 29th June, 1903, July 3rd was named as the date on and after which these special stamps might be used. The series for St. Kitts-Nevis, however, had been in use for two months previous to this, having been issued in May. Antigua followed in July, Montserrat in August, and Dominica in September.

"ORDER-IN-COUNCIL.

Whereas, by section 3 of the Leeward Islands General Stamp Act, 1890, it is provided (inter alia) that there shall be a uniform stamp or stamps for use throughout the Colony whereby all postage rates and stamp duties shall be expressed; and,

Whereas, by section 3 of the Leeward Islands Stamp Act, 1902, it is provided that the Governor may from time to time, by Order in Council, direct that a special stamp or stamps may be used in each or any Presidency concurrently with such uniform stamp or stamps as aforesaid; now, therefore,

It is hereby ordered by the Governor in Council as follows:—

On and after the 3rd day of July, 1903, special stamps may be used in the Presidencies of Antigua, St. Christopher-Nevis, Dominica, and Montserrat, concurrently with the uniform stamps now in use throughout the Colony of the Leeward Islands.

The several values of the said special stamps in the said Presidencies shall be ½d, 1d, 2d, 2½, 3d, 6d, 1s, 2s, 2s6d, and 5s.

The post cards shall be single ½d, 1d; reply 2d. The wrappers shall be ½d, 1d. The envelopes shall be 1d, 2½d, and registration envelopes shall be large and small.

The design of the special stamps for the Presidency of Antigua shall be the same as that on the Public Seal of the Presidency for all values, with the exception of the 5s, which stamp will bear the design of the head of His Majesty the King.

The design of the special stamps for the Presidency of St. Christopher-Nevis, shall be as follows:—

For the ½d, 2d, 2½d, 6d, 1s and 2s6d values, the design to be Columbus sighting land, taken from the Public Seal of the Presidency.

For the 1d, 3d, 2s and 5s values the design to be the group emblematic of the Sulphur Baths of Nevis, also taken from the Public Seal of the Presidency.

The design of the special stamps for the Presidency of Dominica shall be a design showing a view of Dominica from the sea, for all values, with the exception of the 5s, which stamp will bear the design of the head of His Majesty the King.

The design of the special stamps for the Presidency of Montserrat shall be the design of the central figure in the Public Seal of the Presidency for all values, with the exception of the 5s, which stamp will bear the design of the head of His Majesty the King.

The postcards, wrappers and envelopes of the several Presidencies shall bear designs similar to those of the minor values of the postage stamps.

Made in the Executive Council of the Leeward Islands, this 29th day of June, 1903.

A. E. ELDRIDGE,
Acting Clerk to the Council."

CAT. No. 4057

Like an inmate of a prison, this feline variety is numbered. It has been elusive, sly and catlike and an outlaw from most collections. Like the prodigal, it returns, takes off its alias and is now ready to go to needy collectors to help fill that uncompleted set.

This variety is the $5.00 green and black Spanish-American War revenue issued in 1902. Never has the supply been equal to the demand. I have just located about fifty copies, which I can sell at one-half of cat.

Use bonds sent as payment for 10,000 variety packet. The packet proved highly satisfactory as a basis for a general collection.—F. M. Bigelow, Chicago, Ill.

Received 1000 packet some days ago and have had a fine time looking them over. H. F. COLMAN
2ND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

There are ten values in the series for St. Kitts-Nevis, typographically printed in two colors, in sheets of 120 stamps, 2 panes of 60, separated by a narrow gutter, with a broken marginal line (part of the frame plate) surrounding each pane. The stamps are of conventional size, 18½ mm x 22½ mm. There are separate border or frame plates for each value, and two vignette plates. No plate numbers are used for the frame plates, but both vignette plates are numbered 1, and this number appears eight times on the sheet, above the 2nd and 5th stamps of each pane, and under the corresponding stamps of the lower row. The perforation is comb 14, and the stamps are printed on paper with Crown CA watermark.

On the seal of St. Christopher, Columbus is shown as sighting land through a telescope, an instrument which was not invented until a hundred years after his death. The frame design is the same for all values using this vignette and the lettering "St. Kitts-Nevis" at the top and the value in words at the bottom, conforms to the vignette oval. At the sides are "Postage" and "Revenue" in colorless letters and in the spandrels are arabesques.

The seal of Nevis shows one of the sulphur springs in that island, with three females grouped around it. The vignette is contained within an upright rectangle, curved at the top and bottom, and requires a frame design differing from that for the St. Kitts seal. The inscriptions, however, are the same, and positioned similarly. Leaf ornamentation fills the corners.

May, 1903. Presidency series. Seal of St. Christopher (½d, 2d, 2½d, 6d, 1s, 2s6d) and Nevis (1d, 3d, 2s and 5s). Watermarked Crown CA. Perf. comb 14. Plate 1.

VII. Presidency Series, Multiple Crown CA, 1905-10.

In 1903 a new dandy roll was made up for watermarking the paper used for Colonial stamps, and on the paper produced from it, the device of Crown CA was repeated close together over the entire surface instead of only in panes as before. With the new paper, portions of several devices appear in the space formerly occupied by one. The King Edward series of the British Virgin Islands was the first to be issued on this paper.

At first Colonial stamps were sent out on ordinary unsurfaced paper, but along towards 1906, the paper was treated with a chalk surfacing to prevent the cleaning of cancelled copies.

The ½d, 2d and 2½d of the Presidency series were issued in 1905, on unsurfaced paper, followed by the 3d and 6d in 1907, and the 1s in November, 1909.

In 1906 the 1d appeared on chalk surfaced paper— this value, bi-colored, was never issued on unsurfaced paper, with the multiple watermark. The 2d and 3d were issued in 1909, and in 1910 the 6d and 1s.

that stamps of the values of ½d, 1d and 2½d, or equivalents (being the international rates on printed matter, post cards and letters) should be printed in green, red and blue, respectively. At the same time, paper with chalk surfacing was reserved for 3d and values above.

This color scheme was not adopted by the Presidency, but the ½d, 1d and 2½d were brought into line with the U.P.U. requirements, and printed in single colors.

X. Federation Series, Universal Colors. 1907-11.

About the same time (1907) the ½d, 1d and 2½d stamps of the Federation series began to appear in single colors, and on the adoption of the Crown Agents' color scheme, the other values were brought out in changed colors, commencing with the 3d and 5s in 1910, and followed by the 2d, 6d, 1s and 2s6d in 1911.

By an Order-in-Council, made February 20, 1909, and published in the Leeward Islands Gazette of March 11, 1909, a stamp of the value of ¼d, for use on newspapers, was added to the series. On this value, the figures and letters of the value tablet are in color, within a thin hexagonal frame.

After five years of constant use, D. L. R. keyplate 1 began to show signs of wear, and on stamps printed subsequent to 1907, the inner frame line of the name tablet is broken at the top right corner. The flaw appears on stamps 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 9, 10, 11 and 12 of the left pane, and 1 and 2 of the right pane. It is also found on other Colonial stamps printed from this plate at this period.

Both plates 1 (120 stamps) and 2 (240 stamps) were used for stamps of this series, the latter, seemingly, for all printings made in 1911 and 1912.

1907-11. Federation series, King Edward VII, Postage & Revenue. Watermarked Multiple Crown CA. Perf. comb 14. Universal colors. 3d and above on chalk surfaced paper. Plates 1 and 2.

NOTES ON CURRENT GERMAN STAMPS.

By A. B. Saunders.

The German postage stamp has, of late, not only broken off the sixteen-year-old friendship with the ancient lozenge watermark and in its stead adopted a honeycomb pattern, but has also given up its former smooth gum and substituted for it a distinctly ribbed one. Since the summer of 1921 a new gumming machine is being used in the State Printing Works, which produces this ribbed gum. Since then all typographically printed stamps bear this gum, the paper for these stamps being gummed in entire rolls "before" printing. The gum of the stamps printed from line-engraved plates—only the three highest values, 5 mk. and 10 mk., Numeral type, and 20 mk., Ploughman, are here concerned—has undergone no change, for these stamps are only gummed "after" printing, and then, of course, not in the roll gumming machine.

As all typographically printed stamps of the numeral and pictorial series from 5 pf to 4 mk. exist with both the old smooth and the new ribbed gum, specialists differentiate the two varieties and collect these stamps, at the same time keeping in view the difference in watermarks, in the following three groups:—

1. Lozenge wmk.—smooth gum.
2. Lozenge wmk.—ribbed gum.
3. Honeycomb wmk.—ribbed gum.

The theoretical fourth group, Honeycomb wmk., smooth gum, does not in fact exist, as the Honeycomb watermark was not introduced till December, 1921, after the smooth gumming had already been abolished in the summer of 1921.

A distinction between groups 1 and 2 can, of course, only be made strictly in the case of mint stamps, although the ribbing frequently penetrates to the paper and can then also be observed in used stamps without gum. The two sole "Germania" stamps still printed, 75 pf. and 1¼ mk., exist also with both smooth and ribbed gum.

All stamps of later date—Munich Industrial Exhibition, 2, 3 and 4 mk. monocolour, 5 and 10 mk. Post-horn, new Air Post stamps—bear honeycomb watermark and ribbed gum. A single exception is formed by the 10 and 20 mk. denominations of the Munich Industrial Exhibition stamps, which were printed on a remaining stock of smooth gummed paper with lozenge watermark.

Many stamps of the numeral and pictorial series show a very defective watermark, the result of a faulty working of the watermark machines; indeed, not infrequently one finds stamps in which not the faintest trace of a watermark can be discovered, even with the aid of all known means of treatment.—Philatelic Magazine.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—We have received from A. A. Wasserscheid a rather unique meter cancellation used in Great Britain. It is ½d value and the following is the inscription thereon:—"One half penny Great Britain Postage Paid." The marking is shaped not unlike a stamp but the design is an open one, color carmine. In the center is the figure 1, the only indication of a meter number. It was used in London, and bears a London date marking in black, widely separated from the meter marking.

—H. W. Peacock of Barker, N. Y., would be very glad to secure employment in the work of pricing and mounting stamps. We take pleasure in making note of the fact, in the knowledge that he is very worthy of such employment. Mr. Peacock is a shut-in and anyone desirous of lending a hand to a worthy collector may do as we have done—send him a packet of stamps.

—Geppert Marsh, a fifteen-year-old boy collector of Middletown, Ohio, is showing commendable enterprise in furnishing stamp news to the local press. He sends us a copy of department matter contributed to a recent Sunday paper dealing with the new 11c Hayes stamp. Mr. Marsh writes, "I run an article every Sunday and have been doing this for about six months. I always had an ambition to write and it struck me that it would be fine practice to write about stamps. The editor of the paper seemed to like my idea and helped me put it over. I am thinking of organizing a club here in a few months." Activity of this kind is recommended to other boys.

—Henry H. Hart, well known to our readers, has recently become engaged in the importing of fine Oriental art objects. He leaves San Francisco on a buying trip this month returning the middle of March. He will visit Japan, China, Corea, Manchuria, North China and Hong Kong.

—In reply to inquiries by certain of our readers we are compelled to say that we cannot give the address of Leon Minassian. The P. O. Department has officially informed us to discontinue the sending of mail to Smyrna.

—Various of our subscribers have sent in specimens of the Red Cross advertising cancellation. We are making no record of the different cities using this but think it proper to call attention to the fact that different types are making their appearance. From A. W. Whitten of Chicago and others have reached us a cancellation showing two small crosses in outline on either side of the word JOIN. It is a pleasing effect.

—Many times it is a small matter that gives pleasure. Can any of your young readers find an inverted figure two—the price of a stamp—in the old 1922 catalogue?—R. B. F.

—We have received from A. N. Ball what seems to be an air-mail cancellation. The card bearing the same was mailed from Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 27, and its destination was Pontiac, Mich. In addition to the "Visit Cleveland Exposition" advertising cancellation it also has the winged circular design containing in the center "U. S." with the inscription "Via Air Mail." The marking in carmine. We do not recall that we have given any previous notice of this air-mail trip.

—Subscribers need have no hesitation in drawing checks in favor of the firm name as given in WEEKLY advertisments. Mr. Wells, the manager of the Home of the Postage Stamp, suggests that a word to the above effect is advisable. Indeed, firms prefer that checks should be payable to the name given rather than made out to one of the parties that make up the firm.

—Walter E. Lord desires to express his thanks for the many remembrances of stamps, etc., that he has received from WEEKLY subscribers. He writes:—"It is really wonderful that such a beautiful and kindly spirit should be shown by stamp collectors to one who is a complete stranger."

—There seems to be considerable interest in the gray papers of the 1920-22 issue of Austrian stamps and I am enclosing for your inspection such of them as I have been able to secure to date. Am told that the 7½k of the postage issue does not exist on gray paper. On the newspaper issue the only ones that came to hand in the usual way were the 18h and 3k. In regular purchases of stovk these values were included, there being more of the 18h than of the 3k. The other values were secured by special mention in orders and at a considerable advance over the white paper.—FRED S. MARTIN.

—With reference to the various remarks on the insurance of stamp collections, I have a policy R233044 with the United States Fidelity and Guarantee Company, of Baltimore, insuring at practically 1% premium. This is on household goods and specifically stamp collections. In section C of the declarations, special note is mentioned of the insurance on the collection.—DONALD DICKASON.

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

The 27th edition of the Yvert & Tellier-Champion Catalogue has been on our desk for several weeks and we now take occasion to describe the merits of this work that occupies a favored place in the "Sun." To indicate the thoroughness of the catalogue, it may be said that nearly eleven hundred pages are required to accommodate the issues, "Acores" to "Zoulouland" but so compact is the volume that it does not have the suggestion of bulkiness. Typographically, the book is very good and the thin, yet durable white paper, shows the well-made cuts and print to advantage. While the stamp pictures are reduced, they are plain and the illustrations of surcharges are faithful representations. This catalogue is not alone exhaustive in the mere listing of the different issues but it provides a wealth of information in connection with the stamps. While we realize that a catalogue cannot become a hand-book in the accepted sense of the term, yet the enterprising catalogue publisher will see that his work carries the greatest number of explantory notes. The collector is appreciative of this added measure of information and he feels grateful to the one who makes the darker paths in the catalogue light with the lamp of learning. The illustrations of type differences when opportunity suggests the propriety of picturing differences that cannot well be described in text are of value; and the helpful features that we have mentioned, together with the tables of information in the preface to the catalogue, make the catalogue under notice a stern competitor for the highest honors. From an examination of the prices appended to some of the stamps we can say that the quotations have been arrived at with care; and it is apparent that a sense of proportion is a key-note in pricing. We understand that the values of the stamps as given in the catalogue are regarded as final up to the time of issue of the work.

The 1923 Yvert & Tellier-Champion Catalogue is priced at 18 francs; Theodore Champion, 13 Rue Drouot, Paris, France.

We have received from Theodore Champion, 13 Rue Drouot, Paris, a copy of his 1922 edition of the Historical and Descriptive Catalog of Air-mail Stamps. It is a marvel that so excellent a book could be prepared upon these most recent additions to the stamp album. No fewer than 120 pages are used to describe and illustrate the world's air-mail stamps, and scattered throughout the book is a tremendous amount of information that will prove of great value to the lovers of these stamps. The price of the book is 10 francs.

We are pleased to record a new "A. B. C. of Stamp Collecting." Twenty years ago the original article appeared and it had a wide circulation, being written by the resourceful Fred J. Melville, president of the Junior Philatelic Society of London. In the book before us Mr. Melville treats in a very chatty manner of the many elementary things that will be of interest to the beginner, but packed within the pages is a great deal of information for the more experienced philatelist. The book is superbly illustrated. with remarkably clear plates. and we anticipate that the new edition will be fully as popular as the old. Price 2sh 6d from H. F. Johnson, 44 Fleet St., London, England.

COLLECTORS CLUB DINNER.

The 26th annual dinner of the Collectors Club of New York will be held December 16, 7 P. M., at the Cafe Boulevard, Broadway and 41st St., N. Y. City. John N. Luff, president, will be toastmaster and the after dinner exercises will be of a high order. In addition to speaking there will be other features to be contributed by Dr. Chittenden and Mr. Lichtenstein. The price of tickets for members or for guests is $5 and without doubt any philatelist able to attend will be provided for. Write Emil M. Sperling, chairman of the dinner committee, 725 Fifth Ave. Another committee has taken in hand the arrangement of an exhibition to be held in the rooms of the club, 120 W. 49 St., on the same day, Dec. 16, from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M. All the elements of a successful celebration are being provided and a general good time is promised all who can attend.

USE OF PRECANCELED STAMPS ON HOLIDAY MAIL.

WASHINGTON, November 1, 1922. In order to facilitate the handling of mail at first, second and third class post-offices during the Christmas holidays, postmasters are authorized at their option to precancel and affix stamps for the payment of postage on matter of the second, third and fourth classes offered for mailing at their offices during the month of December, the stamps not to be delivered to the persons presenting the parcels for mailing but to be affixed to the parcels by the postmaster or an employee of the post-office after the proper postage has been paid. Stamps used in this manner shall be precanceled in accordance with the conditions governing the precancellation of postage stamps.

Postmasters are strictly enjoined to observe the greatest possible precautions to prevent the misuse of such stamps and shall exercise careful supervision over their use and the employees handling them in order that the postal revenues may be properly safeguarded. To this end postmasters should cause parcels to which stamps are affixed by receiving clerks to be examined and weighed at variant intervals after the receiving clerks turn them over to the dispatching clerks, in order to make certain that the proper amount of postage stamps has been affixed to the parcels.

In case any persons or concerns desire to purchase precanceled stamps for affixing by themselves on mailings of the second, third and fourth classes, postmasters shall require them to submit an application for such privilege. as prescribed in article 67. page 20, of the July, 1922. Postal Guide.

EDITORIAL.

From Mr. Lowell Ragatz, whose foreign letters in the WEEKLY are appreciated by readers, we have received word: "A telegram from Monte Carlo three days ago informed me that the 15c and 1f Albert heads have been surcharged 20c and 50c in black, respectively. A wholesale order sent to the principality has just been heard from with the order one-tenth filled and a refund on the remainder. A real shortage of the other values exists and sales are restricted. A correspondent in the post-office says that several other values are very low and that further surcharges may be looked for."

Mr. Franklin S. Smith, of Jersey City, N. J., writes: "I came across the enclosed advertisement in the back of a copy of 'Artemus Ward, His Book.' pubcopy of 'Atremus Ward, His Book.' published by John Camden Hotten, Piccadilly, London, in 1865, and thought it might be of interest to some one." From Lord Crawford's catalogue we learn that the second edition referred to was published in 1864 and consisted of 130 pages and colored wrapper. The first edition of the Bellars and Davie catalogue was published in 1864, likewise; and it contained one hundred pages. While the catalogue described was one of the early philatelic prints, it was antedated by the Gray and Mount Brown catalogues. the first editions of which appeared in 1862. The advertisement that Mr. Smith had the kindness to copy, follows:

"A new handbook is about to appear, with the title, 'The Standard Guide to Postage-Stamp Collecting, with their Values and Degrees of Rarity,' a work upon which the authors, Messrs. Bellars and Davie, have been engaged for three years. It will include an account of the Mormon Stamp issued by Brigham Young in 1852."—London Review.

"Unexceptionable in the quality of the paper, clearness of print, &c., it affords an addition to the scientific knowledge attainable by means of the study of postage stamps. A table of characters affords the possessor an opportunity of obtaining an acquaintance with the shape and comparative rarity of stamps. This insight into the marketable value and scarcity of postage stamps is a new feature in books on the subject. The exact words of the inscription on the stamps is greatly conducive to facility of identification, and the queer characters on the Moldavian, Russian, &c., stamps copied without error, demonstrate the extreme care with which the work must have been got up. The index and money table appended will be found very convenient."—The Stamp Collectors' Magazine.

The meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society, held November 2nd, was termed "Chicago Night" and was devoted to the exemplification of Chicago's postal history as shown by stamps of local issue and by postmarks and other postal markings on covers and letters, dating from pre-stamp days, down to the time of the Columbian Exposition in 1893, with its World's Fair Station postmark. The exhibit was calculated to secure a bit of publicity locally through the display which admittedly would have a touch of historical interest to Chicagoans. The newspapers of the city, almost without exception, contained notices ranging from several lines in length to almost a column, thus showing that the news value of an exhibition of the kind was recognized by the city editors. The meeting itself attracted so many visitors that they filled the parlor of the Morrison Hotel and overflowed into the main hall; and all present attended closely to the proceedings, which were started by an interesting paper describing the postal service of Chicago's early days, which, compiled from original sources by Mr. R. McP. Cabeen, was read by him. The Lincoln pictorial envelopes in the exhibit of Mr. R. L. Wickes had a distinct appeal to many, it was noticed. Other local societies may find it to their advantage to arrange similar entertainments as stress may be placed upon the historical significance that a succession of covers used from a city, convey.

One of the covers that gave sentimental pause in the display at Chicago, bore a three cent grilled of 1867 and the imprint of the First National Bank of Chicago. The envelope was addressed in flowing hand, Dewitt H. Curtis, Quincy, Ill. The correspondent of the First National Bank, fifty-five years ago, was Mr. W. F. Furbeck, who is now with the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank; and when he was shown the envelope, he said that he had addressed it fifty-five years ago; and he duplicated the inscription on an envelope of the bank where he is now employed. The hand-writing on both of these envelopes practically is the same and Mr. Furbeck says that when he sent the early envelope, the force of the First National Bank consisted of about one dozen employees and, he adds, one of the old coal-burning stoves. Mr. Furbeck is now in the seventies and long may his pen flourish, say we; a matter of fifty years is as nothing in his young life.

In the Meditations of an Autograph Collector, by Adrian H. Joline, published by Harper & Brothers in 1902, we find the following letter written by Robert Louis Stevenson from Vailima, Upolu, Samoa: "You have sent me a slip to write on: you have sent me an addressed envelope: you have sent it me stamped: many have done as much before. You have spelled my name right, and some have done that. In one point you stand alone: you have sent me stamps for my post-office, not the stamps for yours. What is asked with so much consideration, I take a pleasure to grant. Here, since you value it, and have been at the pains to earn it by such unusual attentions—here is the signature of Robert Louis Stevenson. For the one civil autograph collector, Charles R——." Good for R——; if he was not a stamp collector, he had the instincts of one, else his forethought would not have compassed the idea of prepaying the return letter with Samoan stamps. Here is enterprise richly rewarded. We may add that the author of the book says that one must collect something "even postage-stamps and book-plates." Too, he asks: "Who said that man is an animal which collects? It must have been Andrew Lang, for he says most things nowadays." P'raps, but from the beginning of stamps, it has been the custom of writers on stamp collecting to begin energetic, if not always elegant, articles by words to the effect that "man is a collecting animal."

The influence of the day is seen in the tone of letters that we receive, in which the writers want to know what stamps should be bought to ensure good speculative returns. We do not know what to say in answer to these requests as an experience covering a good many years makes us timid about giving advice of the kind. It means little to say that the sterling old issues are sure to advance in price or to point out that the Lagos, single c a's, Cayman surcharges, Natal chalky one pound, one shilling, certain Jamaicas, Gibraltars, etc., bought as new issues, have shown a wonderful profit. The cover collector can tell of his fortunate purchases of even five years ago, in the light of to-day's prices; and so on. We suppose that if one buys the stamps of a country of good repute that is temporarily in eclipse or is ignored for no particular reason, he could well invest in them, knowing that the pendulum will swing in his direction in time; and more popularity will mean better prices. In philately, more than in many other things, "surely the plain rule is, Let each considerate person have his way, and see what it will lead to."

A reader wants to hear of a witty come-back for the chap that asks when he learns that the aforesaid reader is a collector: What do you do with the stamps after you get them? He says that he has tried a humorous rejoinder only to see a look of pained bewilderment settle on the face of the questioner and that he has delivered a laborious explanation only to set the lines of vacuity on the countenance of the seeker after knowledge. Now, he wants to get something snappy as a foil to the question, something on the lines of "we can what we can and what we can't we eat." We shall take the responsibility of saying that he will offer a stamp for a reply that suits his fancy.

ere is an extract from a letter from of the big collectors who recently atned a meeting of a local stamp soci under some persuasion. In speakof the attention given to a collection iew he says that he "is pleased to te that almost all of the members interested in the stamps, unlike it some years ago when the exhibitor made to feel that the folks were inted in everything but the stamps were brought for their especial bene-" In other words, showing stamps at latelic meeting is no longer akin to ng off fire-works in a blind asylum," me one has said.

PHILATELIC NOTES FROM FRANCE.

By LOWELL J. RAGATZ.

Of course everyone has heard of the famous Paris stamp bourse. It is one of the most picturesque institutions in connection with our hobby, and never fails to draw the visiting collector whether he be from Oshkosh, Timbuctoo or Shanghai. Few foreign collectors, however, have heard of the provincial bourses and fewer still have ever visited one of them.

There are at least four such at Marseilles, Bordeaux, Dijon and Lyons. There may be others, but I have not as yet heard of them. The four named, like the great Paris one, are held in the open air in central locations on Sunday mornings from 9 to 12. As I did not happen to be in the first three of these cities over week ends, I was not able to visit the bourses there. I spent, however, Sunday in Lyons, and there saw my first provincial bourse.

Place Bellecour, easily reached by tram from all directions and just off the Rue de la Republique. one of the principal streets of the city is the meeting place for Lyonnaise collectors and dealers. This large open square is well shaded and nicely provided with chairs and benches. One corner is the scene of considerable activity between buyers, sellers and exchanges of things stampic.

Nine o'clock finds half-a-dozen stocks on display, Albums, catalogues and scratch pads for figuring up accounts are placed on small tables behind which the sellers are seated. The number of collectors is rather small at first, but by 10.30, when the bourse is at its height, as many as a hundred are assembled about the various stands.

Packets, 5 and 10 centime a copy, sheets and counterbooks with the average run of goods are on display. In addition, each dealer has a pocket album or two filled with gems which delight the heart and lighten the pocket book of the more advanced collector. These are brought forth on request only.

French covers and imperforates in pairs and larger pieces were the features of bourse session I attended. The dealer offering them had, it was said, received them for sale on commission from a Russian nobleman in reduced circumstances. There were hundreds of certain varieties, classified by cancellations. The stamps off cover sold at catalogue for singles, at double catalogue on cover, with pairs and more important items being priced with Yvert's prices forgotten.

Another dealer seemed to be doing a considerable business in unused French colonial sets 1c to 75c inclusive and single copies of the franc values, at 15% above face throughout.

The United States offerings were only scattering, and I bought what few were available at half Yvert's for very nice copies. There seemed to be little or no interest in our issues there. The items I bought were odd values of the 1851, 1857 and 1861 issues.

In addition to the regular dealers, there are several young chaps of about twenty who are catering to beginners with gaudy sheets of Neurope, Seebecks and remainders of all sorts. The prices on most of such items are ten centimes a copy, as they come.

A large amount of exchanging takes place. I noted at least two dozen pairs of collectors during the course of the morning, who were operating on the principle of "now I'll take this one if you'll take that one."

Several of the bookstall men along the banks of the Seine in Paris carry on quite a stamp business among the younger collectors. Their packet offerings comprise a large variety at about two-thirds the stamp shop prices. Single stamps are mounted on large cards tacked on the tops of the cases containing their books. Catalogue prices are generally ignored, the goods on sale being, for the most part on 5, 10 and 25 centime a copy sheets. Collections up to 2,500 varieties are also on sale. Unused French colonials can be had at 10% over face. The proprietor generally has 40 or 50 stamps worth from 50 francs up in a pocket stockbook. These run largely to France and colonies.

The 1923 Yvert's went on sale on September 30. There was a grand rush for the new book. Two of the shops I visited on October 3 had already disposed of their first deliveries.

French orphan stamps, surcharged, can be procured at face in any quantity at the Bureau Central des Postes, Rue du Louvre, Paris. In speaking of these stamps, I might say that some of the surcharged sheets are reconstructed from strips of 5 of the unsurcharged ones. Most post-offices were supplied with small quantities of all values but the 5c plus 5c, apparently in most cases with not more than 5 or 10 copies of a value. These have been called in for surcharging, and sheets are made up from the strips with the aid of gummed paper. I have such sheets of the 2c, 35c and 50c. This naturally offers a possibility for inverts on a strip now and then.

Old letters before the days of stamps and bearing various types of impressions to designate the amount paid, are always of interest. I found a lot of about 50 covering the period from 1790 to 1829 in a second-hand store. After a little dickering I managed to get them at a reasonable figure.

The Paris dealers' stocks are rather depleted of good United States stamps, following the visits of American collectors and dealers during the course of the summer. Most of the shopkeepers are sending all the early things that come to them across the Atlantic against standing "buy" orders, accompanied by a deposit account. That such arrangements have been entered into is not surprising, as half Yvert's is the prevailing price for good and better copies, 1847 to date.

The Prince of Monaco's coronation has again been postponed, according to Paris papers. When the event finally does take place, the new 25c and 50c buildings type will be among the stamps surcharged for the occasion.

I WANT TO BUY
FINE UNITED STATES
ESPECIALLY MINT BLOCKS

Always in the market to purchase anything fine in the way of United States issues, especially fine covers, superb early issues both mint and used and especially blocks in fine o. g. condition. If you have a collection or duplicates or even fine single items, I offer cash or good exchange. Of the late issues I especially want, blocks of the higher denominations, all of the 1908 series on blue paper above the 2c with the exception of the 13c, the errors in quantities, etc.

From 1890 to date I have a wonderful lot of mint blocks and solicit want lists. Try to pick these up and see how difficult they are to obtain. The late issues of today are the old issues of tomorrow, so start to fill in while prices are in reason. The demand for blocks is increasing daily and this means higher prices.

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—As described in this column for last week the new 5c Roosevelt stamp was placed on sale on October 27th but those who wrote to Oyster Bay for copies were disappointed, for it seems that the supply was exceedingly small and the Postmaster retained those that he received for local use. Through the courtesy of the Nassau Stamp Co., we are able to report a copy on cover used on the first day.

By the time these notes appear the new 15c, 25c and 50c will have been issued. The other values may be looked for to follow in close order for the Bureau is now making up the necessary plates and it is to be hoped that they will all be ready by the Christmas holidays so that pre-cancelled collectors will be able to obtain practically the whole series with the usual overprint, these being so cancelled in large quantities for the holidays.

The Philatelic Stamp Agency under date of October 25th, sends out a circular letter stating that they have on sale the new stamps that have recently been issued, and will have the further values just as fast as they appear. In addition, they can supply at the present time, all of the current engraved perf. 11 series through the $5.00, including the $2.00 in both colors. In addition they still have a supply of the 3c Victory, the Aeroplane stamps; the 1c, 2c and 3c engraved imperf., together with the Pilgrim varieties, the latter of course being perforated 11. At present they have some of the 1c and 2c rotary press perf. 11 x 10, the last two Special Delivery emissions in addition to the 50c and 75c Parcel Post stamps. A few of the Shanghai overprints are to be had but of course none of the local surcharges.

Speaking of the local printed Shanghais on the 1c and 2c denomination, Mr. S. R. Sheldon writes from that point under date of Oct. 2nd that these stamps were on sale for a very short time and that the unsurcharged stamps were used concurrently. He informs us that all large users buy the unsurcharged stamps for U. S. currency as they cost about 10% less. The principal sale of the surcharge stamps was to the casual purchaser who bought two or three stamps at a time for mailing letters. Mr. Sheldon advises that the local stamp collectors were not aware of the issue until they were practically off sale.

In a recent issue we advised that the Bureau of Engraving and Printing had informed us that the first plate for the rotary press with the plate number in the corner was the 1c 13,745. We have written them for further information in view of the fact that the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. have just shown us a block from the northeast corner with plate No. 13,744.

Mr. F. L. Applegate kindly sends for inspection new cigarette tax stamps issued by the State of Iowa for collecting an additional tax upon cigarettes. We described some time back a series showing the dome of the State Capitol. The new series which is lithographed and of the same size is not near as attractive simply showing a little scroll work in the center, "State of Iowa" horizontally across the top, "Cigarette" semicircular below with the word "Tax" immediately under. In the lower corners there is a figure of value with the word "Cents" between. The new values so far issued are the 1c green and 1½c orange. The stamps are perforated 11 and are on unwatermarked paper.

Mr. A. F. Gamber calls attention to the fact that in a recent issue we chronicled a Milwaukee window envelope Die F, size 8, low back, on white as being watermarked 20 where as a matter of fact it is watermark 19. We desire to change the record accordingly.

We wish to thank Messrs. W. A. Langdon, C. L. Jones, C. Krug, Charles Metz, G. G. Ryder and Ernest Smally for notes of interest

ALBANIA.—The Economist Stamp Co. inform us of the 2q surcharged stamp of the 1921 issue, No. 135, with the added surcharge "Q" in the lower left corner and the figure "1" in the lower right with a frame around the entire overprint. The color of the surcharge is black.

CYPRUS.—The Economist Stamp Co. report the 2 piastres value, carmine and ultramarine, on script watermarked paper.

GYPT.—The Economist Stamp Co. ad-: that the 10m of the 1914 type has n issued in red.

EEWARD ISLANDS.—Mr. R. Roberts mits for chronicle a copy of 1d, King Grge type, in deep purple shade on pt watermarked paper.

ALTA.—A second supply of the stly new 4d "pictorial" which Messrs. itfield, King & Co. have just received loses that the stamp is in a distinct le from the first supply, and there very appearance of there having been resh printing. The first lot is in a lemon, while the second is more of range; further, the blue on the first ly is much deeper than that of the nd.—Stamp Collecting.

AURITIUS.—The Economist Stamp send us copies of the 6c purple and 20c ultramarine on script water-ked paper, both in the type of Scott's .

ONACO.—Mr. W. T. Wilson submits chronicle the 15c green and the 1fr the current issue overprinted "20" "50" respectively. Both surcharges in black. Mr. Wilson also informs hat he has received the 10fr claret e pictorial set which is the same de-as the 5fr recently issued.

EW ZEALAND.—Mr. Olaf T. Gylleck mits to us a cover received by him n Christ Church. The envelope has t appears to be two printings that e the cover look as though it was he metered mail variety but both are elled in the usual way by the can-ng machine. The stamps are printed he envelope in red with the values he upper corners and at base the "Christchurch." In the centre is all circle with "21" within and the r "N" at the left and "Z" at the t. Above in a curve "Postage" and below "Paid." Just below the circle Halfpence."

SSIA.—We are indebted to Mr. S. an for the information that a new of 14 values depicting transporta-of the post by the Artist Altmann soon appear. Also that a jubilee ommemorating five years of Soviet Régime will be placed on sale. On the 19th of August, the Central Committee for the aid of the famine sufferers have organized "the Philatelic Hour." Envelopes and stamps were sold with the surcharge in Russian characters in three lines. Mr. Hyman also sends us two values of a new design, 1k red and 5k green. The lettering runs from the lower left to the upper right corners in the 5k value and the opposite in the 1k stamp. Above is the usual emblem used on Russian stamps, on the 1k in the right corner is the figure of value with the reverse on the 5k.

We have received from Mr. S. A. Pappadopulo a cover with four values of Russian stamps with new surcharges: The correspondent writes that the issue of Priamur stamps, decided upon some time ago, is expected very soon. Already the 2k, 4k, 5k and 10k of the 1909-12 series have appeared with the surcharge "Priamurski Zemski Krai." The issue is composed of about 35 values as it was decided to overprint with the above mentioned surcharge the stock left of the stamps of the Republic of the Far East that the new government does not recognize, and also a stock existing in the post-office of the stamps of the Empire. These stamps are issued by the new Monarchical Government of the Priamur and will be sold on a gold basis.

SALVADOR.—Mr. W. L. Richmond advises that he has No. 979 with inverted surcharge.

ST. KITTS-NEVIS.—Stamp Collecting says "It is proposed to issue a special series of stamps in connection with the Tercentenary of the first settlement of the island, which falls next year. Out of the proceeds of the sale of these commemorative stamps it is hoped to acquire land for a public park and botanical gardens as a permanent record of the Tercentenary.

SEYCHELLES.—Mr. R. Roberts sends us the following new issues from this colony, 3c black, 4c green, 6c violet, 12c carmine and 15c yellow. All script watermarked printed in sheets of 120 from plate 10.

SWEDEN.—Mr. W. D. Scott, of Ashford, Kent, notifies receipt of the following:—
35 öre yellow (Crown and Posthorn).
45 öre brown (Crown and Posthorn).

Our Swedish Special Correspondent. Mr. Ragnar Lundberg, informs us that, as from October 1st, the Swedish Postal Administration has lowered several of the postage rates for inland mail as well as for letters sent abroad. A single letter, for instance, costs now 15 öre to any place in Sweden; 20 öre to Denmark, Finland and Norway; and 30 öre to other countries, instead of 20, 20 and 40 öre respectively hitherto. A consequence of these changes will be some new stamps. As to 15 öre stamps, we shall probably not get any novelties until the stocks of the 15 öre of 1910-19 and that of 1920 are exhausted. The 30 öre in blue and a new 75 öre value, however, are sure to be brought into circulation before long.

We have, further, to announce the issue of two series of stamps, which will appear in 1924, one in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Universal Postal Union, and the other on account of the Eighth Congress of the Union, to be held at Stockholm in 1924. In order to get designs for these stamps the P. M. G. has arranged a general prize competition. Designs for the anniversary series should comprise some "international motif" and have the inscription "Union Postale Universelle 1874-1924" or "U.P.U. 1874-1924," in addition to the usual "Sverige" and, of course, the value. The Congress commemoratives must comprise some "Swedish motif" besides bearing the words "Världspost-föreningens VIIIe kongress," or "VIIIe Världspostkongr," and "Stockholm 1924," together with the value. The stamps will be of the size 26 by 32 mm; each value is to be printed in one colour.—Stamp Collecting.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.—Two esteemed correspondents in South Africa send news and examples of a curiosity of the current 1½d brown K. G.. i.e. inverted sc tenant with normal. We understand that these were prepared for the 1½d booklets, but as the postage for the Union is at present 2d per ounce, the booklets cannot yet be issued, so that it was thought advisable to issue the stamps thus in quarter panes. The first, second and third stamps of each row are in the normal upright position, and the fourth, fifth and sixth inverted.—Stamp Collecting.

URUGUAY.—Mr. Erwin Strasser sends us the 5c brown in the recently issued design.

WESTERN STAMP CO., A.S.D.A. No. 88. 308 LEFLANG BUILDING, OMAHA, NEBR

CUBA "Y¼" SURCHARGE OF 1855.

By Dr. F. Kalckhoff.

In the No. 1 of Volume III of Scott's Monthly Journal, there was a paper whose author tried once more to solve the question of the meaning of the letter "Y" surcharged on the 2 reales stamps of the Spanish West Indies, which has troubled philatelists ever since these stamps came over to Europe.

In the Spanish, as it is written, there is very little difference between the majuscles "I" and "Y," as likewise with other European nations using the Latin letters. Therefore, it happened very often that a printer, following a manuscript, took the type "Y" for "I" as an initial. (In other languages we find a "J" for an "I.") Could any conclusion be nearer than that: that the "Y" on the Cuban stamps was the initial of a word beginning with "I"? Certainly not. But then the question arose, "Which might be the word thus abbreviated?" At first was taken the word "I" (equalling "and") itself and, accordingly, the stamp was supposed to bear the value of 2¼ reales. But this theory became void when Mr. F. Diveo unearthed the order by which this stamp was introduced as a local stamp for the town of Habana at the value of ¼ real p. f. Now the guessing about the meaning of the queer letter again arose. The authority of J. B. Moens became responsible for the interpretation of it as an abbreviation for "Interior", which was based upon the fact that Spanish words beginning with an "I" were in print often rendered with the initial "Y", though this is but a printer's misuse, caused by the confounding of the script "I" with the script "Y". But M. Moens' interpretation is not convincing, for the word "Interior" could only refer to the interior service of the whole island of Cuba and not to the "local" service of the town of Habana. Some other interpretations (Isabella, interino, idem) are too artificial and cannot be seriously considered.

Now some twenty-eight years ago a German philatelist, Mr. Rudolf Friederich, published a new interpretation, which was based on the authority of two Spanish gentlemen, who had been living in Habana at the time these stamps were current. One of these gentlemen was Colonel Don José Espi y Cubillo, the other Don Vincente Sanchez Bregua, a merchant from Sevilla, whom Mr. Friederich got acquainted with in 1884 at Madrid. Both of these Spaniards declared the "Y" as a commercial abbreviation for "real plata fuerte", just as $ means "dollar" or £ means "pound sterling." If we take this for granted any difficulty of interpretation disappears. The surcharge of the "Y¼" stamp means simply "real plata fuerte" and thus becomes the most natural surcharge, which everyone in Habana then would have understood.

It is not to be wondered at that this sign had fallen into oblivion. In 1866 the currency in Cuba was altered and the real plata fuerte disappeared. The sig was only used within the small colony European merchants in Habana, who d mostly stay there but for a few year Thus none of those who came to Haba after 1866 would have learned the obs lete sign, and philately doubtless enter Habana at a much later date. On t other side, it is most natural that t local postal administration made use this sign on a stamp which was excl sively intended for the correspondence the Havanese merchants and not to used on letters going abroad. Amer philatelists now have a chance to confir this information by further investigati in Cuban commercial books or new papers of the Fifties.—Scott's Month Journal.

GENEVA LETTER FROM FRANCE.

To the surprise of the recipients, mail arriving in Washington from the Secre- tariat of the League of Nations in Geneva bears French instead of Swiss stamps. Inquiry reveals the reason—French postage is so much cheaper than Swiss that the "Soccite deh Nations" is putting itself to the trouble of shipping pouches of its mail for foreign lands to its Paris office on the Rue Vernet to be forwarded from there. And thus the Swiss post-office loses a very good cus- tomer.

The postage in Switzerland is high, being eight cents against our five cents for foreign letters and four cents against our two cents for interior letters, ex- cepting those inside a ten-kilometer limit. Much to the annoyance of the Swiss Government, instead of increasing re- ceipts the new rates have caused a big deficit.—Washington Post.

The Stamp Follies of 1922

"A little foolishment now and then, is relished by the best of Philatelists."

VOL. I, No. 1. CONDUCTED BY SILAS WEATHERBY, PH. P. NOV. 18, 1922.

Editorial.

Contributions to this dept. are now in order, so if you can shake a humorous self filler don't be backward about coming forward with your best efforts, either prose or poetry as you may elect.

They say, that he who can grow a smile where a smile never grew before deserves credit, therefore, as we want to grow miles of smiles, we must have lots of credit-ors.

Tickling the funny-bone has been the means of putting many big things over, and it will help to make Philately more attractive and boost our hobby, so please remember this—

If you can't be a pine on the top of the hill,
Be a scrub in the valley—but be
The best little scrub by the side of the rill;
Be a bush, if you can't be a tree.
If you can't be a sun, be a star—
Be the best little booster whatever you are.

Luke McGluke Helps "Uncle" Pick Out a New Series of Postage Stamps.

Well—you see it happened like this—I was jest recuperatin from a bad attack of the influendways and was jest debatin with myself whether I should go South for the Winter or North for the hay fever—when I happens to lamp a news item in the N. Y. Gussette that says they was thinkin of changin the designs on the postage stickers, the reason for all of this hilarity was that "Uncle" was losein oodles of kale every new moon on short paid stuff and 90% of the P. O. clerks were developin cross-eyes at an alarmin rate tryin to tell a 1c stamp from an 8c with out squintin.

And the article also says that sugges- tions from anyone would be welcome, well—seein as how that Suggestin is my middle name and as I could qualify in the anyone class I decided to grab a rattler for old D. C. where "Uncle" keeps his stamp foundry and have a talk with my old friend Irv Glover who hap- pens to be the third P. M. G. ever since Volstead made bootlegging an art.

When I arrived I ambled over to the Bureau of Engravin and Printin this be- in the place where Irv generally hangs out, except when he's playing Gulf.

So I sends in my card and asks could I see him on important business, and pretty soon I gets a high ball that its my move, so I trots right in.

Hello Irv old dear, your lookin kinda peaked.

Why Hello Luke, says he, you'd look worsen that if you had my job just now. How come, sez I, lookin as innocent as Babe Ruth jest after makin a home run.

Well you see we kind of thot we had ought to make a few changes in our postage stamps for the good of the ser- vice, so we asked for suggestions, and we gottem alright, but the more we get the less we know about it, so I am not yet sure any changes will be made.

Now Luke what do you think of the present series of postage stamps? Think of it, Sez I. Why it's Monotonous, Monotonous, Sez Irv. Yep, Sez I, lookin wise, worse than the last two Worlds Series. As bad as that sez he lookin kinda worried. I'll tell you straight Irv. What you want to do is to get out a classy set of stickers, make it a fifty- fifty proposition you know, half of it so it will be O. K. with the masses and the other half O. K. with the classes. A fine idea, Sez Irv, smilein for the first time. Could you make a few sugges- tions. That's me all over, Irv, Sez I, but I got it all doped out on the train comein down here, I sez, handin him this list.

And this is the dope as I handed it to him.

Series of 1923.
10x22m:m.

1c Green, Franklin.
2c Carmine, Washington.
3c Violet, Jefferson.
4c Brown, Grant.
5c Blue, Garfield.
6c Claret, Roosevelt.
7c Black, Harrison.
8c Grey, Farragut.
9c Salmon red, McKinley.
10c Yellow, Lincoln.
11c Dark green and black, 22 x 35mm, Niagara Falls.
12c Claret and black, Grand Canyon.
13c Brown and black, Pikes Peak.
15c Grey and black, Yellowstone Park scene.
20c Blue and black, the Golden Gate.
30c Orange and black, Alaskan Seal on ice cake.
50c Violet and black, Hawaiian Royal Palms.
$1.00 Yellow and black, Harbor at Manilla.
$2.00 Carmine and black, Washington crossing the Delaware.
$5.00 Light Green and black, Statue of Liberty.

That would make a classy series of stamps Sez Irv.

You know it, Sez I, that would make the hicks in the sticks vote the Republican ticket for life.

I guess you'r right Luke, I'll think this over and thanks for the dope—Good Bye Luke—Good Bye Irv—

THE POET'S CORNER

Collectin' Stamps.

A feller isn't thinkin' mean,
Collectin' Stamps;
His thots are mostly good and clean,
Collectin' Stamps;
He doesn't knock his fellow men,
Or harbor any grudges then;
A feller's at his finest when He's Collectin' Stamps;

The rich are comrade to the poor,
Collectin' Stamps;
All brothers of a common lure,
Collectin' Stamps;
The boy; the joy the reprints bring
Can chum with millionaire an' king;
Vain pride is a forgotten thing,
Collectin' Stamps.

A feller's glad to be a friend,
A helpin' hand he'll always lend,
Collectin' Stamps;
This Brotherhood of shifts an' broken line,
An' cats' an' tongs is simply fine;
Men come real close to God's design,
Collectin' Stamps.

A feller isn't plottin' schemes,
Collectin' Stamps;
He's only business with his dreams
Collectin' Stamps;
His livery is a benzine pan,
His creed—to do the best he can;
A feller's always mostly man,
Collectin' Stamps.

BRITISH METERED MAIL.

(From the London Times,)

Gummed postage stamps may soon completely disappear in favour of automatic stamping of letters.

The postal stamping system, which is already becoming popular in American business houses and has already spread to London, consists of a mechanical impression on the envelope instead of the usual adhesive stamp.

It is worked by machinery similar to that of a gas slot meter and has already received the sanction of the Postmaster-General.

"Its advantages are clear." an official of the G. P. O. told The Evening News today. "Stamp-licking will be a memory of the past.

"An automatic indicator adjusted by the G. P. O. effectually prevents any tampering with the machine. The expense of printing stamps will decrease in proportion to the increasing popularity of the new device.

"The official view is that as long as the revenue from postal prepayment is forthcoming, the G. P. O. does not mind any substitutes for the present system provided it is considered efficient.

LIKE A CASH REGISTER.

"The machine is not the property of the Post Office but that of the private firms who lease it from the manufacturers.

"The universal postal stamp machine is not unlike a cash register in appearance, with a slot opening for the insertion of letters and post cards to be franked.

On the front of the machine is a dial indicator set to represent postage fees varying from a halfpenny to a shilling. There is a second recorder inside. This is set to register franks up to a given amount.

This meter is detachable, being sealed and set up by the post-office to furnish postal franks up to the value paid in advance by the user.

"We are not allowed to sell the machine," the secretary of the Universal Postal Frankers, Ltd., told The Evening News today. "We may only hire it out. We have already received hundreds of applications from all parts of the world, and the first machines will be issued and licensed in the next few weeks."

POSTAGE STAMP ISSUES MARK NEAR EAST EVENTS.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Postage stamps illustrate each succeeding phase of the Near East crisis, writes Douglas B. Armstrong in the Daily Express.

The special issues made by Kemal Pasha's government, at Angora, already number nearly a hundred varieties, some of which are scarce. At first a varied assortment of current and obsolete Turkish postage and fiscal stamps were pressed into the service and adapted to the needs of the Nationalist party by overprinting them.

Early in the present year, however, these emergency stamps were replaced by a full series printed in pictorial designs, including views of the National Assembly, the Lyceum at Sivas, the Mosque of Selim and types of Turkish soldiers. One of the designs represents the Arabic fable of the Lion and the Serpent; another a view of Adana from the sea. The designs were prepared by the Turkish artist Vahadeddin.—Chicago Herald-Examiner.

CANADA PUTS POSTOFFICE 850 MILES FROM POLE.

OTTAWA. ONT., Nov. 4.—Canada has established the farthest north post-office in the world, according to a report just issued by the Department of the Interior, covering the work of the expedition which explored the northern archipelago this Summer under the direction of J. D Craig.

Within 850 miles of the North Pole, the new post-office is at Craig Harbor, Ellesmere Island. The expedition established another post-office at Ponds Inlet, on Baffin Island.

The expedition represented the first official attention Canada has paid her northern territory since 1910. and was brought about, according to the department's report, "by certain acts of other governments."—Chicago Herald-Examiner.

STAMPS OF THE FUTURE.

By DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG.

Above will be found a type of the British postal frank already put into use, and it is expected that other values up to at least one shilling will soon appear. The other designs are being considered by the several governments represented, according to the "Philatelic Magazine."

In the history of the post and the postage stamp a new era is dawning. We live in a mechanical age, and the application of machinery to the purposes of postal prepayment was merely a matter of time. The advent of the automatic postal franking machine is destined to revolutionize the world's postal system, so that the innovation is worthy of more than passing attention at the hands of philatelists, upon whom its effects must ultimately recoil.

Within the next few years a very large proportion of the world's correspondence will be despatched under frank in lieu of the present ubiquitous adhesive stamp. The natural result of this will be a steady decline in the consumption of postage stamps, which, in Great Britain alone, now amounts to something like seven thousand millions annually, and while it is not suggested that the adhesive label will ever become extinct, the tendency must inevitably be for the demand to become "smaller by degrees and beautifully less"; which is all to the good so far as the philatelist is concerned. New issues will be fewer and further between; printings will be smaller, and the rarity of all adhesive postal issues greater in proportion.

The collecting of Postal Stationery, which already shows signs of revival, should receive fresh impetus with the coming of the universal postal frank in its many and varied forms, since there can be little question but that the modern stamp collection will be deemed incomplete that does not include these latest tokens of postal progress.

THE POSTAL FRANKER AND ITS USES.

The "Universal Postal Franker" in its present form as recommended and authorized for International usage by the Postal Union Congress at Madrid, and sanctioned for use in Great Britain by H. M. Postmaster-General, is the outcome of experiments extending over a period of 20 years. In appearance it is not unlike a Cash Register with a slot opening for the insertion of letters, etc., for franking. On the front of the machine is a dial indicator, which can be set to Match & Medicine stamps are government revenues issued mostly from 1864 to 1883 to pay Federal stamp taxes. A few were issued from 1898 to 1900 but no further issue is probable. They present three unusual features.

Feature 1—No stamps in the world present such a variety of designs, colors, shapes and sizes.
Feature 2—With no further issue probable, they present the nearest approach to a side-line that may be completed.
Feature 3—The wonderful one—they have not increased in catalogue prices for years!

represent varying postage fees, from ½d to 1s, and in the top is a visible register representing the value of each impression made by the machine. Inside there is a second recorder for checking purposes, which is set to register franks up to a given amount, and then automatically reverts to zero. This meter is detachable and is sealed and set by the Post Office to furnish postal franks up to the value paid in advance by the user. When this amount has been consumed the meter not only locks the machine, but the machine remains so locked while the meter is removed for re-setting at the Post Office. A reserve meter is provided for use in the interim. So infallibly does the meter record and keep its accounts that they will be accepted by the Accounts Department of the Post Office without question.

As many as 25,000 letters daily can be franked by the latest type of machine, which is operated by electricity, or if an automatic feeding device be employed, up to 200,000 or more. In addition to the frank, letters are postmarked in black with the date and place of posting in one continuous operation, so that they may be handed in at the post office for immediate despatch. Amongst the obvious commercial advantages of the system are the protection it affords against petty theft and pilferage of stamps and the misuse of stamps by employees, coupled with the immense saving of time and labour in the case of firms having a large postal business. Moreover, the "franks" are not negotiable like postage stamps. Wrappers, labels and telegrams can be franked on the same machine and its use in connection with National Health Insurance is under consideration.

From the point of view of the Post Office it is estimated that 50% of the labour of cancelling and sorting is eliminated under the franking system, and its general adoption will effect an annual saving of £1,000,000 in the working of the Post Office, apart from the reduction in the use of adhesive stamps costing £40 a million to print.

Postal franking machines are being installed by a large number of important business houses throughout Great Britain, each of whom will then possess a mechanical Post Office of its own. The adoption of the machine is also under consideration by several European Governments. The initial cost of installation is relatively small and once this has been covered, a nominal rental to cover the cost of inspection and maintenance is charged. At the present time upwards of one thousand Universal Postal Frankers are in service in New Zealand, India, Egypt and elsewhere.

Early Experiments.

The original postal stamping machine from which the present improved type is evolved, hailed from New Zealand and was the invention of a Mr. Moss, a naturalised New Zealander. It was coin-freed machine, and with the sanction of the Dominion postal authorities was installed outside the G. P. O. at Wellington for a period of six months in the latter part of 1903. It was subsequently removed owing to the insertion of metal tokens, etc., by the public in substitution for coin of the realm.

A hand-operated model was next produced by the Automatic Stamping Company of Christchurch, N. Z., and fifty of these machines were either sold outright or rented to approved commercial firms under license from the New Zealand Post Office Department. With certain modifications and improvements this is substantially the same machine that is now beng introduced into the British postal service.

Postal Franks and the U. P. U.

The use of postal franks in the prepayment of international postage was authorised for the first time by the Postal Union Congress at Madrid in 1920, the Convention containing, however, the following proviso:—

"ARTICLE VI. Para. 1.

Impressions produced by stamping machines must include an indication of the country of origin.

They must be bright red in colour, whatever the value represented by them."

Franks employed for internal postage only, may be impressed in colours corresponding to the same denominations of adhesive stamps. This is the case in the United States where 1 cent franks are printed in green, 2 cents in red, and so on up to 10 cents, which is the highest value frank in use.

The illustrations accompanying this article show the type of postal franks approved by H. M. Postmaster-General for general use in this country, as well as others, either in actual use or under consideration by foreign governments.

It is curious to note that, save for the application of modern methods, the franking system is in reality a reversion to a form of postal prepayment that was in vogue long before the invention of the "label with the glutinous wash," when "PAID" marks were applied to letters handed in at the post office. Modern invention has made possible its revival as a practical aid to postal progress.—Philatelic Magazine.

THE FIRST PRECANCELLED STAMPS.

By W. Ward.

It is not generally known when the first precancelled stamps were used, and that they are much older in use than generally supposed.

The first stamps so treated were the 1c of Canada deep yellow, 1888, Scott's No. 32, and were first cancelled at the end of the eighties. Sold in complete sheets by the several largest post-offices in the Dominion, they were cancelled by the ordinary local "killer" handstamp bearing the post-office number in a variety of circles and ovals. Later the 2c, 3c and 5c were so treated, and half sheets were sold to firms of standing.

Practically the only way to distinguish these early precancels is to possess pairs, strips or blocks, so that the killer cancellation is shown repeated, and not with the ordinary dated town's mark. Those that I have so far noted—though there must be others—and they seem to be very scarce, are those of Ottawa, a circle the size of a quarter dollar, with 19 fine lines, and the center punched out oval shape bearing the figure "1". The other was St. John, New Brunswick, a long shaped oval of 14 lines with a circle let in containing a bold numeral "1". In both cases the stamps were the deep yellow, and rather large spacing of perforation, with the result that some of the stamps on the original sheet must have been badly cut into.

It is also probable that the same issue were precancelled by having lines ruled across the rows of stamps, as one often sees them in this state, without the ink ruling carrying on to the portion of the cover that they are affixed to, but of course these can hardly be considered as legitimate precancels.

U. S. M. TRIUMPHANT

Washington, Nov. 13.—"Eight feet of snow in the pass. No trucks through."

This telegram received by the post-office department tells of the clogging of one of the longest and most famous mail routes in the United States—the "Price to Vernal" route in Utah.

Vernal is at the far end of the Utah valley, which is as isolated as Thibet. One main government aid road over the pass in the mountains is the only regularly used path of communication between the world and the valley in which there are several towns. The mail has been known to run as high as twenty tons in a day. In answer to the cry for help the post-office department has arranged to use a caterpillar tractor to break a road through the drifts.

A CANADIAN ANACHRONISM.

By R. M. Angus.

An interesting heraldic mistake in the design of the entire Georgian series of Canadian Postage stamps has only recently been noticed.

It appears that a philatelist visited the office of the Post Office Inspector in one of the Western Provinces of Canada, and asked him by what right the Queen's Crown appeared upon all the stamps of the Canadian Georgian series instead of the King's Crown. The Post Office Inspector having some official business to transact at Ottawa shortly afterwards, was enjoying the privilege of seeing over the plant of the British American Bank Note Co. and witnessing how postage stamps are made, and pointed out to a high official of that firm the obvious mistake that appeared on the Canadian Georgians. The official expressed great surprise when this was shown him and fully concurred with the error, stating that they themselves had not observed it and it was the first time it had been pointed out to them.

Whether it will be considered advisable in the interests of heraldry and correct designing to remedy this mistake is an interesting question, but if it entails the preparation of new plates, the expense may be a strong factor against any change being made.

The crown was correctly changed on the Edwardian stamps from Queen's crown to King's and why it should have reverted to Queen's crown again when King George ascended the throne remains a mystery. I have looked through the Edwardian and Georgian stamps of all the other British Colonies but can find no case of error among them except in this one case of the Canadian stamps.

A similar mistake occurred in 1902, when the first Edwardian five cent coins were struck in Canada, the Queen's crown being retained on the obverse. This was corrected in the 1903 issue.

GERMAN METERED MAIL.

We recently chronicled a new style of meter cancellation now in use in Germany. Thanks to Wm. H. Smith we are able to illustrate the form of the same.

A PASSION FOR COLLECTING.

Nobody who ever was a boy, and few who used to be girls, can claim never to have made at least the beginning of a stamp collection, or truthfully can profess complete ignorance of the impulse which leads to the ascribing of large intrinsic value to bits of paper which, at their usually long past best, could be bought for a few cents at most. Yet it is a fact that of all phases of the collecting psychosis, stamp collecting is about the most difficult to justify on reasonable grounds.

Of historical and geographic education it does give just a little—at comparatively enormous expense of money, time and labor — and the extent to which it ministers to the esthetic sense is too small to measure. The stamp collector judges his treasures by a single standard —rarity. For a specimen unique—or believed to be unique, which is very different—the more fervent of the collectors, if they have the money, will pay what not many years ago would have passed for a fortune.

Yesterday's Times told of a man up in Utica — a sober, respectable and nominally sane "textile manufacturer" — who has given $34,198 for a one-penny stamp issued in British Guiana in 1856, and imperfect at that! And he insists that this stamp, and many other but slightly less expensive gems of the same kind, are a "good investment"! That must mean that he expects some day to sell his collection at an advance.

Perhaps he will, but the market cannot be large, and if he attempted a forced sale he might be disappointed. And some of us remember that for $34,198 one could buy a decently bound copy of all the books really worth keeping that ever were written in any language.—New York Times.

A Young Philatelist Protests.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As an enthusiastic philatelist, though only 14 years of age, I feel I must make some objection to your editorial of Nov. 8 on "Collecting." I have been a philatelist for six years, and I find my knowledge of history and geography increased far more than "just a little," in addition to which I have learned colors, maps, Governments, coinage, &c. But most important, I think, is the fact that the hobby of stamp collecting increases one's powers of observation more than one would imagine; also, the necessary neatness in the care of one's collection develops a good trait. Perhaps I am mistaken, but my idea is that a stamp collector is one who has the money or business end of it in view, while a philatelist is keenly interested in all the good points of the hobby, such as color, design, beauty, &c., irrespective of financial gain —a distinction with a difference.

GOING DOWN.

Washington, Nov. 13.—The Pan-American Postal Convention and also the Pan-American Parcel Post Convention now have been ratified by Mexico, Argentina, Brazil, Uruguay and the Dominican Republic in addition to the United States.

The immediate effect of such ratificaiton will give users of mail and parcel post to these countries the same rates as are applicable to domestic postal matter in the United States. The weight limits and the methods of handling mail matter under these conventions are designed to provide greater facilities than are permitted under the regulations of the Universal Postal Union.

The rates from those countries to the United States are fixed by the individual administrations, but in general are the same as those applicable to their domestic mail.

1663-4-5-6-7

The next discontinuance of subscriptions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1663 to 1667 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

We are satisfied that the system we have inaugurated is the only one under which a newspaper can do business these days, and subscribers must understand that free copies of the Weekly will not be sent to those who are in arrears.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—We heartily congratulate the Philatelic Journal of Great Britain upon its "special double number" for October, 1922, in celebration of the "diamond jubilee" of the house of Pemberton, the publishers of the magazine. There is so much of interest in the pages of the number that bridges Edward L Pemberton, 1862, with Sefi, Pemberton & Company, Ltd., 1922, that we must speak of certain of the features later.

—At the meeting of the Royal Philatelic Society, London, held November 16, 1922, Mr. A. Leon Adutt was announced as the exhibitor of proofs, essays and stamps of the U. S. A., 1845-9. Mr. Adutt has performed many friendly services in behalf of philately, we may add. At the meeting held October 12, the attraction was the "display of the early stamps of Trinidad from His Majesty's collection, with notes by the President on the De La Rue printings of 1862-82."

—A correspondent says that "some of the dealers in France seem disinclined to sell one the stamps one wants" and that "they are rather independent about selling stamps at all."

—The news of the death of Mr. Theodore Buhl, one of London's oldest dealers, has been chronicled. Mr. Buhl is remembered as having contributed largely to commercial activities in London two or three decades ago.

—Christmas is coming—Say It With Stamps!

—The Post-office Department at Washington announced on October 27, that in October, up to that date, the Department had supplied to post-offices throughout the country 2,124,265,360 postage stamps. The Department figures that if these stamps were placed end to end they would reach 28,737 miles. In printing these stamps 138,036 pounds of gum, 116,220 pounds of ink, and 399,125 pounds of paper were used.—CHAS. G. WILSON.

—The San Francisco Stamp Society is now meeting in its own club room at 329 Call Bldg., 74 New Montgomery St. Members and friends are cordially urged to visit the same. December 4 there will be an exhibit of Germany and Colonies.

—W. H. Schaffner of Marion, O., informs us that the Marion post-office has just issued its first precancels. There are various denominations, up to the 30c, inclusive.

—W. W. Betts of Clearfield, Pa., is publishing a very artistic monthly journal. No. 7 of Volume 2 for November is before us and a sample copy will no doubt be sent upon application.

—H. E. Harris & Co. has issued a very fine pricelist dated November-December. It is of interest both to dealer and collector, covering, as it does, a wide range of offerings. A copy will be sent by addressing the firm at 161 Massachusetts Ave., Boston, Mass.

—R. T. Kingsbury, Keene, N. H., A. P. S. 6180, is a candidate for mayor of that city. His election prospects are good.

DEATH OF HARRY B. AGARD.

We are advised by J. M. Bartels of the death of Harry B. Agard of Westerly, R. I. We do not have any of the particulars nor can we give an extended account of Mr. Agard's philatelic career. We do know that for more than a score of years he has been a subscriber to the WEEKLY, and his death occurred very suddenly September 14.

NEW HONOR ROLL.

Beginning October 1, we commenced a new subscription honor roll and we are well pleased with the results of the first month's work Many have participated and below will be found a record of the subscriptions sent in. We do not need to comment upon individual activities, but take this opportunity of expressing our appreciation of the work that has been done. We are especially indebted to those dealers who believe in the WEEKLY sufficiently to help promote the common philatelic welfare. The record for October is as follows:—

EDITORIAL.

The three new stamps are out and by this time collectors have at their call a trio of picture stamps of distinctive design, the fifteen cent, the twenty-five cent and the fifty-cent. We hear that up to November 11th, advance orders totalling more than five thousand dollars had been received from collectors. From the newspapers we learn that Frances Glover, six years of age and the daughter of the third assistant postmaster-general, presented to President Harding, the first of the new stamp issue, portraying the Arlington Amphitheater." We trust that President Harding will have at least some slight stirring of philatelic desire, as he examines this stamp which is so surcharged with suggestions of sentiment, to succumb in time to the gentle allurement of philately. We should delight to impress the outsider by citing our president as an exponent of stamp collecting but as it is, plain truth compels to repeat that while the president is well aware of the existence of philatelists, he may not truly be said to be one of them, although we have some authority for saying that he once had a school-boy interest in collecting.

If the daily publication of the post-office department at Washington finds it advisable to give prominent space to the following communication from an ardent collector, we certainly may do likewise. We trust that the interrogation with which the notice is concluded will not be lost on postmasters.

PHILATELIC AGENCY LAUDED.

THIRD ASST. POSTMASTER GENERAL,
WASHINGTON, November 6, 1922.

The following letter commending the department's Philatelic Stamp Agency has just been received:

PEORIA, ILL., November 1, 1922.

MR. W. IRVING GLOVER,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR SIR: I desire to commend your department upon the fine manner in which your Philatelic Stamp Agency is serving the needs of the stamp collectors of the country and to assure you that the efforts of the department are indeed greatly appreciated.

We collectors are assured of receiving nice specimens and courteous treatment, which is not always the case when we go to local post offices for our hobby wants.

Wishing you continued success in this branch of the P. O. D., I am,

Very truly yours,
P. F. ROBERTSON.

Do the patrons of your office know the facilities this agency affords those interested in collecting postage stamps?

W. IRVING GLOVER,
Third Assistant Postmaster General.

This reference to the Philatelic Agency impels us to give a word of praise to the American stamp dealers who have shown practically a unanimity of regard for the government's accommodation, even though it could be said, with some stretch of the imagination, that the Washington agency was taking a bit of business away from them. Instead of any tendency to grumble at the enterprise of the government, they express satisfaction that the authorities have established this convenience for collectors; and they look upon Washington's recognition of the stamp collector as something more important than a few more pennies in pocket.

We wish to call attention to the intelligent treatment given philatelic news occasionally by the New York Times, one of the stars of the inky way of newspaperdom. We suppose that the fact that the Times copies some of our feature stuff and gives full credit, has its influence with us, but we want to commend the fairness and eke the nose for news of this great New York newspaper, whose managing editor knows what people want to read, in our humble opinion. Even though we are prejudiced in favor of stamps, we defy any news purveyor to the public taste to find better provender than that provided by the news of the stamps now being issued and their designs and the snap-shot of Mr. Hind, "America's Biggest Stamp Collector," a fact recognized by the Times. In its issue of November 8th, a column article was printed, based on Mr. Ward's article on Mr. Hind, in our issue of October 30th and in the Times of the following day, an editorial, "A Passion for Collecting" appeared, although the writer of it not unnaturally questions any logical progression that could justify the payment of over $34,000 for a single stamp. We must not shrink from the scalpel of cold analysis and we have no quarrel with the man who proceeds dispassionately to inquire into the rationale of philately and we shall print the Times' editorial elsewhere.

Speaking of editorials, the Chicago Journal of Commerce headed an article in its editorial column recently, "The Spyglass of Columbus," and spoke of the St. Kitts-Nevis stamps showing Columbus squinting through his trusty spyglass. The editor says that "as a result the fun-makers are having a fine time at the expense of the postal authorities of St. Christopher and Nevis." Welladay, when the lynxes of the newspaper press scent a stamp story that appeals to them, they run it to death. The "Columbus spyglass" anachronism is traveling the world around and we suppose that by this time the readers of the Patagonia Public Press are grappling with it.

From Mr. Douglas P. Ball, we have received the following letter: "Attached are covers from Battle Creek, Nebraska, and Clifton, Illinois, both fourth class post offices and both 'sporting' the advertising cancellation, 'Address your mail to street and number,' although the population of each is less than 600, according to the latest census. As I understand that the postmasters have to buy the dies for these advertising cancellations, I cannot understand their purpose, as the towns, if they do boast a 'Main Street' probably have gone to the length of numbering the stores. What do you make of it, Watson?" Watson has been so busy electing his philatelic friends to office, that now that the strain is relaxed he is in a comatose condition, but he rouses himself sufficiently to say that every postmaster of a fourth class office is a regular Babbitt of a booster and that he is merely anticipating the future greatness of his burg, a few years hence.

We have received from Mr. H. F. Rech, a schedule of "Approximate time of mails, and distance between New York and certain places in foreign countries," which presents some interesting figures. Bagdad, Mesopotamia, is second farthest away in a postal sense and it requires forty-two days to establish communication with that place; and Bangkok, Siam, is thirty-eight days distant, or 14,939 miles. We forgot to say that Bagdad's score is 14,229 miles. We are relieved to know that our host of subscribers at Half Jack, Ivory Coast, West Africa, 7,670 miles distant, receive their papers in thirty-three days and that there are but thirty-seven days and 13,246 miles between the Celebes, Netherlands East Indies and us. Little Popo, Togoland, West Africa, is thirty-seven days and 8,185 miles distant and the palm for remoteness is given to Perth, West Australia, whose good citizens are separated from us by 14,415 miles and forty-four days.

DON'T MISS THE PHILATELIC AGENCY.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. Torin Mikuriya, secretary of the department of communications of Japan, has arrived in Washington to study the postal, telegraph and telephone service of United States.

In company with S. Oshima, architect of the Japanese department of communications, he called upon Postmaster General Work and spent the day in making an inspection of the Post-office Department.

Secretary Mikuriya and Architect Oshima, after going through the Post-office Department, plan a detailed examination of the post-office at Washington, giving particular attention to the methods used in the receipt and dispatch of mail. Later they will inspect the New York city post-office, where more mail is handled than any other place in the world.—Newspaper.

PICTURESQUE TANGANYIKA.

By CHAS. G. WILSON.

The picturesque new stamps of the new Tanganyika Territory, Britain's East African mandate, recall to mind a gallant and romantic episode of the Great War. Tanganyika Territory was formally known as German East Africa. In 1915 an expedition of 28 officers and men all told was sent from England to cross Equatorial Africa, taking with them two 40-foot motor boats to assist the Belgian forces on Lake Tanganyika drive the Germanss from the Lake. The expedition, was commanded by Commander Spicer Simson, R. N., and guided by J. R. Lee, set out from Elizabethville, Belgian Congo, with their boats, which had arrived at Elizabethville after a journey of 2,488 miles from England via Cape Town. When the "end of steel" was reached the boats were hauled by an army of blacks and with tractors for six weeks through jungle and bush. At times a road had literally to be cut through the trees so dense was the growth.

During this period of six weeks in the bush 146 miles were covered. Then the boats were floated 350 miles down the Lualaba River to Kabalo, a trip fraught with much delay and hardship. Remained then a journey by rail of 200 miles to Lake Tanganyika. Upon arrival at the Lake the boats were based on Albertville and here guns were mounted on them and they were made ready to drive the Germans from the Lake. They were to destroy the German fleet of small boats so that a British and Colonial force could advance from either end of the Lake along the German coast, join forces at the German base of Kigoma and drive them from the surface and littoral of Tanganyika and then out of Africa.

The day after Christmas, 1915, an enemy vessel was sighted and the British flotilla put out and gave chase. After an engagement of 10 minutes the German gunboat struck her colors having been struck 25 times by high explosive shell. She sank in the harbor at Albertville. The victors raised her, reconditioned her and on the 9th of February, 1916, she accompained the two British boats as an ally in their second engagement when they sank with shell-fire another German boat after a sharp fight.

The remaining Germans saw that their day on Lake Tanganyika was at an end and they scuttled some few small boats and one larger one that were still left to them and withdrew their military forces from the Lake.

Victory had come to the British Naval African Expedition and after some months of watchful waiting they returned to England without having lost a single life in their gallant enterprise.

MR. HIND'S BRITISH GUIANA.

By W. WARD.

Philately owes a debt to Mr. Philip H. Ward, junr., for making us acquainted with Mr. Arthur Hind, who secured the world's greatest rarity, the 1c British Guiana—for there is no doubting that it is the rarest philatelic piece in the world.

Most have heard of some of the British Guiana rarities being found by an old lady and sold on behalf of a church there, but few know the history of this stamp prior to its coming into M. Ferrary's possession. Mr. Ward mentions that it bears a rubber stamp on the back, undecipherable. This was the mark of Mr. Thomas Ridpath, one of the English dealers of long ago, in whose hands it was prior to being sold to M. Ferrary.

Mr. Ridpath was a Liverpool stamp dealer, circa 1877-1900. As a youth he began his business career in the office of our oldest firm of stamp dealers—Young & Stockall, also in the same town, long since passed into history. With that luck that comes once in a lifetime, and generally too late to be of consequence, in Mr. Ridpath's case it came at the right moment. He had only been in business on his own account for some fifteen or sixteen months when he had a rare find of old British Guianas from a shipping office. There were dozens of the circular first issue of 1850, including no less than three copies of the 2c on rose, and of course the 1c that Mr. Hind now has. This was by no means the only great find that Mr. Ridpath had, though of course it was the most important one.

He was more or less an itinerant dealer and travelled extensively in Europe. Sydney views and 12d Canada were to him what stamps are to most of us. Established at 71 Lord Street, Liverpool, the address of one of our oldest and most honoured stamp firms, Messrs. Taylor Brothers, Mr. Ridpath continued in business until his death in November, 1900. Some day, no doubt, on one of my trips to the seaport, I may get Mr. W. C. Taylor of the firm mentioned to give me an account of some of the past acquaintances he had with Mr. Ridpath, for the continuance of association from the days of our first great stamp firm, who supplied young men like Stanley Gibbons, E. L. Pemberton, &c., Messrs. Young and Stockall, is unbroken through Mr. Ridpath to Messrs. Taylor Bros.

GOOD FOR GARRETT.

Card proofs of the old United States department stamps are everywhere recognized by stamp collectors among the almost unobtainable rarities, yet some 50 varieties of these stamps have just come into possession of Charles H. Garrett, local philatelist. The donor found the stamps while sorting stock for the Bryant Paper Company. They were all on one sheet. Being under certain obligations to Mr. Garrett, he was made the recipient.

From the very first appearance of postage stamps, it has been the custom of the government to take first impressions of the accepted designs on a fine quality of cardboard. These are known as card proofs and are retained by the government and only in rare cases do they go into the stamp selling market. This accounts for their rarity.—Kalamazoo Gazette.

ATLAS STAMP CO. (P. C. Smith) W. Somerville, 44, Mass.

UNITED STATES, No. 369f

1914, 1c GREEN, PERF. 10x12

This stamp with compound perforation was made at the time the Bureau was changing its perforating machines from 12 to 10. Only about thirty of the variety were found and these were all precanceled "Dayton, Ohio." The variety is not known in any other condition nor has an unused copy ever been located, hence Scott only catalogues it in used condition and prices it at $35.

I had almost the entire lot which were found in a mission mixture by a Canadian collector. One copy and one only is on a large part of the cover supposedly used by the National Cash Register Co. This copy is for sale at $30.00. One of the rarities of U. S. 20th Century and will soon be selling at several times this figure. Only one and the first check takes it.

Do you require anything else in late U. S.?

UNITED STATES.—The 15c, 25c and 50c of the new series of United States postage stamps were placed on sale in Washington on Armistice Day, Saturday, November 11, and being in that city at the time I had the pleasure of purchasing some of the first sold. To see the line waiting to purchase them one would think that a goodly portion of the population of the Capital City were philatelists. The three denominations placed on sale were the first of the pictorial series to appear, in fact they are the first of the general issues ever turned out by this government depicting natural wonders and scenery. The stamps are most attractive, the 25c variety being especially pleasing. They are all of the regular size, the 15c being upright, while the 25c and 50c have the long dimension horizontal. They are printed in sheets of four hundred subjects and these in turn are cut into post-office panes of one hundred. As usual they are perforated 11 and printed on unwatermarked paper.

The 15c in gray shows the well known Statue of Liberty with a view of New York harbor in the background, partly enclosed in a spread horseshoe panel supported at the base by scrolls. Within the panel and above the design appear "United States Postage" in white Roman letters. Below the design within a white ribbon "Liberty", while horizontally across the bottom of the stamp the word "Cents" appears flanked by the figures "15" in goodly size. We find scrolls to complete the design in the upper corners.

The 25c, the first of this denomination that we have ever had in a regular series, is in a dark green and shows an excellent view of Niagara Falls taken from Goat Island looking towards the American shore. The engraving is extremely fine and there is a question as to whether the fine lines of the water are going to hold up after the plate has been used for a while.

The 50c is in a lilac, similar to the current series and shows a view of the Arlington Amphitheatre with the tomb of the unknown soldier in the foreground. The Bureau sent its own photographer to Arlington to take photographs. One having visited the tomb will realize that its location in relation to the Amphitheater is not as shown on the stamp. Had a view of the tomb as large as shown on the stamp been pictured in its true position, nothing but pillars would appear in the background.

Supplies of these stamps will not be sent out to post-offices in the case of the 15c and 50c until the old supplies are exhausted and in the case of the 25c, postmasters are instructed to refrain from drawing requisitions as the supply at present is limited. The first sheet of each denomination printed was signed by "L. B. Hill, Director" and "W. Irving Glover, Acting P. M. G." The first sheet in the case of the 15c was number 14073, of the 25c number 14063, while the 50c was from plate 14044.

The new 6c in orange, showing a portrait of Garfield, will be placed on sale in Washington and at Orange, Ohio, the birthplace of President Garfield, on November 19th, the 91st anniversary of his birth. The 2c in red, with a portrait of Washington after Houdon similar to the current series, along with the 4c brown with Martha Washington will next appear followed by the 1c Benjamin Franklin, which I am promised will be placed on sale in Philadelphia on the first day.

The die for the 6c was approved by Mr. Glover as Acting Postmaster General on November 10th. After a die has been approved, the former die is placed in the vaults and is not used again for plates. This means that the last plates of the current 5c, 6c, 11c, 15c and 50c have been made. Mr. Eidsness, Chief of the Stamp Division, tells me that it may be February before the last denomination, possibly the $5, will appear. All plates of the old designs will be used until worn out, and it is not the intention of the department to cancel any of them because of the new series.

I have again questioned the department regarding the sale of postage due stamps through the Philatelic Stamp Agent and am informed that they are in hopes of doing this, but have struck a snag in the form of an Act of Congress that has bearing on the subject. The matter has been referred to the solicitor of the department for his opinion. The Stamp Division is doing everything consistent with the ethical management of the subject to favor the collector. The stamp agency has proven a wonderful success, they are being given a much larger location with more employes and in another year things will be running in such shape that we will be wondering how they ever got along without a stamp agent.

Mr. P. J. Krantz kindly sends for inspection a copy of a black 3c Chicago permit, No. 2373 overprint in red with a large "2". This is a printed permit and is not the product of a metered mail machine.

We wish to thank Messrs. J. H. Houston, Robt. F. Molitor and Stephen G. Rich for notes of interest.

AUSTRALIA.—The Australian Philatelic Record advises that some of the 2d reds are now coming along in a shade of pure vermilion which is quite distinctive. The 6d postage due has appeared on Kangaroo paper perf. 14.

BAHAMAS.—Mr. R. Roberts informs us of the appearance of the 2½d blue, 6d bistre, of the King George type and the 2sh Staircase design, on script watermarked paper.

BOLIVIA.—Mr. Charles Edw. Prior writes us as follows:—

"Less than a year ago as I was looking through a dealer's stock book, I noticed three new stamps of Bolivia, of the deof anything fine in early U. S. or foreign stamps. We can pay more than most because we cater to a limited clientele who are willing to pay us well for de luxe items. If you have a collection to sell, or only a few fine duplicates of the issues from 1847 to 1869, or an accumulation of the issues of 1870 to 1880, send them to us with your spot cash price and you will receive returns promptly. Just now we particularly want singles, pairs, strips of the 10c stamps of 1851 and 1857, either on or off cover, and will pay more than catalog for those we can use. [H nominations of twenty centavos, one boliviano and two bolivianos.

"The first, 'Veinte Centavos' was a bright golden yellow and bore a picture of 'Lago Titicaca'; the second, 'Un Boliviano' was scarlet and showed the 'Ruinas De Tiahuanacu', and on the third 'Dos Bolivianos' was pictured the 'Puerto De Guaqui'.

"All were labeled 'Correos De Bolivia'. I asked the price of the stamps, which was reasonable, and bought them. They are the only ones of the issue that I have seen, and I have been looking to see them illustrated in the stamp magazines. Scott's latest Catalogue does not mention them. They are very handsome stamps, about the size and shape of our Pilgrim Tercentenary issue, but much more striking in appearance. Has anyone else run across them?"

DANZIG.—Mr. J. L. Riedel submits for chronicle a copy of a new 100 mark stamp of a new design and of somewhat larger size than formerly. The stamp is printed on a yellow network printed paper and is of green with a red border around the outside and with a shield of the same color in the centre showing two crosses with the crown above. The usual native lions are at each side with the numbers of value at the top and "Mark" at each side. Below the shield is "Freie Stadt" and at the base "Danzig." The stamp is serrate rouletted 13½.

FRANCE.—According to the Paris correspondent of the Daily Chronicle (Oct. 23rd, 1922), the effigy of Professor Pasteur affixed on a blue 50 centime postage stamp has been approved of by the Cabinet, and will come into use at the coming Pasteur centenary, when a series of fêtes is to be held throughout France to commemorate the discoveries of the great French scientist.

We rather suspect that if philately is to be Pasteurized in this way there will be strong protests. Possibly, however, the projected label is not a postage stamp at all, but merely one of the quasi etiquettes to which our French friends appear to be growing more and more partial.—Stamp Collecting.

GERMANY.—Mr. J. L. Riedel has shown us a 6m blue and 30m brown in the type of Scott's A30. Also a 100m brown on buff in the type of A31.

KENYA.—Mr. R. Roberts advises of the following values of the new set of stamps that have recently been placed on sale: 1c brown, 5c purple, 10c green, 12c black, 15c red, 20c orange yellow, 30c blue, 50c grey, 75c olive bistre, 1sh green, 2sh lilac, 3sh grey black, 5sh carmine, 10sh blue, 1 pound orange and black, 5 pounds blue and black, 10 pounds blue green and black, 25 pounds carmine and black. All of the pence values show a profile view of the King with "Kenya and Uganda" at the base and figure of value above at each side. The higher denominations have the values in each corner with the same picture in the centre and the words of value around the oval that makes the frame of the portrait. The name of the country is at the base.

LITHUANIA. — Many readers have doubtless been perplexed by the recent plethora of "aerial mail" stamps. It seems that the 1, 3, and 5 auk. triangulars have never been officially used for air-post purposes. They were prepared last year with the idea of commemorating the inauguration of the flying post in Lithuania, the inscription "Oro Pasto Isteigimas," meaning "Opening of the Air-post Service," to which was added the date 25th June, 1921. As will be remembered, the word "Isteigimas" has been obliterated by the overprint "ZENKLAS," which is Lithuanian for stamp, and the adhesives thus marked are available for ordinary postal purposes.—Stamp Collecting.

POLAND.—Our Special Correspondent, Mr. H. Berowicz, informs us that the Sower design of 1921 is appearing in reduced format measuring 25x21 mm. The impression is more solid and the paper whiter, while the perforation gauges exactly 12½. The first value to appear in this type is the 20mk, copies of which, on both thin and thick paper, our correspondent submits: 20mk carmine.

A series of Air Post stamps, after the designs of Prof. Mehofer, of Cracow, for use in the service between Dantzig-Lemberg-Paris-Warsaw, is stated to be in course of preparation.—Stamp Collecting.

ROUMANIA. — Our Roumanian Special Correspondent, Mr. Aurelian Ovessa, notifies issue of the Coronation series, comprising seven values (5, 25, 50 bani and 1, 2, 3 and 5 lei) in four types representing, respectively, King Ferdinand of Greater Roumania in field service dress, the King and Prince Michael, the Queen visiting a hospital, and Her Majesty in Coronation robes.

Meanwhile the following changes have been made in the ordinary series:—5 bani black (type of 3 bani black of 1919-21) and 2 lei rose (type of 2 lei orange of 1919-21).—Stamp Collecting.

BRITISH COLONIES - Both Centuries - POPULAR PRICES

Another vacation season has come and gone, with collectors devoting more time to their hobby as the winter months approach. It is, then, time for us to emerge from o dull season routine and make ourselves known as a headline concern once again.

Our method of doing this is to offer MEKEEL'S readers a page of medium-priced "Colonials", next to our own U. S. Postage in popularity, comprising mostly Edwar Georges and Scripts, and priced low. This ad is worthy of the attention of every reader, and we trust it will make many new friends for us.

OUR APPROVAL SERVICE

Again this year we desire to call attention to our method of caring for the m buyer. With an enormous stock on hand at all times we can usually supply somethi for everyone, and we are sure a trial will mean a satisfied customer.

First of all we recommend buying by want list. It places the hard-to-get ite which we obtain one at a time at your command; stamps which will never be adv tised. We make no charge for this service—discounts ranging from 35 to 60% of ca logue. We do expect you want the stamps you ask for, and intend keeping them, to your entire satisfaction. This service is our leader, and many a dealer is dependi on us regularly to fill their clients' lists.

Then, also, we offer a nice line of books by countries for the advanced collector, a large series of net priced sheets containing both single stamps and sets alphabe cally arranged. Either of these will suit the average intermediate collector.

New Issues:—Especially is this important in connection with this advertiseme of Colonials. Why not obtain all the new colors and scripts at 30 cents per shilling stead of waiting a few months and paying several times more? Refer to Egypt, Mal New Zealand, etc., and see what has happened to stamps which were current only cently. Just send us your limitations and we will keep you supplied.

We have prepared a list of packets, sets, etc., for the collector having less th 15,000 varieties, and will be pleased to send free upon request.

OUR NEW ALBUM

ENTERPRISING.

DANZIG, Oct. 29.—Stamp collectors have been warned to be on the lookout for counterfeit German stamps alleged to have been made in London during the war for use by English spies in Germany. The rigidity of the German censorship was such during hostilities that enemy spies found great trouble in getting re- ports out of the country. Various meth- ods of transmitting information through invisible ink, etc., are said to have been detected with ease, and the spies finally were obliged to resort to using the backs of stamps. German stamps were un- suitable, so counterfeit stamps of a suit- able paper were manufactured.—News- paper.

"MEKEEL'S" FOR CLIPPINGS.

By A. Z. MYERS.

No stamp paper that I have yet seen furnished so much help in studying one's stamps. Each number received is read in a short time. No weekly paper that comes to my desk is digested more thoroughly and none that I find time to dispose of so soon. (Shows how the bug is working.) Many articles are clipped for preservation and reference.

What to do with these clippings or how to file them to be accessible was the problem for a long while. At present am finding the following practical and simple.

They are filed with the stamps of the country to which the article refers. That is, to my collection of blocks, cancella- tions, etc., of the country. In my main collection I have only one each of each kind, but many other things interest me to keep.

To care for these and not litter up the main collection with them I have at last hit upon the following.

I take sheets of letter paper, a good, light weight, rule it by leaving about ½ inch margin at top and then make spaces 1¼ inch, this leaves a similar margin at the bottom. On these I have large room for displaying blocks, strips, cancella- tions, shades, etc. These are filed between the pages of scrap books. The latter I have secured for a few cents each at the second-hand book store. Any book, with pages a little larger than the letter-head paper will do.

The clippings for each country are also slipped in here and accessible. After accumulating a large lot of sheets, a number of books in this way, I have seen or heard of nothing so practical and so inexpensive.

Time spent studying the articles and comparing with specimens in hand, or even the catalog pages, is well spent, and your stamps mean much more as you learn to really know them. The above has proven helpful to me and for simplicity and an inexpensive mount I commend it.

JUGO-SLAV MONEY.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—Your chart of European moneys in today's issue of The Tribune, with classifications as good, fair, poor and almost worthless, does great injustice to the Jugo-Slavic through having placed it in the "almost worthless" class.

This might have occurred through perverseness of American papers in quoting krone as Jugo-Slav currency.

Jugo-Slavia is a creation of the former Serbia and Montenegro and the Jugo-Slav provinces of the former Austria-Hungary. After the union was effected the Serbian dinar was adopted as the monetary unit for the new state. Throughout the liberated provinces the Austrian krone was exchanged at the rate of four for one dinar. Krone therefore, does not exist in Jugo-Slavia. It is only an imaginary currency representing in value one-fourth of the existing legal unit, the dinar.

Thus when you quoted on your financial page of the same date: Jugo-Slavia $0.43, that in reality meant: 100 Jugo-Slav units [dinars] $1.72.

How this unit compares [today and a year ago] with the units of those countries having the same par value [19.3 cents] and which your chart classes as "almost worthless" let this little table bear witness:

	Oct. 25.	Yr. ago.
Austria	$0.0014	$0.05
Poland	0.0081	0.03
Germany	0.02¾	0.62
Hungary	0.04⅛	0.13
Roumania	0.65	0.74
Jugo-Slavia	1.72	1.42

This comparison shows not only great difference in value between Jugo-Slav and other money, classed as "almost worthless," but it shows also that while all other moneys declined during the past year the Jugo-Slav advanced considerably.

CANCELLATION OF STAMPS ON PARCEL POST PACKAGES.

It has been brought to the attention of the department that in many instances clerks are not properly canceling stamps on parcel-post packages and other mail matter.

Postmasters are requested to see that stamps on parcel-post packages, as well as on all other matter, are properly and carefully canceled. Special care should be used in canceling the dark-blue 5-cent stamp, since unless the cancellation stamp is applied with sufficient pressure to leave a clear cancellation mark on the dark-blue background the cancellation does not show and the stamp is susceptible of re-use.

W. IRVING GLOVER,
Third Assistant Postmaster General.

THAT'S RIGHT.

Postmasters are hereby notified that the new special-delivery stamps are now available for issue, as the supply of the 1902 issue is exhausted.

All future requisitions received from postmasters will be filled with the new special-delivery stamp of the 1922 series.

NASSAU STAMP CO.

116 Nassau St. New York, N.Y.

BRITISH VIRGIN ISLANDS, 1899.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

On October 31st, 1890, the use of special stamps by the different Presidencies of the Leeward Islands Federation ceased, and one common series took their place, inscribed "Leeward Islands." Like many other Colonies, the British Virgins derive a large percentage of their revenue from Post Office receipts, and when outside sale was curtailed, the revenue from the Post Office was reduced to practically local sales for purely postal purposes, i.e., between £5 and £10 a month. As a means to increase the revenue the issue of special stamps for use in the British Virgins, concurrently with those of the Federal series, was advised by the Federal Executive Council of the Leeward Islands, in 1898. No formal Order in Council was ever made.

The stamps were designed, engraved and printed by De La Rue & Co., Ltd., from copper plates, in sheets of 120 stamps, 2 panes of 60, on paper watermarked Crown CA, and comb perforated 14. They were issued at Roadtown, Tortola, then the only Post Office in the Presidency, in January 1899.

The design measures 18½ x 22½mm, and is identical for all eight values. Within a trefoil arched opening is the full length figure of a haloed Virgin, with an armful of lilies. Conventional leaf and fanlike ornamentation occupies the space at the sides, and small labels at the foot are inscribed "Postage" and "Revenue," in colorless letters. A horizontal label at the top is lettered "Virgin Islands" in colored Gothic caps, and on a similar label at the foot, is the value in words (the 2½d is expressed as 2½ penny).

Some have claimed that the figure of the Virgin is taken from the seal of the Presidency, but this is correctly shown on the 1d and 6d stamps of the 1866 series. On the seal of the Leeward Islands Colony (which contains the shields of the six Presidencies forming the Federation), it appears as a Virgin, robed, facing the left, with six lamps on either side (one of which she holds in her right hand), arranged vertically. The female figure represents the Constellation of Virgo, the sixth sign of the Zodiac, and the twelve lamps indicate the twelve signs of the Zodiac.

Commenting on De La Rue & Co.'s apparent change of mind on surface printing versus line engraving, an English contemporary wrote:—

"Since Mr. Warren De La Rue was the spokesman of the firm of Thomas De La Rue & Co., before the Committee of the House of Commons in 1888, a change seems to have come over the views of that firm. The evidence he gave was that nothing could compare with surface printed stamps; they were perfect; and now in the latest productions of that firm, this system has been superseded by the copper plate process. We do not find fault because the firm appears to have modified its views and avails itself of another process by which results more artistic can be obtained than by surface printing, still we would like to see something better in the way of design than the recent productions. The firm was at the top of the tree in its surface printed stamps; why did it allow the designer to make such a wretched debut as is shown in the series for Virgin Islands."

The design too was the subject of much comment. One writer considered it a "caricature of the beautiful design of the earlier issues of the Virgin Islands;" another thought the stamps "rough specimens of engraving, though very neat in design," while still another saw in them a "terrible tendency on the part of a British Colony towards Roman Catholicism!"

In two values of the series defects occurred. On stamp 43 of the left pane of the ½d there is an "F" for an "E" in "Halfpenny," and on stamp 55 of the same pane, the "F" of "Halfpenny" is without the cross bar. Thus a block of six from the lower left corner of the left pane contains both errors. On the 4d there is an "F" for the final "E" of "Pence," on one stamp in the sheet; this is much rarer than the ½d errors. Stanley Gibbons (1920) list the ½d errors at 25s each, and the 4d at 150s. A cover bearing the three errors realised £7.7.0 at a London auction in 1921.

In April, 1901, postal stationery with the impressed stamps in the same design of the postage stamps (i.e. lettered "Postage—Revenue," was issued).

A Wrong Impression!

AN AMERICAN COLLECTOR WHOM I MET RECENTLY WHILE TRAVELLING ON THE CONTINENT AND WHO HAS READ MY ADVERTISMENTS APPEARING REGULARLY IN THIS SPACE, STATED THAT THE IMPRESSION HE HAD GATHERED FROM SAID ANNOUNCEMENTS WAS THAT I SPECIALIZED ALMOST EXCLUSIVELY IN BRITISH AND BRITISH COLONIAL STAMPS.

CIVIL WAR ENVELOPES.

By PAUL M. MULFORD.

The plain envelopes used by Americans today attract no one. But those envelopes employed during the American Civil War, are among the most unique that any government has printed.

The pictured envelope was a wonderful means in arousing the patriotism of the people. They made a popular appeal to those at home. One reads, "If I cannot fight, I can feed those who do" and a woman is seen rolling dough!

Many of the states had their emblems upon the envelope, and New York State was one of the leading. Other illustrations, such as battles, "after the battle," camp scenes and historic buildings are to be observed upon them.

One of these envelopes shows General Lafayette who aided the Americans in the Revolution, a unique way to honor a hero . . . . . but America is known for the unique methods employed in paying tribute to her heroes—whether on envelope, in statue, by speech, upon coins, or with stamps. Last year the Grosvenor Library of Buffalo gave an exhibition of these envelopes. This created much interest.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—In the proceedings of the Wisconsin Historical Society at its sixty-ninth annual meeting at Madison, Wis., October 21, 1921, we read: "Gifts of many philatelic specimens were received and these for the most part again distributed among several hundreds of Madison boys and girls who are postage stamp collectors." The donations of stamps were made through the instrumentality of Professor Charles E. Brown of Wisconsin University who has made scores of stamp collectors in the last ten years Among the special exhibits noticed in the report is one of a collection of postage stamps.

—Mr. Lowell J. Ragatz has sent us from France several postal cards bearing on their reverse figures of individuals whose clothing, etc., are made out of postage stamps nicely pieced together. The French boy, for instance, is costumed in the stamps of his country and the Russian girl in the stamps of hers. We have seen cards of similar kind before but the work on those under notice is very well done. The cards were on sale at a wounded soldiers' relief fair and were the work of convalescents.

—Much to our surprise we find that the editorials in the WEEKLY are read; and we hasten to say that we are obliged to the subscribers who wrote to call attention to the slip in the "eat what we can" observation. Through a slip we misquoted the remark: "We eat what we can and what we can't, we can."

—The Houston Philatelic Society has recently been organized at Houston, Texas, with the following officers:—President, E. E. Morrison; Vice-president, Louis Lenz; Secretary-Treasurer, R. R. Schlunke. Meetings will be held at 7.30 P.M., on the second Friday of each month, in the club room of the local Y. M. C. A.

—From Spokane, Wash., comes a new postal cancellation. It reads:—"Irrigate 2,000,000 Acres, Columbia Basin Project."

BRITISH COLONIAL GREEN AND YELLOW PAPERS.

We are indebted to Messrs. Stanley Gibbons, Ltd., for some concise notes on the Green and Yellow papers of British Colonial stamps, which, in the next edition of their catalogue, will be grouped as follows. It must be remembered that, in dealing with these variations, the backs of the stamps must be studied rather than the front, for it is here that the identifying colours will be seen:—

GREEN PAPER.

(m) The original green paper, in varying shades. This is a kind of portmanteau group, which must carry anything which does not properly fall under the heads which follow. A marked yellow-green back will be noted in some countries.

(n) The "white-backs."

(p) A paper bluish-green on the surface with "pale" or "olive" back. The blue-green of the surface usually draws attention to this variety. The back is undoubtedly green, so cannot be confused with the "white-back," but it is markedly paler than the surface of the stamp and usually has a pronounced olive tinge.

(q) The so-called "emerald-surfaced" paper. Emerald is a misnomer in 99 per cent. of these stamps, but it is now generally accepted, so must pass. It is a vivid green, quite distinct from anything else, and in this class has the olive back of Group (p).

(q) The new paper, "emerald throughout." As last, but with the bright colour at back and front.

Those who wish to study the various shades within these groups will find plenty to interest them, but the above grouping will be quite sufficient for the ordinary collector. When deciding whether to collect these paper varieties in unused or used specimens remember that, when on envelopes, you will not be able to see the back, and in getting them off you will probably sacrifice the identifying colour of the stamp paper. Hence unused are indicated to those who wish to study this interesting Colonial group.

YELLOW PAPER.

(a) The original orange-yellow paper, usually bright in colour. There are plenty of variations in this group, and it may be said to include everything which does not fit into the groups which follow.

(b) The "white-backs," which are familiar to all and cannot be confused with anything else (see Stamp Collecting, Nos. 39 and 95.

(c) A bright lemon paper. This paper must show the greenish tinge of true lemon or the stamps belong to Group (a), in which a slight lemon tendency may sometimes be noted. The gum, as a rule, is plentiful, smooth and shiny, and the watermark shows distinctly, whereas in (a) the gum is often harsh, not too plentiful, and dull. Be careful when allotting stamps printed in green (e.g. 5s., &c.) on yellow paper, as this colour has its effect on the eye and may result in the allotment of an "orange-yellow" paper to the "lemon" group.

(d) An orange-buff paper, sometimes called "experimental." Here there is a distinct brownish tinge as compared with all other groups, and once seen, this paper should cause no trouble. Remember the back of the stamp is the place to look for this colour; or insufficient wiping of engraved plates printed in red on yellow paper may lead you astray.

(e) The new pale yellow paper. This paper, the one now in use for current printings of Colonial stamps, can be distinguished by the creamy appearance of the yellow. There are somewhat similar shades here and there which, by date of issue, can only belong to Group (a), but they should not cause much trouble.

The Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly calls attention to the fact that the colouring matter used for this new yellow paper is completely soluble in water. Specimens immersed in cold water have in quite a short time become "white," showing no trace of the yellow. The matter has already created some concern in the Colonies, where the occurrence of stamp denominations on white paper when they should be on yellow has aroused suspicions of their genuineness.

Some of these varieties must be extremely scarce, but it is not easy to estimate their value, and the only safe rule for the collector is to get everything that is available, as many varieties are rapidly disappearing from the market. The study of these paper variations is complicated by differences due to climatic changes (such as that of the 50c Brunei, from green to blue), by the different effects of different inks (not only on the appearance of the colour of the paper, but sometimes on its actual colour by absorption, or, in the case of stamps printed from engraved plates, insufficient wiping of the plate), and by the absence of chalk-surfacing on the paper used for printing from line-engraved plates.—Stamp Collecting.

—Frank A. Goldsmith has shown us two new advertising cancellations. One used at Livingston, Mont., shows "Yellowstone National Park", and the other used at Pensacola, Fla., bears this inscription, "Mardi Gras, Pensacola, Fla., Feb. 10-12, 1923".

1663-4-5-6-7.

The next discontinuance of subscriptions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1663 to 1667 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

We are satisfied that the system we have inaugurated is the only one under which a newspaper can do business these days, and subscribers must understand that free copies of the WEEKLY will not be sent to those who are in arrears.

1898 PROPRIETARY CANCELLATIONS.

By FRANKLIN S. SMITH.

The total number of these stamps issued, from ⅛c to 5c was 1,707,992,644. They were precancelled in part-sheets by various means. The sheets of 200 being cut along the guide-lines into panes of fifty, gave uniform edges for the printers to set against the pins of the press-platen, resulting in many inverts, the same method that produces those among the precancelled postage stamps. Occasionally the margins with plate-numbers, etc., were left on the panes, several varieties existing with the names and dates upon blank margins. Similar varieties were made by rollers, and even cancelled by hand on typewriters. The earliest cancellations of many firms were made with rubber-faced movable type clamped in hand-stamps and inks of various colors. Many used a hand-stamp with the name of the proprietor inside a circle and a device for changing the date in the center, similar to the common post-mark. Pen cancellations are also frequent.

Mr. Chris West says in his book on "United States Revenue Stamps," A whole book could be written with the cancellations to be found on the proprietaries of this series as its subject. There are hundreds if not thousands of varieties of printed and rubber-stamped varieties alone, and not a few of them are quite out of the ordinary. As they usually have the month and day and year of use and the firms who used the largest quantities changed the dates frequently, a great deal of information concerning when the various shades were in use, and when the hyphen-hole perforation appeared on the different denominations is to be obtained from the study of these cancellations." (The writer has over 30,000 varieties.)

The "Dr. K. & Co. I. R." on the 1c, 2c and 3c postage-stamps of the 1895 issue are the rarest and most valuable, as provisional, non-authorized, and penalized cancellations. The Government did not have stamps ready for distribution, and the Dr. Kilmer Co. having a large stock of "Swamp Root Remedy" ready for the market, and knowing that 1c and 2c postage stamps were being surcharged with a large I. R., bought a stock of stamps and had them cancelled in a similar manner but with the initials and dates as required by the law. The stamps on the packages in the hands of druggists and jobbers had to be replaced because the stamps being purchased from the post-office, that department was receiving the benefit instead of the Internal Revenue, the officially surcharged postage stamps being transferred to that department at Washington. The 1c was cancelled with red ink the same as the Government issue, but the ink was changed to black and the stamps re-cancelled, making a double cancellation in red and black. The last date on the postage stamps was 7-14-'98 and the same form as that on Types II & III was used, dated 7-15-'98 on the ⅝c and Type II in the ¼ and ⅝c 7-19-'98. There may have been intermediate dates but they are as yet unknown. There are 120 known varieties of the provisional I. R. cancellation, of which the writer has 116. There are two types of printed cancellations on the ⅝c, 1¼c and 2½c regular issue, with 130 different dates.

The Antikamnia Co., and J. Ellwood Lee Co. had monogram cancellations that are more or less popular among the collectors of U. S. Revenue. Before they obtained their supply of stamps the AK Co. used two type-set labels of ⅛c and 2½c value, guaranteeing the payment of the tax when stamps could be obtained. There are ten hand-stamped cancellations of the regular issue; four on the ⅝c, five on the 2½c, and one on the 3¾c. Two different fonts of type were used on the monogram cancellations. "Block" letters and figures, and later, smaller shaded letters and figures. In Type I there are four varieties of numeral 1, and there are three positions of the hyphens. Five varieties of ⅝c, one of them being 4 3 1900 Type II inverted, the only copy known. Only two dates of ⅝c. Fourteen dates, sixty-seven varieties of 1¼c. Thirty-eight dates, two hundred and twenty-six varieties of 2½c. Twenty dates, fifty-seven varieties of 3⅜c, making a total of at least three hundred and fifty-five distinct varieties, besides many freaks and oddities.—Precancel Gazette.

NEW 6c POSTAGE STAMPS, 1922 ISSUE.

THIRD ASST. POSTMASTER GENERAL,
WASHINGTON, D. C., November 18, 1922.

Postmasters and other officers and employees of the Postal Service are notified that the department has issued a new 6-cent postage stamp.

A description follows:

The stamp is the same shape and size—seventy-five one-hundredths by eighty-seven one-hundredths inch—as the present series of stamps and is printed in orange ink. The central design is a portrait of James R. Garfield within an oval and is partly inclosed in a panel which is supported on either side by acanthus scrolls. Above the portrait in a curved line appear the words "United States Postage" in white roman letters. On a ribbon below the oval is the name "Garfield," and under this, at the bottom of the stamp, appears the word "Cents." In both lower corners within ovals, with dark backgrounds, is the white numeral "6." The entire stamp is inclosed within a cross-line border, with small triangular ornaments in both upper corners.

The first issue of the new 6-cent stamp will be placed on sale at the post-office at Washington, D. C., November 20, 1922. They will also be placed on sale November 20, 1922, at the philatelic stamp agency, Division of Stamps, Post Office Department, for the benefit of stamp collectors and dealers.

The new 6-cent stamps will not be issued to postmasters until the present supply of the current issue of this denomination is exhausted.

W. IRVING GLOVER,
Third Assistant Postmaster General.

EDITORIAL.

The cable tells us that the Ferrari sale held in Paris this November has yielded another batch of high prices. The vertical pair of Spain, two reales of 1851, brought an equivalent of $8,666 and the "Bermuda one penny issue of 1854, on the entire envelope" which is evidently the Perot provisional of Gibbons' catalogue realized $2,000. In the fifth section of the sale, there were many stamps that sold for from one to fifteen thousand francs each. The buyers paid the French government tax of 17½ per cent., as well. The newspaper editors presented the information with a variety of introductory lines, but as a rule, the headings indicate an absence of awe in the editorial mind, as evidently high prices for postage stamps are no longer a treat to the newspaper editors.

In order that a definite understanding may be had of the circumstances attending the recent marketing of a stock of the "cents" issue of Nova Scotia, we take the following explanation from the November issue of Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Circular. It will be remembered that "about 1896" a stock of the cents value was found and it was handled by a local syndicate that succeeded in placing the best part of the stock, by far. The death not long ago of Major A. A. Bartlett who, we believe, marketed the holdings, caused the remaining owners of the stamps to sell the rest. The publishers of the Monthly Circular acquired the small lot which included all the cents denominations with the exception of the five cents. The buyers say that while the material in their possession revealed shades and varieties to some number, the total number of stamps was so small as to have no effect on catalogue prices which "could not be reduced."

The publicity parade still continues to march on. In a metropolitan sense the subject is being well-covered and we are pleased to see that some of the big city newspapers are using the columns of the WEEKLY for the basis of their stories. The recent Hind article, copied from the WEEKLY by the New York Times was reprinted in the Chicago Daily News of November 15th, with due credit to both publications. Now we want the collectors in the smaller places to get in touch with their local papers and induce the home editors to give stamp collecting consideration in their newspapers. In this connection, we commend the course of Mr. E. J. Newcomer, Yakima, Washington, who writes us as follows: "I recently exhibited a few postage stamps at the Washington State Fair held here Sept. 18-23, inclusive. Thinking that you might be interested in it, I am enclosing a photo of the exhibit which took first prize, there having been no competition. However, I made the display primarily to try to locate other collectors and to stimulate interest in non-collectors or dormant ones. The only person I heard from was a newspaper reporter who wanted an interview. I did the best I could and think he did the subject justice. In this county I know of only one other collector in 30,000 people. He and I are two of about thirty members of the A. P. S. in Washington state. This will indicate that philatelists are few and far between out here." Judging from the first-page, half column article in the Yakima Herald, headed:" Stamp Pursuit Pleasant Hobby. E. J. Newcomer Has Interesting Collection With Special Emphasis on American and Colonial Issues", a seed has been sown that will flower into a few more collectors.

An old-timer writes to tell of having been a victim of a profiteering stamp dealer whom he calls "a philatelic Ponzi", but he almost recants by adding that he "does not blame him." Our informant certainly is a tolerant chap; we remember how years ago, he told with gleeful excitement of having nabbed a 3s., first issue of Sweden that a luckless dealer had put on an approval sheet as the 5o., of the following issue, at the price of the common stamp.

The collector who lugubriously ponders the price offered by the dealer for his old stamps may console himself with the thought that it might have been worse. A chap says that he had a massive piece of old furniture that he asked a "dealer in antiques" to buy. The dealer balked and the owner in desperation offered to give it to him but the man said that the old-fashioned piece was not worth the price of cartage to him.

In order that final correction may be made of the article in the WEEKLY on the Luxemburg exhibition stamps that was published last summer and which was copied in the Metropolitan News, we take the following extracts from a letter received by Mr. Louis J. Bachand-Vertfeuille, secretary of the Metropolitan Association from Joseph Schuler, Eich, Luxemburg, general treasurer of the Union des Timbrophiles of Luxemburg and general treasurer of the organization committee of the exhibition. The stamps described were of a design resembling that of the current five francs showing a view of the Grand Bridge and are advertising labels issued by the Union des Timbrophiles de Luxembourg. The commemorative stamps issued on this occasion by the postal authorities are regulation postage stamps having a validity that is unrestricted. Two values with portrait of Grand Duchess Charlotte have been issued: 25c and 30c, but they may be distinguished from the current issue by the fact that they are imperforate and on watermarked paper. A special obliteration, "Exposition Internationale de Timbre poste, Luxembourg, 27-31 Aout 22," has been "created for the postal office that was situated in the entry of the Exhibition room." Of each of the two values, sixty thousand stamps were issued and on the second day of the Exhibition, the number was completely exhausted. In consequence the prices of these stamps are high; it is approximately five francs for the two values.

An auction sale includes a stamp with "two teeth missing" which is a novel variation for "several perforations gone" but the buyer who gets the stamp almost as a gift should heed the injunction not to look the gift-horse in the mouth.

A rhapsodical writer says that the blank spaces in his album intrigue him more than the ones that are filled. He is a happy soul and all that he needs to do to attain that will-o'-the-wisp, a complete collection, is to buy himself a blank album.

NEW COUNTERFEIT 1919 WAR SAVINGS STAMP.

THIRD ASST. POSTMASTER GENERAL,
WASHINGTON, November 16, 1922.

A new and very dangerous counterfeit of the blue 1919 war savings stamp has come to light, showing few or none of the defects of the counterfeits of this stamp previously described. The color and general appearance are almost perfect.

The existing instructions for retention and examination of 1919 war savings stamps before payment should be vigilantly carried out. Careful examination will enable postmasters and postal employees concerned to detect the new counterfeit from the following defects, which appear in all specimens thus far examined by the department:

1. The top of the G in the word "Savings" in the counterfeit is too thin, almost leaving a gap; in the genuine the line is clear and continuous.

2. A similar defect appears in the final S of "United States," the narrow portions both at the top and bottom of the letter being too thin, almost broken.

3. In the second letter C of the word "Certificate" the upper right-hand part is incomplete in the counterfeit.

4. The upper right-hand portion of the final S in "Savings" is poorly formed in the counterfeit, being distinctly smaller than in the genuine stamp.

W. IRVING GLOVER,
Third Assistant Postmaster General.

THE "BULL'S EYES" OF BRAZIL.

By DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG.

The resuscitation of the famous "Bull's eye" type of the first Brazilian postage stamps in connection with the centenary commemoration issue this month will awaken many memories in the hearts of old-time stamp collectors. Certain stamps exercise a peculiar fascination over the average collector's imagination, and amongst these must certainly be reckoned the striking, but unlovely "Bull's eyes" of Brazil.

Despite their comparative antiquity and undoubted popularity, the history of these familiar stamps is, to this day, but imperfectly known. Many circumstances connected with their origin remain shrouded in mystery. The identity of the engravers and printers responsible for the issue even now is the subject of controversy. In an article published in "Le Timbre-Poste" for March, 1867, the late J. B. Moens stated, on authority of an official of the Brazilian National Mint that "They (the Bull's eye stamps) were engraved in taille-douce by Messrs. Carlos Custodio de Azevedo et Guintino José de Faria, engravers at the Mint, and printed on a machine press by Messrs. Clementino Geraldo de Gonvea and Florentino Rodrigues Prado at the works of the National Treasury."

This statement, which is accepted by many specialists in Brazil (Col. G. F. Napier amongst them), has since been disputed by Mr. Chas. J. Phillips, who, writing in "Gibbons' Stamp Weekly" for April 2nd, 1910, declares that "All officials agree in stating that this issue was printed in the United States, and one gentleman informed Mr. Benest that a friend of his—an officer in the United States Navy—had seen the plates in New York."

No satisfactory evidence has been adduced, however, in support of either theory, and the whole question of the production of the first Brazilian stamps constitutes one of the unsolved mysteries of Philately.

It has long been known to Brazilian specialists that the "Bull's eye" stamps themselves were engraved upon a single copper plate containing examples of all three denominations, but only recently has the exact composition of this plate been definitely established through the studies of Dr. Mario de Sanctis of the Philatelic Society of San Paulo, who avers that there were three original plates, each consisting of 54 impressions, grouped in 9 rows of 6 as follows:—

30	30	30	30	30	30
30	30	30	30	30	30
30	30	30	30	30	30
60	60	60	60	60	60
60	60	60	60	60	60
60	60	60	60	60	60
90	90	90	90	90	90
90	90	90	90	90	90
90	90	90	90	90	90

Subsequently three further plates were laid down, composed of 60 subjects each, in ten rows of 6, one of which was made up entirely of 30 reis stamps and the other two of 60 reis: no new plate for the 90 reis being constructed owing to the small demand for that value. Impressions from these plates vary considerably, as does also the paper from thick, soft yellowish to thin, almost bluish grey. Some of the worn impressions appear to show signs of retouching.

According to the excellent Moens the adoption of adhesive postage stamps by Brazil, the second country in the world to make use of them, was due to the efforts of a Brazilian Consul in Europe, who was impressed by the advantages of the system then newly introduced by the British Post Office.

The issue of adhesive stamps for prepayment of correspondence was authorized by a decree of the Imperial Government dated November 29th, 1842 the intention being that they should bear a portrait of the Emperor, after the British pattern. But the Director of the Mint at Rio de Janerio represented to the Minister that the obliteration of the stamps would show a want of respect for the ruler, with the result that the severely utilitarian "Bull's eye" type was eventually substituted. Mr. Mario de Sanctis states that the first plates were delivered by the engravers on April 29th, 1843, and the order for printing the stamps from them was given to the Printing Department of the Mint on May 19th. The initial issue to the public took place on July 1st of the same year.

The prevailing rates of postage were:—Up to 4 oitavos (½ oz.) 60 reis by land, 120r by sea. Up to 6 oitavos (¾ oz.) 90 reis by land, 180r by sea. Up to 8 oitavos, 120 reis by land, 240r by sea.

The "Bull's eye" stamps after less than twelve months were retired from circulation on June 30th, 1844, in consequence of a discovery made by the Inspector of the Sub-Treasury at Sergipe, who, as early as December, 1843, forwarded to the head office two stamps, which proved that the stamps could easily be detached and used over again if the cancellation was not too heavy. The Postmaster-General thereupon decided to substitute the smaller stamps in the oblong numeral type, which were finally brought into use on July 1st, 1844.—Philatelic Magazine.

I WANT TO BUY
FINE UNITED STATES
ESPECIALLY MINT BLOCKS

Always in the market to purchase anything fine in the way of United States issues, especially fine covers, superb early issues, both mint and used, and especially blocks in fine o. g. condition. If you have a collection or duplicates or even fine single items, I offer cash or good exchange. Of the late issues I especially want blocks of the higher denominations, all of the 1908 series on blue paper above the 2c with the exception of the 13c, the errors in quantities, etc.

From 1890 to date I have a wonderful lot of mint blocks and solicit want lists. Try to pick these up and see how difficult they are to obtain. The late issues of today are the old issues of tomorrow, so start to fill in while prices are in reason. The demand for blocks is increasing daily and this means higher prices.

UNITED STATES.—The new 6c stamp of the 1922 series was placed on sale in Washington per schedule on Monday, November the 20th. It was the hopes of the Department to be able to have this on sale on the anniversary of the birth of the ex-President, but the 19th falling on a Sunday made it necessary to start the sale the following day.

Four plates of 400 subjects each, bearing numbers 14,169 to 14,172 inclusive were used and the stamps themselves are printed on unwatermarked paper and perforated 11. These larger sheets in turn are cut into panes of 100 and distributed in this manner. The portrait is a side face of President Garfield similar to that used on the 6c stamp of the 1895 series. The stamp resembles in make-up the 11c denomination although in this case, the background is somewhat lighter. The 1c, 2c and 4c will be the next to follow.

Through the courtesy of Mr. L. A. Hill, Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, we are able to bring our list of plate numbers up to Nov. 15th. It will be noted that this list includes all of the new series issued to date, in addition to new plates of the 1c, 2c and 4c. In the case of the 2c not only a number of flat plates have been made up from the new die, but several plates for the sidewise coils, two plates for the endwise coils and four booklet plates. Some of these will no doubt make their appearance before the end of November.

ALL THESE SMALL ADS LOOK VER MUCH ALIKE at a glance—but the stock back of them differ widely.

I do not handle White Russia (or R Russia or Blue Russia), as I bet my mone on old U. S. and British North America to 6 years ago, and it turned out ver satisfactory, to me as well as to my cu tomers. As having accumulated a lar stock before the boom, I am able to sho a full line of scarce old issues at attracti prices. I am not knocking new issues, other dealers' game, but I do know th the class of stamps I stocked up with a as staple as sugar. Hoping to hear fro you soon, of anything fine in early U. S. or foreign stamps. We can pay more than most because we cater to a limited clientele who are willing to pay us well for de luxe items. If you have a collection to sell, or only a few fine duplicates of the issues from 1847 to 1869, or an accumulation of the issues of 1870 to 1880, send them to us with your spot cash price and you will receive returns promptly. Just now we particularly want singles, pairs, strips of the 10c stamps of 1851 and 1857, either on or off cover, and will pay more than catalog for those we can use. [H

14013, the last coil plate of the same denomination being a lone plate evidently made up to replace a damaged plate of some pair bearing No. 14104. The last 2c flat plate is No. 14025 whereas the last coil plate of the old series is 14057. It will further be noted that the first 1c plate of the new series is No. 14157 the first 2c plate 14074 and the first 4c 14094.

Mr. Geo. B. Sloane kindly sends for our inspection one of the most unusual late cancellations that has come to my notice. This is the special cancellation mentioned in this Chronicle before, for Guero, Texas, and consists of the usual town name and date within a circle and a flag enclosing a turkey in flight with a small ribbon above reading "Guero, Texas, Nov. 9, 10, 11, 1922." The cancellation was used only these three days during which time we understand the city had a special sale of turkeys which were shipped to various surrounding territories.

We have received a copy of the report for 1922 of the Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and expect to review it in this column for next week.

The new Scott catalogue dealing with United States issues will be on sale by the time these notes reach our readers and from a glance at the proof sheets we are confident that they will arouse great interest and will result in many more collectors specializing in the issues of our country. The catalogue will deal with the general issues only and will have the Special Prints, Coils and Booklets under separate headings. All stamps will be priced used and unused singularly at the same figures given in their Standard catalogue and this will be followed by prices for blocks, pairs in the case of the imperf. issues, shades and varieties. The varieties will be classified first as to perforations; second as to design; and third as to paper. Some of the prices on blocks will surprise many who have not been keeping in touch with this phase of collecting.

GERMANY.—Mr. Richard Lamprecht sends us a copy of the 50mk blue in the type of Scott's A31.

MONACO.—Mr. W. T. Wilson informs us of the appearance of the two more values of the new pictorial set. They are the 30c green, showing a view of the Museum of Oceanography and the 60c olive grey, picturing the Rock of Monaco.

MONTSERRAT.—Mr. R. Roberts sends us the following new issues: ¼d brown, 1½d orange, 2½d ultramarine, 5d lilac and sage green, 2sh on blue, 3sh green and lilac and 4sh black and carmine, all on script watermarked paper. Also 3d on new yellow paper, old watermark, and the 4d on the same new yellow paper with the old watermark.

NORTH WEST PACIFIC ISLANDS.—Mr. R. Roberts advises us of the 1d violet, 2d pale red and 4d ultramarine together with the 2½d Kangaroo type of Australia surcharged in the usual manner for use in these islands. The 1d, 2d and 4d are the Tudor Crown watermark and the 2½d the Narrow Crown.

SIERRA LEONE.—Mr. R. Roberts has shown us the 2d grey, 3d ultramarine and 9d violet and black, in the small type printed on script watermarked paper.

SOLOMON ISLANDS.—The Australian Philatelic Record announce that the 1d script and the 3d, new yellow paper, old CA are due for issue.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.—Mr. R. Roberts sends for chronicle a copy of the $5 on bright emerald paper all through.

A CORRECTION

In the New York Times for November 7th, a column was devoted to Mr. Arthur Hind, as the foremost American Collector and they quoted very extensively from my article, upon the subject which appeared in MEKEEL'S for September 30th. The party who wrote the column evidently received further information on the outside, for he stated that the Post Office Mauritius cover containing the 1d and 2d came from the Worthington collection. This piece of information is not correct, and whoever gave this news to the paper was not aware as to the actual facts. The cover in question was sold to Mr. Hind by Mr. Morganthau and comes from the Argentiere collection. This cover was sold along with unused French from the same collection and the two items changed hands at a price of $85,000.

The copies on covers from the Worthington lot are in the collection of Mr. Lichtenstein where they have remained since the Worthington collection was broken up.

AMERICAN METHODS VS. FRENCH.

Writing in the Matin, Stephane Lauzanne, editor of the paper, draws attention to the American way and the French way, to the detriment of the latter.

"I have before me a letter just arrived from America. It was insufficiently stamped, and I had to pay on it. But on the back is written in plain printed letters the following notice from the American postal administration:

"'Please advise your correspondent that his letter was insufficiently stamped, the rate for foreign countries being 5 cents for 15 grammes.'

"Politeness, intelligence, clearness, are all contained in these words; I am told why I had to pay extra on the letter; what stamp my correspondent should have put on, and what I must tell him so that his letters will be stamped correctly next time.

"This is America all over. It shows us the American method of informing the public clearly, concisely and yet courteously.

"I have also before me a circular just arrived from Paris, with the heading; Post, Telegraph, Telephone. It runs

Please note that stamps of BADEN and especially of Thurn & Taxis, were closely spaced and therefore it is almost impossible to get margins on all sides. We describe our stamps as carefully as possible and would like you to consider both description and price in order to appraise condition. Very Fine means good margins on three sides, design barely touched on fourth, etc. We are willing to submit to you some lots on approval against deposit and the promise of prompt return.

THEODORE CHAMPION
PARIS 13 rue Drouot 13 PARIS

thus:

"'The administration of the P. T. T. has already called attention in the press to the fact that numbers of taxes have daily to be paid for insufficiently stamped letters.

"'These mistakes happen because business people don't know the changes which have taken place in the postal service, especially those concerning business papers, closed registered letters and parcels, the rates for foreign countries, etc.

"'To remedy this state of affairs, the postal administration wishes to inform the public that new lists to hang on the wall have just been published, enlarged size. This list contains the rates at present in use in France and foreign countries. It will be sent on receipt of 2fr 50 to everybody who fills in and signs this circular of subscription and sends it to the administration, Rue Geoffroy-Marie, No. 10, Paris.'

"This time there is no mistake about it, I have before me the grumpy face of the French administration. This administration, when it demands extra payment for insufficiently stamped letters, is not only incapable of telling you plainly why, but it has compiled such a complicated tariff that ordinary arithmetic is of little use. In order to have the list you must pay 2fr 50 for one to hang on the wall.

"To make the customer pay for knowing that he has got to pay is the essence of ingenuity. Only a Latin bureaucrat would be capable of such a thing!

"I leave the public to choose between the two methods. Not only two methods, but two mentalities. In America the public is a master which the administration must look after. In France, the public is the 'paying pig,' which the administration must bleed as much as possible."

HON. ERNEST R. ACKERMAN, M. C.
PLAINFIELD, N. J.

It is with no little pleasure that we present this week a half-tone of our well-known Member of Congress, and a famous philatelist in our friend Mr. Ackerman. It will be followed next week by an article that will be read with more than ordinary interest as it deals with a political campaign in which a stamp exhibit played a no small part.

Mr. Ackerman is the owner of several fine specialized collections, including U. S. A. In 1913 at the New York Exhibition he was awarded a medal for his British Guianas. He has been a frequent exhibitor and has received numerous gold, silver and other medals.

After becoming a power in New Jersey state politics and serving in the Senate with signal ability his services were commandeered by his congressional district and he went to Washington. In the last election many good and able men went down to defeat but Mr. Ackerman was triumphantly reëlected by a tremendous vote.

BRITISH HONDURAS, NEW TYPE, 1922.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

As early as 1919, a rumor was current that the D. L. R. 1912 keyplate design was being abandoned by British Honduras for the Nyasaland type, the "cents" values to be in the conventional size, 18½ x 22½mm., and the "dollar" values in the receipt size, 25 x 30mm. But printings continued to be made from D. L. R. 1912 plate 2, and even plate 3 was used in 1921 for the 1c and $5.

In March, 1922, the Crown Agents announced that for British Honduras "new duties of 5c, 25c and $2 have been printed from the Nyasaland type general keyplate." The stamps were received in March, but withheld from issue until August 1st, 1922, pending lowering of old stock. The 10c, advised by the Crown Agents in June, as being in printing, will be placed on sale December 1st, 1922. The 2c was being printed in September and will be issued early in the new year. Booklets containing 100-2c stamps in the new type will be issued at the same time. All values are in the conventional size.

The D. L. R. 1888, keyplate design (the original of which contained the head of Queen Victoria, but altered as to the sovereign's head in 1901, and again in 1911) was more favorably received than was anticipated, although the design left much to be desired. In favor of the keyplate system of printing is the resulting economy, as De La Rue & Co., Ltd., furnish the keyplates without charge, and the Colonies pay merely for the overprint or duty plates. Thus the expense of making a separate plate for each value is avoided.

In 1908 an improved design was introduced, known as the Nyasaland type, being first used in that year for the stamps of the Nyasaland Protectorate, in which the sovereign's head is on a horizontally lined ground, within a pearled oval. Requiring not an overprint plate but rather a border plate, for completion, it is obvious that these border plates are more expensive than the simple name and duty plates used for the D. L. R. 1888 and D. L. R. 1912 keyplates. At the same time, a keyplate was made for a stamp in the receipt size, 25 x 30mm., (intended for high values), in the design of which the pearled oval with the King's head is surmounted by a crown, all being superimposed on a shield with garlands of fruit and flowers.

In its original state, with the head of King Edward VII, the receipt size plate was used by none of the British Colonies in the Western Hemisphere, and the conventional size plate only by Jamaica, for the 2d gray, issued on February 16, 1911. In the following year when the new keyplate, with the head of King George V substituted, became available, this design was adopted by Jamaica. and subsequently used for all values from 1d through 5s, and by St. Lucia for the 4d. The receipt size keyplate was made use of by Bermuda for the 2s6d, 5s, 10s and £1 issued March 30, 1918, and the 2s and 4s issued June 19, 1920.

The keyplate used for printing these stamps consists of two 120 set plates, which when clamped together produce sheets of 240 stamps, four panes of 60, with plate 1 over the 2nd and 5th stamps of the first horizontal row of the upper left and upper right panes, respectively, and under the corresponding stamps of the lower row of the lower left and lower right panes. The lower margin of the two upper panes is devoid of plate number marking, and similarly, the upper margin of the two lower panes. When 120 stamp sheets are required. either sheets of 240 stamps are cut in halves, or the plates are unclamped, and the upper or lower 120 set used.

In the design of the border plate for the British Honduras stamps, the value is in colorless figures and letters in tablets in the upper corners, with the Imperial Crown between. At the bottom "BRITISH HONDURAS", in colorless caps, with "POSTAGE" and "REVENUE" at the sides, in small colored caps, conform to the oval. The marginal line, which is part of the border plate, is broken at each line of perforation, which is comb 14.

All values are in sheets of 120, from the lower 120 set, with plate number 1 in the lower margin only.

The watermark is multiple Crown and script CA except for the 25c, which is on emerald green paper, with multiple Crown CA watermark. Green paper with the script watermark has not yet been announced by the Crown Agents as in manufacture. The 5c is on ordinary paper, and the higher values on paper with chalk surfacing.

It is a matter of much regret that the King's head and Arms type, of the 2c Peace and 4c modified Peace stamps of 1921-22, was not used for the new series, as the master die is available, and the only change necessary would have been in the value tablets. Being printed from line engraved plates, the series would have presented a much better appearance than the typographed stamps in the Nyasaland type. The tendency at present in most British territories is to have a distinctive design, emphasizing as it does, the importance of the Colony.

1922. Nyasaland type, King George V. Postage & Revenue. Watermarked

A CABINET—WHAT KIND?

By E. TUDOR GROSS.

In a recent number of your paper I noticed an article wherein a suggestion was made that dealers should carry some sort of cabinet which would make it possible for a collector to have his stamps and the various paraphernalia always within reach.

There is such a piece of furniture that can be secured, and from my own experience, I find that it is not only a great convenience, but adds materially to the pleasure of stamp collecting. I refer to the old-fashioned "secretary," so-called, used in old New England houses fifty to one hundred years ago. This consists of two sections,—the upper portion being similar to an enclosed bookcase, with two or three small drawers at the base. Below this section is what would correspond to a desk, with a sliding leaf covered with green baize, which makes a good surface for resting stamp albums, or for correspondence. Under this shelf are three large drawers which will contain a large number of albums, stock books, covers, etc. In the upper section can be kept catalogs, stamp periodicals and other literature, and in the small drawers the various articles, such as hinges, approval cards, loose stamps, etc.

These secretaries can be purchased of antique dealers or second-hand furniture dealers, and are not necessarily expensive, especially if the purchaser is not too particular about the age of the article. In my own case, I secured a very attractive mahogany secretary of the Empire Period. It is about ninety years old, and only cost $52. after having been put in first-class condition. This secretary makes an attractive piece of furniture for the home, and at the same time adds a great deal of pleasure from its great convenience. Whenever I get anything that has to do with my hobby it is put inside of this secretary. The result is things are never mislaid, and I do not have to fear that something valuable has been thrown into the waste basket through mistake.

Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. NEW 15c, 25c AND 50c POSTAGE STAMPS, SERIES OF 1922.

THIRD ASST. POSTMASTER GENERAL,
WASHINGTON, Nov. 4, 1922.

Postmasters and other officers and employees of the Postal Service are notified that the department is prepared to issue a new 15-cent, 25-cent, and 50-cent postage stamp. These stamps are of the new series which will replace the present issue of ordinary stamps known as the series of "1912." A description follows:

The 15-cent stamp is the same shape and size (0.75 by 0.87 inch) as the present series of stamps, and is printed in dark gray ink. The central design is the Statue of Liberty with a view of New York Harbor in the background, partly inclosed in a spread horseshoe panel supported at the base by acanthus scrolls. Within the panel and above the design appear the words "United States Postage" in white roman letters. On a ribbon below the design is the word "Liberty" and under this, at the bottom of the stamp, in a white-edged panel, appears the word "Cents." In both lower corners within circles with dark backgrounds are the white numerals "15." The entire stamp is inclosed within a single white line border, with small panels supported by acanthus scrolls in both upper corners.

The 25-cent stamp is a new denomination added to the 1922 series. It is the same size as the other denominations but is a horizontal rectangle, and is printed in green ink. The central design is a view of Niagara Falls, taken from Goat Island looking toward the American shore. This design is within a semicircle surrounded by a panel which is supported on either side by acanthus scrolls. Within this panel and above the design appear the words "United States Postage" in white roman letters. On a ribbon below the design is the word "Niagara" and under this, at the bottom of the stamp, in a white-edged panel, appears the word "Cents." In both lower corners within circles with dark backgrounds are the white numerals "25." The entire stamp is inclosed within a single white line border with triangular white line ornaments in both upper corners.

The 50-cent stamp is the same shape, a horizontal rectangle, and size (0.75 by 0.87 inch) as the 25-cent stamp in the new series, and is printed in lavender ink. The central design is a view of the Arlington Amphitheater with the tomb of the unknown dead in the foreground. The frame and border design is the same as the 25-cent stamp except that the numerals "50" appear in the circles in both lower corners, and the words "Arlington Amphitheater" appear on the ribbon below the design.

The first issue of these new stamps will be placed on sale at the post-office at Washington, D. C., November 11, 1922, Armistice Day. They will also be placed on sale November 11, 1922, at the Philatelic Stamp Agency, Division of Stamps, Post Office Department, for the benefit of stamp collectors and dealers.

The new 15-cent and 50-cent stamps will not be issued to postmasters until the present supply of the current issue of these denominations is exhausted. As the present supply now available of the new 25-cent stamp is limited, postmasters will refrain from drawing requisitions for this denomination until further advised.

W. IRVING GLOVER,
Third Assistant Postmaster General.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited, as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—We are informed of the death of Charles E. H. Webster, 260 North Main St., Waterbury, Conn. The source of our information is J. C. Matthews, the Olympia, Wash., dealer, and we have no particulars to accompany this brief statement.

—If any of our subscribers are so inclined we suggest that some Christmas cheer of a philatelic nature be sent to Miss Marion C. Deane, 2902 N. Union St., Tacoma, Wash. Miss Deane is a shut-in.

—The December number of the Sudden Service Surcle has been received. It is the house organ of the Fennell Stamp Co., St. Louis, Mo. The number before us is very interesting, containing as it does "As Is" by Edwin B. Hill, special notes by Nodrog and several editorials. The subscription price is 35c per year and a sample copy can no doubt be obtained upon request.

—Evidently several types of tuberculosis postal cancellations will be used during the Christmas holidays. A. W. Whitten of Chicago sends us a second type, showing the inscription in a fanciful arrangement. It is from Pittsburgh, Pa.

—Any of our subscribers interested in meter markings or slogan cancellations should regularly receive the Collector's Digest, published by A. H. Pike, Station G, Buffalo, N. Y. Nos. 10 and 11 are both obtainable at 25c each. It is needless to say that the money received by Mr Pike does not begin to finance the big undertaking that is represented in this publication. Mr. Pike has contributed to the WEEKLY several articles dealing with these interesting philatelic sidelines and it is undoubtedly true that his work is of inestimable value.

—A novel advertising cancellation has been put into use by the London, England, office. It consists of the inscription "British Empire Exhibition 1924." In the center of the design is a lion with horizontal wavy lines on either side.

—"In my ad of the 18th inst., Egypt 10m Blue Postage Due No. 122 is offered at $3.00. This should have been $2.00. I don't know whether it was my error or your printer's, but at any rate, I would appreciate a correction."—MAXWELL KRAUSE. This is very gladly given. (Ed.).

—We have received Volume 1, Number 1, of the Western Collector, published from 174 Hargrave St., Winnipeg, Man. It is a magazine of sixteen pages published monthly, and the subscription price is 50c per year. A sample copy can no doubt be had on application.

—Frank A. Goldsmith has shown us three new cancellations. One is from Bozeman, Mont., and bears the inscription "Gateway Yellowstone National Park." Another is from Tampa, Fla., with "South Florida Fair, Tampa, Feb. 1-10, 1923". The third cancellation is the familiar winged air-mail marking in purple on a letter sent from Elko, Nev., to Beverly, Mass.

—J. C. W.—A philatelic annual such as you describe would doubtless have a good circulation, but it would not be a money-making proposition We should have produced such a book ere this, were it not for the fact that London keeps us very well supplied in this direction.

—Geo. W. Tuomey calls our attention to an error in an article by E. G. Young, published Sept. 9, entitled, "Comment from China." Mr. Twomey affirms that there is an Italian post-office in Tientsin located in the building adjoining the headquarters of the Italian concession police force. Our correspondent adds that a similar office may be found in Peking in the building occupied by the Italian legislation.

—Dr. Homer Collins suggests that the WEEKLY publish some articles on the provisionally surcharged narcotic stamps and the provisional playing cards stamps of recent issues. Are any of our readers interested enough to submit such articles?

—F. J. DeWitt sends us a new 12c metered mail stamp. It bears a Chicago marking and was used by the University of Chicago in the mailing of football tickets. The date is Nov. 11, and the permit number 2,530. Color carmine. We are also indebted to S. Hyman for submitting a specimen.

—A. A. Wasserscheid informs us that he has seen a new advertising cancellation coming from Richmond, Va., which reads as follows:—"Christmas Seals Stamp Out Tuberculosis."

EDMOND STAMP CO., McLoud, Okla.

WHAT STAMPS CAN TEACH.

PART II.

By L. H. BRIGHAM.

Having discussed the "physical" parts of a postage stamp, we now come to the inanimate or representative side of the subject. Contrary to what might be considered the case, this is really the most interesting and fascinating part of collecting.

Every one knows what a cent, a nickel, a dime, a quarter, a half, and a dollar are, and what are their relative values one to the other.

The war also did much to fix the relative value, in our money, of the English shilling, the French franc, the German mark, the Russian ruble, the Austrian krone, and the Italian lira. How many of us, however, can tell offhand what is the equivalent value in our money of the following foreign coins and from what country they originate: The anna, pie, sucre, peso, kran, ore, gersh, para, shai, piaster, escudo, and a score of others?

Under the postal agreements which the various nations have with one another the rates of postage between any two countries are the same. For example: The postage on an unregistered letter to Sweden is 5 cents at the present time; the postage on the same letter from Sweden to the United States is 20 ore. This tells us that 20 ore in Swedish currency is equivalent to 5 cents in our money. We can therefore in a like manner soon learn the equivalent values of all of these coins by noticing the value of the foreign stamps on a letter and comparing it with the rate of postage from this country to any other one.

CANCELLATIONS

From these one learns the principal business cities of the countries of the world; the chief routes of travel; the length of time required to travel from place to place, and a vast storehouse of other information. "Via Suez Canal," "via Constantinople," "via Steamship Aeolus," "via Cunard Line," "via 20th Century Limited," "via Aërial Mail Service," etc., are all marks of routing and dispatch, commonly appearing on envelopes which fall into the hands of the average collector. Do not these stampings arouse the imagination and make one feel as though he were somewhat better acquainted with travel and strange lands?

We see the words "Recommande," "Certificada," "Aangeteckend," etc., heavily stamped typed, or written upon a great many letters, all of which bear a printed, numbered, gummed label or rubber-stamped number. These mysterious words mean "Registered" in French, Spanish, and Dutch respectively. Here is a letter postmarked "Soerabaija, 28-11-21.8-9V" on the face of the envelope. The reverse side shows two other cancellations: "New York, N. Y. Reg'y Div. 1-11-1922" and "Southbridge, Mass., Registered, Jan. 12, 1922." These cancellations do not say much, but a short study of them tells us the following: Letter mailed in Soerabaija (principal port), island of Java, Dutch East Indies, on the 28th of November, 1921, at 9 A.M. The letter reached New York on January 11, 1922, and "cleared" through the foreign registry division of that city. It was remailed from New York to Southbridge, Mass., on the same day and was received in Southbridge on the day following, as indicated by the third and last postmark. We learn from these cancellations that it takes a letter somewhere in the vicinity of forty-four days to come from the Dutch East Indies to America, which means a journey nearly around the entire globe. The actual traveling time is, of course, entirely dependent upon the route of travel and the weather conditions which the steamships have to contend with.

It is now an easy matter to trace out the probable route of travel of the steamer which brought this letter by referring to almost any commercial map of the world. These show the steamship routes from point to point across the ocean by heavily marked connecting lines. In fact, by closely following up these "signs" shown on the envelopes from foreign countries, one soon has a very comprehensive knowledge of just where s place or that place is; how you get it; which is the best and most direct y; how long it takes; the number of nges necessary to make, etc. Isn't s information valuable? Doesn't it e you a fund of knowledge which allows one to feel that he has visited all of these places in imagination if not in reality, and all of this without even going outside of his own home,

Together with this knowledge we tie up that which comes to us in the form of pictures on the stamps: pictures of the natives; past and present kings, queens, and other rulers; tropical fruits, trees, and other vegetation; animals, beasts of burden, methods of transportation; famous world heroes and events, pictured by monuments, busts, and gatherings; public buildings, panoramic views of Old World cities; modes of dress; industries, engineering feats; geographic subjects, such as rivers, waterfalls, lakes, mountains, volcanoes, etc.

Indeed, by closely studying the stamps of a great many of our foreign brothers, one can obtain sufficient information and authentic material to write a very true and interesting description of the country, its people, geographic location, climate, industries, modes of living, places and things of interest, principal products of export. All of this is based entirely upon information we gleaned from these bits of colored paper called postage stamps.

Stamps, therefore, can teach us history, geography, economics, international politics, and a number of other subjects.

We would be obliged to read a great many books to obtain all of the information that these simple messengers of the world's postal systems give us, and knowledge obtained this way is much more "palatable" than it is when one is obliged to learn from the school geography against one's will.—The Haversack.

SAN FRANCISCO SOCIETY.

The San Francisco Stamp Society opened its new Club Room in the "Call" building on Nov. 6th. There was quite a large gathering of the members and we had two visitors, one from New Zealand and one from Philippine Islands. The society has 175 members. The secretary is Donald Piercy, 1125 Filmore Street. At this meeting we had an exhibit of U. S. Stamps, Envelopes and M. & M. Stamps. Each month there will be an exhibit of different countries. Meetings are held on the 1st Monday of each month, but members can get in the Club Room at anytime, as all are supplied with a key.

THE NOVEMBER FERRARI SALE.

Pair of Old Spanish Issue Brought $8,500 in Paris.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—One hundred and thirty thousand francs, about $8,500 at present exchange, was realized for a vertical pair of Spanish 2-real stamps of the issue of 1851, in the sale today of the fifth section of the stamp collection of the late Count Ferrari, this being the highwater mark of the opening day of the auction. The Bermuda one-penny issue of 1854, on the entire envelope, came next, bringing 30,000 francs, about $2,000, while many other rare specimens sold at from $60 to $1,000.

The purchasers paid in addition a government tax of 17½ per cent.

The Bermuda stamp of 1851 is not recognized as official by United States collectors, but is held to be a private or "local" issue. In France and England it is given official status. Bermuda did not issue stamps regularly until 1865.

EDITORIAL.

"Why do you encourage the small dealer?" is the burden of several criticisms that have come to us in the course of the dying year, just as though we were making a grievous mistake by doing so. Just a little vision is needed, lads, and it all works out well. It is not seemly to pretend that the commercial side of philately is sacrosanct or a monopolistic business around which a sacred circle is thrown; and it is folly to try to restrict it to an "as is" basis. The small dealer has always existed in proportion to the whole number of collectors, as one may show; and he will persist in being, we are glad to say. The law of progression means that it is necessary to fill the vacancies of the old dealers as they give way. The small dealer gets his training by actual dealing and it is our policy to advise him how best to equip himself for participation in the larger business that comes with time to those who prove fit. The incompetents are soon lost in the competitive struggle. The small dealer cannot be legislated out of existence and so it is indicated that he be started under conditions as favorable as possible to bring out his ability. The best dealers are made by the best collectors, in that a stamp sense gained through collecting and partly innate is a decided asset; and the successful small dealer if he continues in the business becomes a part of the fabric of commercial philately, thereby strengthening it and in some degree, all philately. Our interest in the proposition is that if the small dealers are successful, they will use advertising space in the papers but we think that if this advantage did not accrue, we should have a word of cheer for the chap who thinks he has a "call" as a stamp merchant. We could name a few of our leading dealers who but a short time ago, it seems, were small dealers who sought our advice in starting out on what proved to be their means of livelihood.

The New Republic knows how to write an advertisement. In soliciting subscriptions, a task that, alas, even the most high-minded array of editorial talent cannot wish away, the business end of this "journal of opinion," makes a point in luring the lingering lucre from the reluctant by saying: "Are you a stamp and coin collector? There are seventeen journals which will keep you fully advised of the big and important things that are being done in the stamp and coin collecting world. You simply can't afford to be without one of these,—if you are a stamp collector." That is the way to ring out the bells. The New Republic is a liberal journal, if critical, and we wish this publication, which "is wholly devoted to the whole basis of American life," many happy returns from its advertisement.

From Mr. W. F. Goerner, Edgewood, Rhode Island, we have received a copy of the American Almanac and Repository of Useful Knowledge for the Year 1852," and we find in the work an unusually full account of postal affairs, including an abstract of the law of 1851 that called forth our first three-cent stamps. We quote: "To facilitate prepayment of postages, the Postmaster General shall provide deputy postmasters with three-cent stamps and such others as he may deem expedient." At that time, in the postage tables was the entry: "For a letter delivered by a carrier, there is an additional charge of not exceeding one or two cents." The extension of the postal service to California and Oregon just after the gold discovery in 1849, necessitated the appointment of letter-carriers directly by the postmaster general himself and by the special agents on the ground. The special agents were empowered to contract with letter-carriers to carry mail to remote districts at a compensation that was supposed to be equitable, according to the distance and difficulty of the delivery. It was under this phase that the express companies operated successfully and hence, the official significance of the western frank that was employed by many of the more pretentious carrying agents or companies.

We have been told that stamp collectors are rather too busy in writing the department at Washington about new and recent stamp issues and we fear that many of the inquiries are needless or perfunctory. However, it is well for collectors to remember that the post-office department disseminates as much as possible, information about its affairs, including new stamp issues, through bulletins and other mediums and that the time to answer questions that already have been answered in print is not given with any enthusiasm. In this connection, we were impressed by the following words from Mr. A. H. Pike of Buffalo, that came some time ago: "In gathering data from individuals and business concerns as well as government and postal officials, I find that they have been bothered for years by collectors. As one expressed it, 'Day after day, we get letters from different individuals but asking the same questions until we have reached the point where we cannot take the time to answer this correspondence.' During the past few years, I have had willed to me considerable material from several collectors. Among these effects were any number of letters from business men and firms answering questions of the most simple kind. This condition is not helping the opinion that business men may form of the stamp collector. Would it not be possible to have competent men elected or appointed on several important phases of philately and look to them to secure this information rather than hundreds going after it personally. I should be willing to take over anything connected with postal markings. I think that this is worth bringing out in the WEEKLY."

In one of the "quizzes" syndicated to the large newspapers of the country, it was asked and answered: "How many engravers does it take to produce a postage stamp? In this country, two as a rule but sometimes three. One does framework; central view of portrait is done by another, and lettering is sometimes done by a third artist. Each one is a specialist in his particular branch of work."

The "diamond jubliee"—special double number of the Philatelic Journal of Great Britain enterprisingly gives a fac-simile reproduction of the first page of the Monthly Advertiser of December 15, 1862, the first journal devoted exclusively to philately. The leading article by Fred. Booty, is headed, "The Collection of Postage Stamps," and the modest beginnings of collecting are pictured, in a sense, in the following words: "It is curious to see how much public opinion has been modified lately upon the subject of stamp collecting. Some two or three years ago, when collectors were to be numbered by units, (they are now numbered by hundreds) they were looked upon as hopelessly but harmlessly insane on the subject; and their friends and acquaintances were willing to gratify their mania."

GREAT BARRIER ISLAND.

Fifty-six miles north-east from Auckland lies the Great Barrier Island, so named by Captain Cook, by reason of it forming a barrier, for the Hauraki Gulf, against the force of the Pacific Ocean.

The interest of Great Barrier Island to philatelists lies in the fact that after the wreck of the "Wairarapa" it was felt that means of communication should be established between the island and the mainland, and late in 1896 an enterprising syndicate instituted a pigeon post.

For the first two years of operation the postage was collected in cash, but in 1898 a rival company, "The Original Great Barrier Pigeongram Service" was responsible for the issue of stamps. Although four distinct stamps were issued they were all similar in type, being oblong in shape and with a pigeon, with a letter in its beak, as the central feature.

Subsequently, under the ægis of the earlier company, "The Great Barrier Pigeon Agency," two triangular stamps of the value of 6d and 1/- were issued and certainly franked messages.

Although, owing to the private nature of the posts and the local scope of employment, these labels are not accorded catalogue rank, they are undoubtedly full of interest, more especially to collectors of air post stamps.—Stamp Collecting.

IRISH FREE STATE VARIETIES.

By MAXWELL KRAUSE.

Probably no issue of stamps in recent years is of more interest to the great majority of stamp collectors than the issue surcharged on the stamps of Great Britain for the Irish Free State. However, I have found that very many of my customers are at a loss to properly classify the major varieties of these stamps and Scott's 1923 catalogue, instead of helping them, serves to further confuse them.

Scott's notes, on page 624, that "The date '1922' is in thick figures followed by a period on the 1½d, 2d, 6d, and 1sh." Then, in the Addenda, the catalogue proceeds to also list the ½d, 1d, 3d, 5d, 9d and 10d with 1922 in thick figures followed by a period.

The easiest way to correct this haziness of the catalogue and to enable the collector to properly classify his Irish surcharges, is to give a list of the surcharges issued.

The original issue was as follows:

½d, 1d, 1½d, 2d, 2½d, 3d, 4d, 5d, 6d, 9d, 10d, 1sh, 2sh6d, 5sh and 10sh. Surcharge in black on all values.

Of this issue beside small differences in the Gaelic surcharge, the year "1922" is in two different types as follows viz.:—

(1) Thin figures, "9" with long tail, and without period, overprinted by Dollard Printing House, Ltd.; ½d, 1d, 2½d, 3d, 4d, 5d, 9d and 10d, 2sh6d, 5sh and 10sh.

(2) Thick figures, block type, period after "1922," overprinted by A. Thom & Co., Ltd.; 1½d, 2d, 6d and 1sh.

In April the 2½d, 4d and 9d because of their dark colors, were overprinted in red by Dollard, the overprint having the same characters as Type 1 described above.

In July the ½d, 1d, 1½d and 2d were issued in coils of varying sizes by Messrs. Harrison. This overprint was very similar to Type 2, with "1922" in block letters and followed by a period. The Gaelic characters, however, were slightly larger than in the Thom overprint and can be distinguished by comparison. In addition, very many of the coil stamps have one straight edge, either at side or bottom, some of the coils being issued lengthwise and some sideways.

Following these printings, Thom & Co., began to surcharge values previously overprinted by Dollard, and so far I have received the following with the typical Thom overprint, Type 2; 3d, 5d and 10d wtih black surcharge and 2½d, 4d and 9d with red surcharge.

We have then three different overprintings as described above. There are, first, the original issue surcharged in black, 11 varieties overprinted by Dollard and four by Thom, followed by the surcharge on the 2½d, 4d and 9d being changed to red but still overprinted by Dollard. There followed four values issued in rolls or coils, overprinted by Harrison, with an overprint similar to that of Thom's but differing in the sizes of the Gaelic characters. Since then six varieties formerly overprinted by Dollard have been overprinted by Thom, with the block type date and period, and no doubt the other five values formerly surcharged by Dollard will appear with the Thom overprint.

Trusting this explanation will serve to set at right your readers, the vast majority of whom are, I am sure, much interested in properly arranging these first postal emissions of Ireland.

I WANT TO BUY
FINE UNITED STATES
ESPECIALLY MINT BLOCKS

Always in the market to purchase anything fine in the way of United States issues. especially fine covers, superb early issues, both mint and used, and especially blocks in fine o. g. condition. If you have a collection or duplicates or even fine single items, I offer cash or good exchange. Of the late issues I especially want blocks of the higher denominations, all of the 1908 series on blue paper above the 2c with the exception of the 13c, the errors in quantities, etc.

From 1890 to date I have a wonderful lot of mint blocks and solicit want lists. Try to pick these up and see how difficult they are to obtain. The late issues of today are the old issues of tomorrow, so start to fill in while prices are in reason. The demand for blocks is increasing daily and this means higher prices.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—In my notes of last week, I chronicled the new 6c in orange with portrait of Garfield, and gave a list of the four plate numbers assigned to this denomination. It was found that the four plates could not be completed in time to get this stamp out on the anniversary of the birth of the ex-President, so that only one plate, No. 14,169, was finished and put to press, consequently the stamps placed on sale in Washington on the first day, November 20th, were from this plate.

The first sheet printed was autographed by the Postmaster General, Dr. Hubert Work, who wrote his title after his autograph and dated it the first day. We have not been informed as to details, but we believe stamps from this sheet were presented to members of the Garfield family. While in Washington I was informed that this stamp would be placed on sale at the birthplace f Garfield, which the encyclopedia informed me was Orange, Ohio. It had been my impression that his home was in Hiram, and that he was born in this town, consequently, I sent letters to postmasters in both cities regarding the subject. The Orange letter was returned from Cleveland, there being no such post-office, and I have not as yet heard from Hiram. It is therefore my impression that the stamps which were only printed in small quantities were completed at such a late date that it was impossible to place them on sale outside of Washington.

Several people have written to inquire as to why the stamp with the Roosevelt portrait is without the background, whereas the others have it. It may be of interest to our readers to be advised that the Roosevelt portrait is one of the most difficult to engrave that the Bureau has ever been called upon to place upon a stamp. The first die had the background and this not only failed to please the proper officials, but did not please Colonel Roosevelt and Mrs. Longworth, children of the late President. As a result, it was necessary to make several changes before the final die was approved. If the Department finds that they have trouble with the heavy background on the other denominations it would not be surprising to see the background removed. They are making every endeavor to present as fine a series as we have ever had, and the best skill at the command of the Bureau has been brought into play to accomplish this purpose. It seems to be the consensus of opinion that the new series is most satisfactory.

In my notes of a few weeks back, remarks were made regarding the first plate from the rotary press showing the plate number in the corners. We now have an official communication from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing stating that plate No. 13,744 was the very first plate to be so marked.

Those interested in early covers often find most unusual letters within the letter sheet to which the stamps are attached. I have been getting together covers with Washington postmarks for some little time, and recently obtained one within a circle, reading "Washn City — Mar 4" in red, the "n" in Washington being small and over a period. The date being Inauguration Day attracted my attention, and was surprised on opening the cover to find that the letter was dated 1829, and was in regard to Andrew Jackson's first inauguration. The letter is of more than usual interest and as it is short, I am reproducing it here:

"The battle's lost and won, but the hurley burley is not done—the inauguration is over and I have had the honor of seeing the ceremonies, but the greatest sight has been the throngs of people of all sorts and colours brought together from the four corners of the earth.

At the President's house (after the ceremonies at the Capitol) the people crowded to pay their respect to their new made chief, and I saw richly dressed ladies of the foreign ministers in full court dress, and Irish labourers with unshorn visages and muddy clothes and high and low and rich and poor, splendid and ragged, all mixing and crowding and squeezing and pushing. For a further description I will refer you to the newspaper * * * * * G. W. S. arrived just as the President was walking to the Capitol.".

The communication is addressed to Philadelphia and is signed by Charles Fletcher who is writing to his brother Thomas.

The Scott Stamp and Coin Co., have shown me a metered mail permit used in New York, of a 12c denomination bearing meter No. 1,444, permit No. 14. The impression is used on registered mail sent out by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

We wish to thank Mr. A. H. Robertson for submitting for our inspection a cover mailed from a small Virginian town, wherein two 5c green parcel post postage due stamps were used to pay the registration fee.

BERMUDA.—Mr. R. Roberts sends a copy of the ½d green, ship type, on script watermarked paper.

CAPE VERDE.—The following list of new colours, for which we have to thank Messrs. Whitfield King & Co., will be of service to readers interested in Portuguese Colonials:—1c pale green, 3c orange, 4c pink, 4½c grey, 5c blue, 6c lilac, 7c ultramarine, 12c blue-green, 15c claret, 30c green, 40c turquoise, 60c deep blue, 80c rose, 1 escudo pink, 2 escudos purple.—Stamp Collecting.

DANZIG.—The Economist Stamp Co. advise us of the appearance of the 6m red in the current type (Crown and Crosses) and the 20m brown in the same type. The 6m has also been surcharged "D M" in black for Official use.

HAVE A GOOD LAUGH, FELLOWS

Here is a reply to a consignment I sent to an applicant for some of my best old U. S.—

"I am not going to take any of these just now, prices are too high on early U. S. I look for a big slump in these stamps soon."

Can you beat it? I am looking for some all the time cheap enough to handle, with poor success. I mean 10c 1847, 5c 1851, 5c buff 1861, 24c, 90c 1868, 90c 1869 and the like. I have them, but am lowering my stock all the time in these fine old specimens, which makes me nervous about the future.

If it is Buy or Sell, anything in old U. S., I am your man.

EGYPT.—Mr. Kenneth Dalgleish writes with reference to "The Egyptian Kingdom" provisionals:—

"I notice the date in Arabic numerals is 1922 (19rr). Now all Mohammedans date their years from "the Flight" (El-Hegira), of Mohammed from Mecca to El-Medeeneh A. D. 622, and 1922 reads "1341" in Arabic.

of anything fine in early U. S. or foreign stamps. We can pay more than most because we cater to a limited clientele who are willing to pay us well for de luxe items. If you have a collection to sell, or only a few fine duplicates of the issues from 1847 to 1869, or an accumulation of the issues of 1870 to 1880, send them to us with your spot cash price and you will receive returns promptly. Just now we particularly want singles, pairs, strips of the 10c stamps of 1851 and 1857, either on or off cover, and will pay more than catalog for those we can use. [H

J. O MOORE, INC. RHEIMS, N. Y.

"The first, fourth, and seventh years of the flight were of thirteen lunar months each. I cannot help thinking this overprint is a mistake, probably through the work being let to a Greek contractor, for it seems hardly possible that Mohammedans would date by the Christian year."—Stamp Collecting.

GERMAN EAST AFRICA.—Mr. Henry Hooreman advises that the Occupation stamps issued under Belgian Occupation have been further surcharged as follows: 50c, No. 106, surcharged "5c" at each side in black; 5c green, No. 101, at the top "10c" in red; 40c, No. 105, in the center "25c" in red; 10c, No. 102, "30c" at the top in black; and 25c, No. 104, in the centre "50c" in red.

HYDERABAD.—This country has issued its stamps in two types only since 1869. Simple and commonplace as the types are, these labels have attracted the attention of a fair number of collectors. Recently some important discoveries have been made, such as the coloured line missing and the character or figure 5 omitted. The Philatelic Journal of India now reports the discovery of the ¼a blue and ½a vermilion of 1905 in an imperforate condition.—Stamp Collecting.

ITALY (Offices in Turkey).—Mr. Pollitz of the Frank P. Brown Co., has advised us that the current 40c stamp of Italy has been overprinted "3¾ piastres" in black.

KEDAH.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the 5c orange with script watermarked paper.

NAURU.—Messrs. J. H. Smyth, Ltd., inform us that they recently had a letter from their Mauru correspondent to the effect that the projected new stamps for this phosphate island would not reach the territory until January next. It was intended to have them printed in Australia, the chief feature of the design being a palm tree, but a hitch occurred and the stamps are now being printed in England in the design of a ship.—Stamp Collecting.

PALESTINE.—We have received from Mr. R. Roberts the following values surcharged trilingual block type, script watermark: 1m brown, 2m yellow, 3m blue, 4m rose, 5m deep orange, 6m green, 7m pale brown, 8m red, 13m ultra, 1p grey, 2p olive, 5p purple, 9p ochre, 10p blue and 20p violet.

PERLIS.—The rumor has been revived that this Malay State is about to have its own postage stamps, but no official confirmation is forthcoming.—Stamp Collecting.

PORTUGAL.—Messrs. Whitfield King & Co. send us two of the new Parcel Post adhesives foreshadowed two months ago, viz.:—Parcel Post Type of 1921, perf, 12—5 escudos slate and 10 escudos brown. —Stamp Collecting.

ROUMANIA.—A further indictment of the speculators in the Coronation stamps is made in the following communication which we have received from Mr. M. A. R. Brunner, of Dresden. It will be observed that some of the details in our correspondent's letter differ from those given in our chronicle of the actual stamps:—

"In commemoration of the crowning of the King and Queen of Roumania special stamps were printed, but only 100,000 of each set. They shall circulate only fourteen days, and are consequently simply hunted by philatelists. To render them especially attractive to collectors they were not printed in Roumania, but in Munich. A curiosity is the fact that these stamps show even the Bavarian watermarks. As regards their distribution the Roumanian post officials have been first considered, and they were empowered either to keep them at the nominal price or to sell them at a fixed additional price. Although the postal price of a set of six stamps is only 12.80 lei, offers up to 200 lei were already made. It seems strange that a cultured nation rather renders their officials, who should be the backbone of a state, businessmen, speculators, etc. Besides, it is unjust, for the post officials receive their salary as any other class; there is no need for such tips, as we may call the above."—Stamp Collecting.

TRINIDAD.—We have received from Mr. R. Roberts the new design mentioned some few weeks ago. The values are as follows: ½d green, 1d brown, 1½d pale blue, 2d grey, 3d blue, 6d dull and bright purple, 5sh dull and bright mauve, all on script watermarked paper, and 4d grey and red on new yellow paper, old watermark, also 1sh black on emerald through old watermark. The stamps are of double design, the figure of Britannia on the left and on the right portrait of King George. Mr. Roberts also adds that he has the 1 pound value green and rose script watermark, head in the first color.

TURKEY, Kemalista Issue.—Mr. Pollitz of the Frank P. Brown Co., advises that he has received five values of a new set of pictorial stamps for this country.

"JUNIOR."

By EDWIN B. HILL, Ysleta, Texas.

For R. R. T.

Age may creep on apace, but the love of the old gods sometimes remains to the end. It was so with John Moreton, that gentle, just, and manliest of men. When I first knew him as a boy, he was the soul of simplicity and directness and altogether lovableness of character,—sincere and upright in everything. He was a man garbed in the life of a boy. Perhaps this could be attributed to the fact that he was the son of a jurist eminent in his profession, who, in turn traced his lineage to lawyers and jurists and barristers and solicitors. We called him "Judge" or "Old John," in those days. He always seemingly enjoyed the appellation, which was never intended derisively. It was just boy.

When schooldays ended, I drifted, naturally, into newspaper work. John Moreton entered the University, and in due time was graduated in law. We met occasionally, and, when a stamp collectors' club was formed in our home city, we were importuned to join. John was twenty-seven, then, and I a year older. He had recently married a charming woman,—a school-girl friend whom I recalled always as very like John in sweetness of character and gentleness of breeding. The stamp club flourished and gained new life from the acquisition of younger members. I drifted away, finally, and John followed shortly after. We thought we were getting too old!

Twenty-five years is not long, in retrospect: but how endless the years seem ahead! I had gone into the woods, and later lived on the ranges of the far west. The free life appealed to me more than I would acknowledge even to myself. I appreciated the freedom. but recalled the separation when a letter came to me up on the range from my old friend. He wrote delightfully of the old days, and all they meant to us. Then he asked a favor. He had a son of twenty, whose health was none too robust. Would it be possible for me to find a place where he and the boy might stay for a year? His wife, he said, had gone the long road a year before.

Mails were slow for me, and I wired John to come on with the boy. A week later I was summoned into town. They had arrived. I sent my name to their room,—it was evening,—and followed. Dear old John! I scarcely knew him. He looked an old man, worn and stricken. The light was still in his eyes, and all the old gentleness. When he gathered me into his arms, as if I were a child, I felt the tears on my face. He sat beside me, and held my hand like any woman. The years were as naught to us. How long we sat there I do not know. It seemed minutes to us, yet when we rose there was silence in the streets, and the moon was waning.

"My boy is not well," John finally said, huskily. "He is so very like Nelly that I am fearful he could not last the eastern winter. I wanted to get away, and I thought I'd come into the southwest. Junior —you know he is also 'John,' but we alled him Junior—seemed anxious and willing to come with me."

The boy came into the room. He was tall and slight, with his father's gray eyes and his mother's sensitive mouth and chin. He spoke quietly, listlessly, almost. His father, I noticed, watched the boy almost calculatingly. I felt the sense of chill. There must be reason for this charming deference yet total lack of cordiality.

Six months on the range made Junior into a new boy-man. He gained poise and self-control. He learned to ride and to shoot. The boys all liked him. He was natural and unaffected. His quickness of action one day probably saved the life of a cowboy, who, thereafter, became his devoted friend. This cowboy slept one afternoon in the open. A diamond-back had coiled in the hollow of his arm, for warmth. Junior saw the snake, and sat his horse motionless. The cowboy, wide awake, then, lay quiet. The perspiration ran off his face.

THE NEW SEASON IS HERE!

The Season of 1922-23 promises to be the biggest and best in the history of stampdom, regardless of the pessimistic reports to the contrary which have been handed around from time to time by some of the less progressive element. It seems to give many dealers a lot of pleasure to swap hard-luck stories. But the live wire, the go-gettem-type, is working hard and saying nothing, using his energies to boost instead of to knock—and making money. During the past few years, we have had the pleasure of supplying initial stocks to many who were new in the stamp business. It is a tribute to this concern and to the service which it has rendered, that 90% of this trade is still with us. Many have passed forever the "beginners" stage; some are devoting their entire time to stamps, and earning a good living; all are "making good" in every sense of the word. A few months ago, we published a testimonial from C. B. Moseley of the Fenway Stamp Co. A number of "doubters" disbelieved and wrote to Mr. Moseley for confirmation. He not only replied in the affirmative, but also stated that his business had increased over 100% since his letter was published, necessitating the employment of two clerks. The above results were obtained from a $500 investment, plus our help and good judgment of his own.

Next month we will publish the testimonials of others who have been successful almost in the same degree. There's a reason: Our customers receive not only the advantage of low prices and excellent material, but also the best we can offer in service, personal attention, help and advice backed by actual experience.

H. G. FAIRMAN 524 River Rd., Bellevue Branch PITTSBURGH, PA.

The cow-pony snorted. The snake raised its head and sounded the alarm, watching the horseman. Junior raised his six-shooter twice before he could steady his hand. The cowboy's eyes never left the boy's face. There was a flash, a roar, and the cowboy was ten feet away. Junior was crying like a child and shaking as if with ague. Junior had shot the head off the snake, but the cowboy had started to leap when he saw Junior's hand touch the trigger. The boy and his friend rode into camp. Junior never said a word, but Bill told the tale up and down the range.

John and I sat on the porch of the ranch-house. Neither had spoken for a half hour. As the shadows grew long, John broke the silence.

"You have noticed," he began, slowly, "that Junior avoids me. He treats me with all the deference due a father. But that is all. He has reason. You may know that he always calls me 'father,' and never 'Dad,'—never by any manner does he forget that courtesy accorded to an almost a stranger. And I am blameworthy."

John was silent for a few minutes. Then he resumed:

"You know how we collected stamps,—Junior and I. We love them still, I am sure. It was always my dream to have a collection for Junior when he was old enough to appreciate. His interest, from eight years to twelve, however, was mainly in books, and his collection of stamps, in a little old home-made album, was rudimentary. Yet the boy loved it, and its hundred or so stamps were treasures to him. The day he was twelve I brought home a new album, and some four or five hundred stamps of the nineteenth century issues, which I had carefully mounted for him. This was to be the beginning of a real collection. When I went into the house, Junior was not in the room. His mother had been crying. She told me Junior had been saucy in his answers to her. This was unlike the lad, and I went to his room to talk with him. He would not speak to me. I was angry. In my nervousness I picked up his little boyish stamp album. As I held it in my hands, I asked him again to explain his conduct. He did not reply.

"Then I tore his album in two, threw the pieces on the floor, and left the room. Nelly was waiting for me. I told her what I had done.

"'You should not have done that, John,' was all she said. I realized the folly of it. Together we went to Junior's room. He was on the floor, beside the torn parts of his album, crying in great sobs. I tried to take him in my arms. He drew away. Then he turned to his mother.

"'Oh, mother! mother! I didn't say it, —it was in the book,— and I only read it out!'

"I tiptoed out of the room. An hour later, Nellie came to me. It seems Junior was reading. The passage was one of dear Charles Lamb's essays. Junior did not mean to be impertinent. He read the passage, in reply to a question from his mother, and then was about to explain. Pride restrained him. When I went into his room, the boy had been weeping and sobbing. He could not speak to me without betraying the fact and he wanted to tell me everything. I was out of sympathy, and the result was this thing of awful cruelty on my part.

"We never talked of stamps again. Junior, after that day, never called me 'Dad'. I was always 'Father' to him. Our old friendship and intimacy were dead. Then Nellie was taken suddenly with heart-failure and died in ten minutes."

Dear old John sat with bowed head. I could not speak. He resumed:

"All the long years I have yearned over my boy. I have tried to aid him in every way. The barrier remains. He doesn't know that I know, and I cannot tell him. All I can do is to await the day. I am certain, when he is older—perhaps ten or twenty years from now—he will understand,—when he has children of his own. I can wait."

The next day it rained. And the next. And for three days after that the rain came down in steady streams. The boys holed up, and played cards, and told stories, and read the old magazines, finding especial joy in the yarns of western life, written by men and women who had gained their knowledge from car windows or who had perhaps never been outside of New York. It was joy for the boys!

And then Junior dragged out an old copy of MEKEEL'S which the boys proceeded to read to tatters. There was a yarn in it by a certain friend of theirs. They enjoyed it. But the philatelic touch in it did not interest overmuch.

"I c'n collect guns an' rattles an' baskets an' blankets," began one cowboy, "but these here stamps—" He blew a smoke-ring, and looked at the leaden sky.

The rain ceased, and the world was made over. The days drew near when John and Junior were to return to their eastern home.

Junior had packed his belongings, together with some treasures dear to cowboy life,—a hair riata,—a silver-mounted bridle,—spurs with conchas made from hammered Mexican dollars. I saw him packing. He motioned me into the room where he was tying up the last bundle.

"I want to thank you," he began. Then the tears rolled down the boy's face. He clasped my hands in his, and stood there, choking, a very manly, lovable boy.

'I—I heard you and Dad, that night. I am going to surprise him. I've always loved him beyond words, but I thought he didn't care for me any more after that night. And then—mother—"

The lad stopped. I slipped from the room. John stood on the threshold. He had heard every word. There was a look of surprise,—of joy unspeakable on his face as he took his boy into his arms.

A month later I received a letter from Junior. He sent me three stamps that I had wanted for more years than his father's and his own ages combined. With them was a tiny note.

"Dad sends his love," he said. "And he wants me to say that he thinks more of that little old collection he told you about than of any stamps that ever could be gathered within the covers by a Ferrari."

NORWAY'S PHILATELIC JUBILEE.

Fifty Years of One Design.

By W. WARD.

For three generations the little post-horn stamps of Norway have been popular with all collectors, particularly in the earlier days of their philatelic career. These stamps can claim to be the oldest philatelic recruiters, for their values have been modest, easily procurable, and they were one of the first complete sets that we were able to show in our albums.

To Norway must be given the philatelic Legion of Honour, for no other country in the world has been satisfied with a single design for the space of half a century. What varieties exist have been occasioned by bona-fide national needs, or the slight modification or improvement in the engraving of new dies, but notwithstanding, the original design of Lieut.-Colonel Broch remains substantially the same today as when it was first sketched in 1871, and the stamps were originally issued in 1872, just prior to the death of Charles XV.

Like many another European country, Norway has passed through her political troubles, but her great "revolution" when she severed her union with Sweden was a bloodless one, and, like her stamps, an ever-living credit to the land of the "Midnight Sun." Only in that year, 1905, did she have a "war" issue, when the three high value stamps bearing the portrait of King Oscar of Sweden were withdrawn, and a plate of the first "post-horn" issue specially reprinted in a new colour, was used to do duty for the three withdrawn values, by means of surcharging.

Postal rates on three occasions have made the necessity of overprinting other values pending the making of a plate to print new values, the first 25ö. (on the 12ö. brown) of 1888; the new 30ö. and 15ö. of 1906-8; and the provisionals of 1921-22 occasioned by the new U. P. U. rates. During that fifty years, which makes the record all the more notable, the stamps have had four changes of printers—without the necessity or excuse of altering the design:—

Petersen, Christiania, 1872-1882.
Johnsen, Christiania, 1882-1886.
Central Printers, Christiania, 1886-1895.
Knudsens, Christiania, 1895—to date.
Until 1894 the first three printers used

TESTIMONIAL!!!!!!!!!

Monsieur L. Bernard, October 27, 1922.
8 Rue Baudin, 8, PARIS IX°, France.

Dear Sir: Received the two collections of 5000 stamps to-day, and will say that I am more than pleased with them. They are even better than I thought they would be. Am sure you would be able to dispose of quite a number of them should collectors generally know about them.

Will be glad to recommend your company any time that I can, and will tell my friends about your valuable stamps whenever the opportunity presents itself.

Thanking you very much, I remain Very truly yours,
FRED A. TAYLOR,
7 Wynona Street, CHARLOTTE, N. C., U. S. A.

the same gauge perforating machines, when the Central printers installed a new machine perforating 12½x13½, but the old gauge of 13½x14½ was reverted back again to under the new contractor.

The first notable revision of the design was on the change of currency to a decimal unit from the old Teuton-Scandinavian Skilling—of a nominal value of a halfpenny, sou, or American cent—in 1877, from which year the design has been exclusively used for the öre values. On only four further occasions during those 45 years has the design received further modification, in each a trifling alteration, which in other countries than Norway, merely demands catalogue rank as minor varieties in smaller font, and italic lettered numbers.

Twice there was a change of lettering in the inscriptions, and twice a change of shading of the rings of the posthorn.

Three values have been changed in colour no less than three times each, the 5ö blue, green and brown; 12ö green. brown and purple; and the 20ö brown, blue and green. As with the 10 and 15ö and 40ö, other values have been recently changed or will be changed in colour to conform with the new U. P. U. rates, but otherwise, for 45 years, the other values remained in the same parent colours, if in very varying shades.

The 1ö has been grey-brown and stone shades; the 2ö various brown shades; 3ö yellow-orange to deep orange; 10ö pale rose to deep crimson, with once an aniline rose-red; 25ö shades of mauve; 50ö clarets; and the 60ö various colours of blue.

Minor varieties of lettering have occurred in the 1, 5, 10, 20 and 25ö values, as no stop after postfrim, small upper case "I" for the numeral "1", and small upper case "N" in Norge. Right through the issues the watermark of the ubiquitous posthorn has been religiously observed, though the paper used has variously differed in thicknesses from thin hard to a very thick, almost "carton" paper used for a short period during 1917-19. Odd values have been issued imperforate or partly imperforate in error, and the 10ö had been issued in late years with imperforate "vertical" sides in rolls for use in auto machines.

Thus the "simple life" collector may restrict his collection of Norway (1872-1922) to no more than 13 stamps; the general collector to some 100 varieties, while the specialist may easily treble that number in single stamps of shades and minor varieties.

Previously the record was held by the 5d large square stamp of New South Wales, which had a record existence of design of 56 years—1856-1912—and, of course, as a single stamp it still holds, but the record for a "whole" set of stamps in one design belongs solely t Norway. Other records are the Frenc postage dues, 1882; Great Britain 1c 1840-81; Austria Newspaper "Mercury, 1867-1900; Swedish Officials, 1874-1910 Belgian Parcels Post, 1882-1914; an Swiss and Dutch Postage Dues.

No wonder a visitor just back fror a Norwegian trip among the Fjords re marked to me, "Why, they have th same stamps in Norway as when I ha my first trip to Bergen forty years ago I should think that Norwegian stamp are not very popular with stamp col lectors, since they have no new ones? But aren't they?—Philatelic Magazine.

ERNEST R. ACKERMAN, M. C.

HOW PHILATELY FIGURED IN THE NOTABLE CAMPAIGN OF OUR "MOST WIDELY TRAVELLED CONGRESSMAN."

The recent political campaign resulted in many surprises throughout the country and particularly in New Jersey, where both of the major parties made unusual efforts to elect their candidates. In the Fifth Congressional District where the present Republican Congressman, Ernest R. Ackerman, was running for re-election, the Democratic deluge signally failed to accomplish its purpose, and Mr. Ackerman, whose name is familiar to many philatelists, was re-elected by a substantial majority.

One of the most interesting features of the campaign in that District was the use Mr. Ackerman made of a powerful weapon which his knowledge of philately placed in his hands, and since the famous Tea Party held in Boston Harbor more than a hundred and fifty years ago, it is doubtful if stamps have played such a conspicuous part in connection with American politics.

A few months ago Mr. Ackerman obtained from a person in Philadelphia an envelope which contained a letter from Russia. The postage on the letter was paid by many sheets of Russian stamps, one hundred in each sheet, which when folded together, back to back, made a double strip of stamps fifteen and one-half feet in length, or counting each side, a strip six inches wide and thirty-one feet long. As the strip was folded and refolded to conform to the size of the letter, the whole made a package which bears a striking resemblance to an accordion.

In all, the postage on this letter was paid by 1,625 stamps; each of the denomination of 250 rubles, making a total face-value of 406,250 rubles. Before the world war this number of rubles would have equalled $207,137.50 in United States currency. However, at the time the letter was sent, they were only sufficient to pay the equivalent of fifteen American cents worth of postage.

During the campaign Mr. Ackerman exhibited this Russian cover more than twenty-five times at various places in his tour of the counties of Morris and Union, which comprise the Fifth New Jersey District. No matter how large the room in which he was speaking happened to be, no one in the audience had any difficulty in seeing the "accordion" letter and in visualizing the enormous depreciation in the value of a Russian ruble which it so graphically represented. Mr. Ackerman used the letter to illustrate what he believed might happen to the United States if ever the American people permitted Bolshevism or unsound economic theories to obtain a foothold, his argument being that the great depreciation in the value of Russian money, as shown by the number of rubles required to carry a letter, followed the advent of a Government which had assumed the absolutely erroneous idea that to start the printing presses turning out money would add to the country's wealth, despite the fact that there was no corresponding reserve in the Treasury to back up the paper money.

In Morristown, where Washington's headquarters were situated for a time during the Revolutionary War, and which is the county seat of Morris County, the four hundred odd thousand ruble cover was particularly effective and many were the requests for a personal inspection of the letter after the meetings, and a large banking institution, in an important metropolitan center, has made a request for a loan of the letter for the purpose of driving home a needed lesson in that community.

Morris County gave Mr. Ackerman a majority of 5,505 votes. Union County added 5,600 more, making his majority in excess of eleven thousand over his Democratic opponent.

This election is the third in which Mr. Ackerman has been the choice of the people of the Fifth New Jersey District to represent them in the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States. Previously he was elected for two terms as State Senator from Union County in the New Jersey Legislature. During his service there he was made President of the Senate and as such became Acting Governor on a number of occasions when Woodrow Wilson, then Governor of New Jersey, was absent from the state.

When but a lad, Mr. Ackerman began his business experience selling newspapers at Broadway and Twenty-Sixth Street, New York City. At fifteen years of age he was conducting a stamp business. It proved a profitable venture, so much so that five years later he sold his good-will and list of customers for $1.000.00. This sale, however, did not terminate his interest in philately. On the contrary this experience fastened the "fever" upon him to such an extent he has never been able to shake it off. His acquisitions during the past 40 years place him in the front ranks of collectors, not only in the United States, but all over the world. The medals and trophies awarded him for his stamp displays at exhibitions include many most eagerly sought and hotly contested for because of their significance, merit and prestige.

The "most widely travelled Congressman" is the title his colleagues have conceded to Mr. Ackerman. In all of his journeyings, comprising nearly a hundred steamer voyages in all parts of the world with few exceptions, covering the territory from Iceland to Chili, Johore and the Soudan, Hawaii and Ceylon, Corea and Java or Liechtenstein and Venezuela, he has been alert for philatelic items. As a result his collection includes stamps personally collected in more than 100 stamp-issuing countries.

For more than forty years an umbrella which has been his companion during 600,000 miles of travel has protected him from tropical suns and torrential rains and while its style is somewhat antiquated it is still performing service and he is hoping a half century of usefulness in further quest of philatelic treasure may be possible before it is finally placed on a shelf.

Mr. Ackerman is a Life Member of the American Philatelic Association, the American Numismatic Society and of the Collectors Club of New York.

PHILATELY IN ARITHMETIC

A Book-Review.

By STEPHEN G. RICH.

Arithmetical Essentials. Books 1, 2 and 3. By J. Andrew Drushel, Margaret Noonan, and John W. Withers. New York, Lyons and Carnahan, 1921 and 1922.

In many respects aside from philatelic interest this series of arithmetical textbooks for grades 3 to 8 of the schools is a remarkable achievement, by a group of able St. Louis school people. The outstanding educational features are the elimination of all material that has only traditional reason for being taught, the introduction of chapters on practical topics (such as using checks, actual procedures in buying at stores, receipts, postal savings, problems on health and accident-prevention, graphs, etc.), and the use of problems dealing with matters of interest and direct value to the pupils.

Under this last head the authors have recognized the fact that most children go through a stage in which they begin to collect stamps. They utilize this interest in three places in the third and fourth grades' work. There are two pages of stamp-collecting problems in subtraction in the third-grade work; two pages on buying stamps at the post-office in the work on division in the third-grade work; and one page on stamp-collecting in treating multiplication in the fourth grade.

This is a most welcome beginning, and we hope that when the authors revise their work they will go further in introducing stamp-collecting problems. We might mention that the "thrift" side of philately could easily be used in the eighth-grade chapter on thrift; that the comparison between the increase of money at interest and the growth of a stamp-collection in value would be a worth-while addition to the material on interest in the eighth grade; and that under percentage in the various places where it is taken up the percentages of U. S., foreign, Britsh Colonial, and other sorts of stamps in collections would make desirable problems.

The educational value of philately is in the Drushel-Noonan-Withers arithmetic recognized for the first time by the teaching profession. It now remains for some person or group of persons to work out more in detail the applicability and methods of application to other subjects. The present writer, in 1919, tried getting eighth grade boys to write compositions or make talks before the class about their collections: it worked well as a motive for getting good English used.

We shall, however, have to beware of one fallacy in the educational treatment of philately. The impression is being given that philately "teaches neatness, order, application, system, etc." The plain truth is that such things cannot be taught as such or in general. They are specific groups of habits for each specific group of activities. You cannot teach a boy neatness in his stamp album and expect it to transfer to his copybooks or to keeping his clothes in order. Human nature is not built that way. Nor can "observation" in general be taught through stamp-collecting any more than it can be taught through botany or chemistry. The stamp collector learns to observe stamps carefully, and that is all.

Let us dodge this obstacle and wish Miss Noonan, Mr. Drushel, and Dr. Withers all success with the books that have put philately on the educational map—and let us wish that they may go further with the good work.

TIENTSIN CHINA SOCIETY.

The Tientsin Philatelic Society was organized on Oct. 29, with a membership of 20. The society is international, Americans, British, French, Germans and Italians compose the nationalities represented. Officers for the coming year are President, G. H. Faucett; Secretary, G. W. Tuomey; Treasurer, F. M. Thomson.

Meetings are held on the 1st and 3rd Wednesdays of each month. Visiting collectors are cordially invited to attend the meetings of the society. The society, through the Secretary, will be glad to furnish prospective visitors to China with any information about travel, hotels, points of interest or other matters.

YE OLDE SOUTH STAMPE SHOPPE

6 MILK STREET BOSTON, MASS.

WHERE YOUR GRANDFATHER BOUGHT HIS STAMPS. [66

SOUTH AMERICAN LETTER.

By A. H. Davis.

Argentine.—Recently a firm of stamp dealers, acting on behalf of a client, ordered a collection of 5,000 stamps from Germany, the value of which was declared to be two pesos gold, approximately 8sh. In view of the low value placed on this collection the Customs authorities decided to purchase it at above price plus 10 per cent. interest, and justified their action in accordance with Article 34 of Law 810.

The firm in question brought an action for the recovery of the goods, but the case has been decided against them and they have been mulcted in costs. The affair has occasioned much comment in local philatelic circles, and it is difficult to see what right the Customs had in acting as they did, as neither postage stamps nor albums are liable to import duties. Had they been ordinary merchandise, of course the case would have been different because the importers could have been proceeded against for making a false declaration of value.

Many philatelists here send out selections of stamps on which they declare the approximate value and the authorities have been in the habit of perforating the packets with a machine, with the consequence that recently a collection valued at several thousands of pesos and intended for Brazil was ruined. To avoid this contretemps in future, people have been requested to attach a slip of paper to the packets with the words "please do not perforate the envelope because it contains stamps for collections."

Owing to the inferior quality of the gum on the stamps of the current issue, they frequently become detached from the envelopes during their transmission through the post, and the authorities have therefore distributed amongst their offices a star-shaped rubber stamp, in the centre of which are the words" estampilla caida", which translated into English means "stamp fallen off."

Recently the Radical party projected the issue of a series of stamps without actual value, upon which the effigies of the outgoing President Irigoyen, Dr. Marcelo Alvear, the President-Elect, and Dr. Elpido Gonzalez, the ex-Chief of Police, were to appear.

Much ink has been spilled, some bad blood engendered, and a considerable amount of heated temper and oratory has been occasioned by this proposal, and owing to certain remarks made by a member of the Chamber of Deputies, a duel between him and one of the Cabinet Ministers, who previously resigned, has resulted.

It is now stated that the decision to issue the series will be negatived.

The prominent daily paper La Nacion, has projected an air flight from Buenos Aires to Rio de Janeiro to compliment the Brazilians on the occasion of their centenary, and the aviator Teodoro Fels will be accompanied by Senor J. M. Piacentini, one of the editors of the paper. The start will be made from the San Isidro aviation ground about the 28th inst., but if the weather is propitious the aviators may leave a day or two earlier. The route to be followed is Florida, Durazno, in Uruguay, Rio Grande do Sul, Porto Alegreo, Florianopolis, Santos, and Rio de Janeiro, in Brazil, and the journey is to be made in three days.

I am informed that a small amount of correspondence is to be carried, for which purpose a special postmark will probably be used, but I will verify this statement later.

A new philatelic monthly journal called La Filatelia Argentina printed in Spanish made its appearance last month in this city, and it is a very creditable production. The promoters wish to make it the official journal of the numerous philatelic societies which exist in these countries.

Brazil.—According to a statement issued by the Sao Paulo Philatelic Society, the first issue of Brazilian stamps, popularly known as "Bull's Eyes" (1843), was printed in the following quantities:—

30 reis	1,148,994
60 reis	1,502,142
90 reis	349,182

This information, which may safely be taken as authentic, should prove highly interesting to specialists in the stamps of this country.

Paraguay.—The Postal Administration announce that the following quantities of stamps with the words "habilitado 1918" were issued:—

424,000	5c	postage due, for	5c	postage
350,000	40c	"	5c	"
179,000	10c	"	10c	"
179,750	20c	"	20c	"
1,000,000	40c	U.P.U."	30c	"

By order of the Board of Inland Revenue a bonfire was made on the 28th April last of various postage and telegraph stamps of a total value of $80,022.15.

Amongst these stamps, 7721 of S.G. 107, 44,802 of No. 246, and 18,000 postage due of $1, $1.50, Nos. 361 and 362, are supposed to have been destroyed, but curiously enough all these stamps have recently been offered to me at a premium of 10 per cent. on their face value, so the holders apparently expect to make a good thing out of the business.

The official notice of the incineration ends with the words "after the destruction, the corresponding document was duly signed." 'Nuff said.

On the 1st of May last a monument to some war veterans (Paraguayan War, I presume) was inaugurated in Asuncion, the capital city of this country, and it was intended to issue commemorative stamps of $1 and $2.50, to be designed by Senor Hector da Ponte, but there was no time to prepare the stamps and therefore the project was abandoned. The design was to have been similar to that used for the Centenary stamps of 1910. I see that several foreign philatelic journals announced the actual issue of these stamps, but from above you will see that the statement is incorrect. —Philatelic Magazine.

BRITISH VIRGIN ISLANDS, 1904.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

On January 22nd, 1901, Queen Victoria died, and King Edward VII acceded to the throne, but it was not until more than three years had elapsed, that the Edwardian series of postage stamps for the British Virgins, made appearance.

Although the stamps were issued on June 1st, 1904, the formal Order in Council was not made until September 20th, 1904, being published in the Leeward Islands Gazette of Thursday, September 29th.

"ORDER IN COUNCIL.

Whereas by Section 3 of the Leeward Islands General Stamp Act, 1890, it is provided (inter alia) that there shall be a uniform stamp or stamps for use throughout the Colony whereby all postage rates and stamp duties shall be expressed.

And whereas by Section 3 of the Leeward Islands Stamp Act, 1902, it is provided that the Governor may from time to time by Order in Council direct that a special stamp or stamps may be used in each or any Presidency concurrently with such uniform stamp or stamps as aforesaid.

Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered by the Governor in Council as follows:—

On and after the thirtieth day of September, 1904, special stamps may be used in the Presidency of the Virgin Islands concurrently with the uniform stamps now in use throughout the Colony of the Leeward Islands.

The several values of the said special stamps in the said Presidency shall be ½d, 1d, 2d, 2½d, 3d, 6d, 1s, 2s6d and 5s.

The special stamps for the said Presidency shall bear the design of the effigy of His Majesty King Edward the Seventh.

The Post Cards and Envelopes of the said Presidency of the design at present in use shall continue unchanged.

Made in the Executive Council of the Leeward Islands this 20th day of September, 1904.

EDWARD B. JARVIS,
Clerk of the Council."

The denominations duplicate those of the 1899 series, except that the 4d and 7d are dropped, and 2d, 3d and 2s6d added. Instead of going to the expense of special plates, use was made of De La Rue's Postage & Revenue keyplate of the 1888 design, which had been altered to show the head of King Edward VII, to the left, on a plain ground of color, enclosed in an octagonal frame, and surmounted by a Crown.

The stamps were printed in sheets of 120, 2 panes of 60, separated by a narrow gutter, on paper watermarked multiple Crown CA, and perforated comb 14. These were the first stamps to be printed on the new multiple watermarked paper, so-called by reason of the device Crown CA being repeated close together over the entire surface of the sheet instead of only in panes as before. Portions of several devices, therefore, appear on each stamp. Plate 1 appears in the upper margin of the sheet, over the 2nd and 5th stamps of the left and right panes, respectively, and under the corresponding stamps in the lower row. A continuous marginal line surrounds each pane.

The head impression for the pence values is in violet and for the shilling values, in green. The duty plate impression was added at a second printing, in a separate color. The figures and lettering of the 2d, 3d, 1s and 2s6d value tablets are in color enclosed in a thin hexagonal frame; for the others, it is colorless on a solid ground of color.

Only one printing was made of these stamps, and in very small quantities for the higher values. The 2s6d was the first to exhaust, in October, 1911, followed soon after by the 2d. Other values exhausted during the year, but as King Edward VII had died on May 10, 1911, and new keyplates with the head of the new sovereign substituted, were in preparation, no further printings were made from the old plates. The missing values were supplied by the Federal series. The demand for stamps of the higher denominations for strictly postal purposes, is very small, and seldom are values above 1d reprinted.

June 1, 1904. Presidency series, King Edward VII, Postage & Revenue. Watermarked multiple Crown CA. Perf. comb 14. Plate 1.

½d violet and blue green.
1d violet and scarlet.
2d violet and bistre.
2½d violet and ultramarine.

A CANADIAN ANACHRONISM.

By EDW. E. GOODCHILD.

Under the above caption there appeared in MEKEEL'S issue of Nov. 25, an article by R. M. Angus, setting forth among other things "that an interesting heraldic mistake in the design of the Georgian series of Canadian postage stamps has only recently been noticed." Further that a Post Office Inspector interviewed a high official of the British American Bank Note Co. who expressed surprise and concurred with the error, stating that they themselves had not observed it.

May I be permitted to point out that this is no new discovery. In my booklet the "Postage Stamps of Canada" (Price 50c) on which the editor recently made such favorable comment, I particularly drew attention to same as follows:—

"After the accession of King George to the throne, etc., practically no alteration in the designs of those of the previous king's issue.

One change, however, led to quite an uproar among certain elements of the population who claimed that the Tudor Crown, which had appeared in the upper corners of the King Edward issues had been substituted to that of the Papal order. An examination of the two issues certainly show an entirely different crown and cross to that previously appearing."

This had been common knowledge to me for many years past and was the reason for much newspaper controversy, many claiming and still claim that the cross over the crown was due to Roman Catholic influence.

Prior to such issue, irrespective of whether such issue was Queen Victoria or King Edward, the crown used was always the Tudor Crown of England. As a matter of fact the very first Canadian issue of the 3d 1851 has it.

Your correspondent is perfectly correct when he claims that no such Cross and Crown appears on any other current British Colonial issues and this very fact has done much to support the theory set out above, many claiming that the Roman Catholic influence is not so great in any other part of the British Empire as in Canada.

Whether it is considered advisable in the interest of heraldry to correct the design, as your correspondent suggests I know not, but the officials responsible for the design would be well advised to revert to the original crown and cross same being more symbolical and in keeping with all other issues throughout the British Empire.

FAMOUS WOMEN ON STAMPS.

By W. GARDNER.

How many famous women have been immortalised on postage stamps? Their number is less than three dozen. Our own first stamp, the well-known penny black, bore the portrait of the late Queen Victoria taken from William Wyon's head. This is a great portrait, and is rightly credited with being the most beautiful stamp ever produced. New Zealand copied its early stamps from the coronation portrait by Mr. Alfred Chalon, R. A. To deal alone with the Victorian stamp would take far more space than could be spared in this article. Queen Victoria's features figured on upwards of 3,500 postage stamps from over sixty States and Colonies.

Many great stamp printers have produced by various printing processes, charming pictures of Queen Victoria. Messrs. Perkins, Bacon and Co., produced the early line-engraved stamps of Ceylon, Bahamas, Grenada, St. Helena, Natal, Queensland, etc., and these classical issues have quite a charm of their own.

The embossed stamps of Gambia are also quite pleasing. The early stamps of Canada by Rawdon, Wright, Hatch, and Edson of New York are very fine, while the Jubilee stamps, showing the Queen as she appeared in 1837 and 1897, are of great historic interest.

Waterlow's stamps for the Niger Coast showing Queen Victoria in widow's weeds are good examples of this firm's work.

Exquisite engraving of the Queen's portrait is given by Messrs. Bradbury, Wilkinson and Co., on the stamps they produced for the Transvaal and Falkland Islands. Of a different type are the stamps of the Prince Edward Islands, electrotyped and printed by Mr. Chas. Whiting, of Beaufort House, Strand, London. Locally engraved and printed stamps produced by Mauritius, New South Wales, Tasmania, and Victoria are in many cases mere caricatures, yet they are rare, much sought for, and too expensive for the ordinary collector with a limited purse. Messrs. De la Rue, who probably produced more Victorian stamps than any printers, perhaps never excelled their work shown on the stamps of Uganda.

Queen Alexandra is seen on the 10c of Newfoundland, 1911. The 3c value of 1897 shows her as the Princess of Wales. Queen Mary's portrait may be found on the stamps of Newfoundland as can also that of Princess Mary the daughter of our philatelic king.

Makea Takau Ariki, or, as she was generally known, Queen Makea, adorns the 1893 issue of Cook Islands. She was only ariki or chief of her district, Rarotonga, and, although she could not speak English, was very intelligent. Her hair in the portrait is plaited, as it was the custom for elderly married native women to arrange their hair so. The stamps were the work of Mr Alfred Ernest Cousins, of Wellington, engraver of many New Zealand stamps. He engraved the head from a photo borrowed from a chief, this being the only one obtainable.

The Hawaiian Islands have presented us with a number of her native queens. The $1 of 1882 shows Queen Emma, the wife of Kamehameha IV. She was not a pure blooded Hawaiian, but was beloved by the natives for her talents and good character.

Queen Kapiolani, wife of King Kalakaua, is seen on the 15c of the same series. The 1c of 1871 shows us Princess Victoria Kamamalu. The Hon. Mrs. Cleghorn, or the Princess Likelike, as she was known by the natives, appears on the 1c of 1882. She was the youngest sister of King Kalakaua and married Mr. Archibald S. Cleghorn. Queen Liliuokalani, 2c of 1891, succeeded King Kalakaua after his death in San Francisco, Jan. 20th. 1891. She was Kalakaua's sister and married an Englishman named John O'Dominio. Liliuokalani was always at variance with the government. At a mass meeting a provisional government was formed, but the queen raised a conspiracy to establish a monarchy and was sentenced to five years' imprisonment.

Another "dark-eyed stranger," Pocahontas, appears on the 5c adhesive of 1907 U. S. A. She was the daughter of Powhatan, an Indian chief, and at the age of twelve is said to have saved the life of John Smith by throwing herself over his prostrate body to shield him from execution. She was baptised at Jamestown, and married John Rolfe, the result being peace of long duration between the Indians and the Jamestown settlers. Pocahontas visited England and saw King James, but while at Gravesend she contracted small-pox and died.

On the death of King George Tubou of Tonga in 1918, Queen Salote Tubou succeeded to the throne, and two years later her portrait appeared on a 2d violet-brown stamp, followed in 1921 by several other values. The queen's head appears in an oval and the stamps were produced by the copperplate process, thus producing handsome stamps.

About ten European countries may be found with stamps bearing female portraits. The first issue of Portugal depicts Maria da Gloria, daughter of Dom Pedro IV. Events placed the thrones of Portugal and Brazil at the disposal of Dom Pedro. Preferring to remain in Brazil he abdicated the Portuguese throne in favor of his daughter Maria, then only seven years of age. She was for a time displaced by the intrigues of her uncle Miquel, who proclaimed himself king, but she was eventually restored to the throne in 1833, and reigned through troublous times until 1853, when she died at the early age of thirty-five. The four stamps showing her features were embossed in sheets of twenty-four at the Lisbon Mint. Presses for producing these stamps were supplied by Messrs. Dryden Bros., of London, and only one stamp at a time could be struck. Although this was very slow, over seven million of the 25c were struck in two years, besides large numbers of the other denominations.

Isabella I of Castile and Leon, a woman of great charm, courage, and sagacity, adorns the $4 stamp of U. S. A. 1893. She it was who helped Columbus to undertake his renowned voyage to America in 1492. This portrait of the queen is after the well-known painting by Antonio del Rincon which hangs in the Royal Palace at Madrid.

The first stamps of Spain bore the likeness of Isabella II, daughter of Ferdinand VII. She became queen at the age of three, and the early years of her reign were disturbed by a rising in favour of her uncle. Her reign was so despotic that a revolution took place in 1868, which drove her out of the country. In the 1850 issue the queen wears a crown, in the 1851 issue an oval band, and in 1853 she again wears a crown. It was in this year that forgeries of stamps were found, so we find the queen's head in 1856 adorned with a wreath of laurel. The execution of these various heads by Don Bartolomé Coromina is certainly not artistic, but in spite of this the stamps are attractive, and are very popular with many collectors.

Carmine Sylvia, the poetess Queen of Rumania, was the cause of several series of stamps being issued by the Rumanian Post Office, their use being both postal and philanthropic. Part of the proceeds of their sale was given to institutions in which Her Majesty was interested. In the 1906 series one stamp shows the Queen spinning, another shows her weaving, while a third shows her nursing a wounded soldier. They each have a motto attached. In 1907 a pretty series of values for this same country depict Princess Maria and her children receiving a poor family at the gate of their palace.

The head of Queen Wilhelmina of Holland has adorned the stamps of that country since 1891. Wilhelmina succeeded her father William III in 1890, and during her minority, Queen Dowager Emma acted as regent. The stamps of 1871 show her as a girl. On 6th Sept., 1898, a 1 gulden stamp, the first of a series, was issued to commemorate the coronation of the queen and also to signalise the event of her becoming queen de facto as well as de jure. The portrait was engraved in taille douce by M. J. Vurtheime of Rotterdam, after a photo by Professor R. Stagg. It is interesting to note that on this stamp there are many errors. The queen is wearing a diadem, so the royal crown above is superfluous. The crowns in the escutcheons are the wrong shape and too small. Again, two coats of arms are not necessary. If two are needed for symmetry, then one should be that of Nassau. Shields also should be placed upright.

We find one lady included in the Austrian Jubilee stamps, she being found on the 2 heller value. Maria Theresa, Queen of Hungary and Arch-duchess of Austria, ascended the throne in troublous time. Her claims to the throne were disputed on all sides and war broke out. Hungary supported her, but at the Peace of Breslau, 1742, much territory was ceded to Prussia. Maria Theresa had sixteen children, one of whom was the unfortunate Marie Antoinette.

Queen Zita, consort of the late Emperor Karl, has figured on many stamps of Hungary and Bosnia. After the Great War, Zita and her husband were deported to Maderia.

The consort of Archduke Frances Ferdinand is shown on a 40h commemorative stamp of Bosnia. By her side is the head of the archduke and below is the date, June 28th, 1914, the day they were assassinated at Serajeva, the capital of Bosnia.

Two of Russia's great women are presented to us in the Romanoff series of 1913. Katherine II in her state robes, after a painting by Skorodonmow, is shown on the 14kop. She was the wife of Peter III, and a woman of great intellect. The Czar was all but an imbecile, so Katherine had him deposed, imprisoned and afterwards murdered. She had plenty of lovers, and on them she lavished presents and pensions to the tune of two million pounds sterling. The 50kop gives us a portrait of Elizabeth II, daughter of Peter the Great. She rivalled her mother in beauty and was a great lover of pleasure. Her portrait is taken from a picture by Tchemesow.

Luxemburg in 1914 issued stamps bearing the head of the Grand Duchess Marie Adelaide. She succeeded to the title on the death of Grand Duke Wilhelm at the age of sixty. When Wilhelm ascended the throne he was suffering from an incurable disease, and on 20th June, 1907, he submitted to the Diet a new Royal Succession Bill making his eldest daughter heir to the Duchy. There was much opposition, but eventually the Bill passed by a large majority. In 1919 the Grand Duchess Marie Adelaide was deposed and for barely four days Luxemburg was a republic. The Grand Ducal Government was restored under Princess Charlotte, and with the approval of the allies. A new issue bearing her portrait was to have appeared on Jan. 23rd, 1920, but as the likeness was anything but flattering, the whole issue was scrapped, and it was not till a year later that the first postage stamp bearing her features appeared.

Montenegro, now no longer a stamp issuing country, gave us in 1910 a portrait of Queen Milena as she appeared at the time of her marriage with the late King Nicholas (1860). Her portrait was adapted from a painting hanging in the National Museum at Cetinje.

Japan has gone in very little for portraiture, but we are favoured with a picture of Kogo Jingo on the stamps of 1908. Jingo was regent of Japan from 201 to 269 in the place of her son Ojin, and it is said she died at the age of 100. Even in her day a simple system of letter carrying was in vogue in the islands.

Martha Washington, the wife of the renowned George Washington, occupies the place of honour on the 8c of 1902 U. S. A. Her portrait was taken from a picture by Gilbert Stuart.

Two Mexican heroines, Josefa Ortiz (1c) and Leona Vicario (2c, 1910), are all the females that this remarkable country has yet shown to us. These two ladies greatly helped Hidalgo in the fight for freedom against Spain.

Policarpe Salavarrieta, a heroine of the War of Independence, and lovingly known as La Pola, is depicted on the Columbian 1c stamp of 1910. Her lover, a carrier of dispatches for the independents, was captured and held as a spy. La Pola claimed that she alone was to blame, and she was arrested. Both were executed. Her life and death are favourite themes for Columbian poets and dramatists.

Our last lady shall be from Cuba. On the anniversary of the birth of Gertrudio Gomez de Avellaneda, the celebrated Spanish poetess, in 1914, a special stamp was issued. It was a long horizontal stamp with a circular portrait medallion in the centre. Avellaneda, whose real name was Peregrina, was the authoress of numerous lyrical poems in the Spanish tongue. She was born in Cuba in 1816, but she emigrated to Spain, where she lived in turn in Madrid and Seville, dying in the latter city in 1873.—Postage Stamp.

"LITERARY" POSTAGE STAMPS.

By DOROTHY POCOCK.

The number, and interest, of philately's literary associations is really amazing when one comes to look into it. No fewer than fourteen writers, poets, and diarists have been portrayed on postal labels up to the present time, and some of these stamps have historical bearing of great interest.

Such a case—a combination of historical interest and literature—is that of the 6c value of the 1610-1910 series of Newfoundland, which shows a portrait of Francis Bacon, Lord Verulam, known in his own time as the "wisest, brightest, and meanest of men." Beneath the head appears this inscription—"Lord Bacon. The guiding spirit in the colonisation scheme."

Cervantes, or, to give him his full name, Miguel de Cervantes Saavedra, figures on the Spanish issue bearing the dates 1605-1905, commemorating the tercentenary of the publication of "Don Quixote." These stamps are too well known among collectors to require description, and we may pass directly on to the Vasco de Gama series of Portugal, issued in 1898. One value bears a tiny portrait of Luiz de Camoens, whose epic "The Lusiads," which commemorates Da Gama's great voyage, was written in exile at Macao, then a remote island-settlement. Camoens, after a strenuous life of adventure and hardship, died in poverty and obscurity in a public hospital, at the age of fifty-six. Like Cervantes, he had fought in his country's service, and was present at the taking of Ceuta from the Moors. Here he was severely wounded, losing his right eye.

Captain James Cook, author of "Voyages of Discovery," figures on some of the stamps of New South Wales, New Zealand, and, lately, of the islands under New Zealand jurisdiction, such as Penrhyn, Rarotonga, etc.

Another Englishman, Captain John Smith, the famous Lincolnshire soldier, is delineated on one value of the Jamestown tercentenary issue, U. S. A., brought out in 1907. His life was full of perils and hairbreadth escapes; for, before Princess Pocahontas rescued him from the fury of her father's tribe, he had served in the Low Countries; fought in the Mediterranean; been captured by, and escaped from, the Turks; and fought Spaniards at sea. He joined the expedition to Virginia in 1605, later becoming president of the colony of Jamestown, which was founded in 1607. His memoirs are of very great interest.

It is not, perhaps, generally known that Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, should be included among writers whose portraits appear on stamps, for she published, in diary form, two books: "Leaves from the Journal of our Life in the Highlands," and "More Leaves."

Eight modern writers appear on stamps, two of whom are royal ladies. One is the late Elizabeth, Queen of Roumania, known to the world as "Carmen Sylva," poetess and author of many charming Roumanian stories; the other is the present Queen Marie, whose book "My Country," deals so feelingly with Roumania's sufferings during the late war. Both these ladies are portrayed on the beautiful Charity stamps of 1906-07.

Another writer is Lieut.-Gen. Sir R. S. Baden-Powell, whose books on scouting and kindred subjects are so well known among boys. His portrait, of course, appears on one of the rare Mafeking "Siege" stamps of 1900.

Perhaps the finest of these "literary" postage stamps yet issued is the splendid set of three produced in Rome on the 15th of September, 1921, to mark the sixth centenary of the death of Dante Alighieri. The portrait of Italy's greatest poet ("l'altissimo poet", as the inscription runs, on the 25 cent) appears on the 40 cent. Dante's life was one of disappointment and hardship, of exile and struggle. Born at Florence in 1265, he died at Ravenna in 1321, having nineteen years prior to his death, been banished from Florence on pain of being burned alive if he entered the city again. He had belonged to the party which opposed Charles of Valois, and was one of the chief Florentine magistrates when the French king entered the city with his victorious army. Even Dante's marriage proved unhappy. Beatrice, the guiding star of his life, was destined to tread a path that lay apart from his, and no closer intimacy than friendship was ever possible for the poet.

Including the Dante series, five literary portraits have been added to the list since 1919. Of the remaining four, the first in order of date is the large head of Gabriel D'Annunzio on the Fiume stamps of September, 1919, issued to commemorate the poet's entry into the city. Bulgaria provides us with two more: the first, appearing on the 24th of October, 1920, celebrates the seventieth birthday of Bulgaria's national poet, Ivan Vazoff, the value (the 2 leva) bearing his portrait and autograph. The other series, brought out on the 30th of December, 1921, marks the first anniversary of the death of J. D. Bourchier, the famous Times correspondent, whose work lay so much in Eastern Europe, and who lies buried at Rilo Monastery.

The fourth portrait is supplied by Uruguay, three stamps for this country being issued on the 26th of February, 1920, to honour the landing at Monte Video, on that day, of the embalmed body of José Enrique Rodo, the Uruguayan writer, who died in Italy.

It remains to be seen how many more writers will achieve this novel form of immortality, via the postage stamp. Perhaps we shall yet see a series honouring British authors and poets, from the time of Chaucer to that of Mr. H. G. Wells; or a Greek set showing Homer and scenes from the "Iliad" as the Spanish set shows Cervantes and scenes from Don Quixote." One can, at any rate, live in hopes of seeing further examples of "Literary" Postage Stamps.—Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—On Tuesday evening, Dec. 12, the stamp collectors of Spokane, Wash., and vicinity, held a meeting for the purpose of organizing a stamp club in that city. We trust the movement was successful and shall be very glad to have an account of the organization meeting.

—We have received from Prof. Harold S. Palmer of the University of Hawaii a Honolulu advertising cancellation. It reads:—"Visit Hawaii National Park, Open All Year." A new cancellation has appeared from N. Y. City. It reads as follows in a fanciful design:—"International Silk Exposition, Grand Central Palace, Feb. 5 to 15, 1923." Montreal also furnishes us with the following:—"Place Stamp in Upper Right Hand Corner."

—"On the 6th of November the first Latvian National Assembly was displaced by a newly elected body of deputies. Immediately a commemorative set of stamps was suggested, but due to the opposition of the Postmaster General the movement was defeated."—KARL KOSLOWSKI.

—We have received from A. E. Hussey a set of the new Austrian air-plane stamps. There are five values in the set:—300kr purple; 600kr brown; 900kr orange; 1200kr dark brown; 2400kr black.

—Arthur E. Wellington very kindly submits for our inspection a handsome Siberian cover. No fewer than eighteen stamps, nearly all different, are found upon the cover. Mr. Wellington writes:—"I imagine that some of the D. B. P. stamps will be mighty scarce. They are surcharged with the new name of the local government or with initials of it, meaning Priamur Territorial Country District. They have been in use since October 10, and the number printed was small."

—We have received from B. Buchanan sets of Russia and Swiss stamps, the latter begin overprinted for the correspondence of the League of Nations at Geneva. The Russia set is the Odessa Famine already chronicled in the WEEKLY but in this instance imperforate. Our correspondent questions the advisability of collectors being fooled by the purchase of the Swiss set. We confirm his judgment and see no reason why these stamps should not be in the same category as the Borneo Exhibition set which has been so severely condemned.

—A Washington, D. C., advertising cancellation reads:—"Mail Early For Christmas." From Portsmouth, N. H., we have:—"300th Anniversary of the First Settlements in New Hampshire 1623-1923."

—A. A. Wasserscheid of New York City, a faithful correspondent of the WEEKLY in connection with advertising cancellations, sends us the New York Silk Exposition chronicled elsewhere in our columns. We should take this opportunity to acknowledge the courtesy of many subscribers who are favoring us, but whose work we are unable to mention in the WEEKLY due to earlier information received.

—Elsewhere in this number will be found the advertisement of Victor G. Loly, who is about to retire from the stamp business. For twenty years he has been actively identified with the trade and many of our readers will regret this step upon Mr. Loly's part.

—Our Beverly office has received from Karl Koslowski some specimens of weird creations supposed to commemorate five years of Bolshevik reign. We will not attempt to describe these labels, which are fearfully and wonderfully made, but will leave them to later treatment by our new issues department.

—"I notice you chronicled a new style of German metered mail. I have three different styles on hand now, 125 as appeared in the above stated number of your paper, 200 and 400, like the one I enclose, and 250 entirely different than the former. I have been receiving these weekly since Aug., 1922, from 80pf to 400, on a weekly paper from Germany."—E. H. POVOLNY.

—J. A. Galbraith has instituted a 10% new issue service. It will no doubt meet the need of many collectors who have wanted a U. S. new issue service.

EDITORIAL.

Here is a bit of candor that we observe in the "Notice" in English that appears on a price-list of a Hungarian dealer: "I do not deliver on credit, whenever the best references have been given because I can buy fresh merchandise only for money, not for references." We heard a daughter report to her father who had sent her out with some bills, in answer to his inquiry as to how she had succeeded: "Splendid. I didn't collect any money but many compliments were paid me." Our dealer continues in his easy English: "Besides in order to keep in evidence my credits, I should be obliged to employ an apposite personnel for this purpose, and to raise my prices." We wish that we were as much at home in the language of Budapest as this dealer is in English.

"What bombast is shown by the boastful motto, 'We hold a vaster empire than has been,' flaunted on the first Canadian two cent stamp (sic) that blocks out the empire on a map of the world. I am amazed that a country can so far forget its manners as to crow in this way," says a bunk critic in the Brown Barb, an irresponsible sheet that seems to delight in heaving bricks at stamp collecting, not however, that the foregoing is libelous. The "motto" is from Sir Lewis Morris' jubilee ode and its use is allowable under the circumstances as it is not expected that nations be as punctilious as individuals in boosting tactics. As for that, the "Domestic Manners of the Americans," written by Mrs. Trollope in the '30's, says something about maps: "Once in Ohio and once in the district of Columbia, I had an atlas displayed before me, that I might be convinced by the evidence of my own eyes, what a contemptible little country I came from. I shall never forget the gravity with which on the latter occasion, a gentleman drew out his graduated pencil-case and showed me past contradiction that the whole of the British dominions did not equal in size one of their least important states, nor the air with which after the demonstration, he placed his feet upon the chimney piece, considerably higher than his head, and whistled Yankee Doodle."

"I put away an approval card on which there were a half-dozen early United States in fine shape, for which I paid according to the price marks, $42. The stamps were bought in May, 1917, and the card was carelessly placed in an Italian dictionary that I happened to consult at the time. The book was replaced on the shelf and the stamps were lost to me for over five years. I have just found them and the joy of the discoverer is mine. I surely would have to pay just twice $42 for these stamps today." Thus does the story have a happy ending.

A writer in Madrid Filatelico in discussing the postal curiosities of Spain divides his study into three parts, the first of which he calls counterfeits of postage stamps proper and the second, fiscals used as postage stamps; while the third falls to foreign stamps used in Spain. The author says that examples of the first division are most numerous and were recognized officially as having been discovered in Granada in the beginning of 1853. This certainly is an early date. It will be seen that the Spanish counterfeits designed to defraud the government are a subject to command the attention of the student, as they are plentiful and "some of them are such perfect imitations of the genuine stamps that it is very difficult to distinguish between the real and the forged stamps."

A dealer tells us that all stamps are going well and that within a week he has had calls for the native Indian stamps which are not generally regarded as best sellers. His price for these stamps was 50% off, if the buyer attended to the classifying but 25% if the dealer was to catalogue and mark the varieties. The 25% off proposition was accepted.

Mr. Roy Richardson, Brooklyn, N. Y., who is in the postal service seems to know what he is talking about and he tells why even the small places that are not on the big maps may use the "Address your mail to street and number," postmark to advantage. Hear him: "The people living in very small towns rarely write letters among themselves. In fact, it is unnecessary for them to do so, as they usually meet each other daily. The bulk of their correspondence is addressed to friends and relatives, residing some distance away, very frequently in the large cities. The simple rustics often overlook the fact that the postmaster of such cities are not personally acquainted with the identity and location of a vast majority of the inhabitants thereof. Consequently, when they address letters to such persons and leave out the street and number, it is impossible to deliver such mail and it is returned to writer with the warning on the postmark of their home town, thus gradually bringing about the education of the public. I can vouch for the fact that hundreds of letters are received daily in every large city, without having the street and number indicated thereon and that the greater part of such mail is found in the pouches picked up at fourth-class towns and bearing addresses such as 'Thomas Foley, Dublin, Ireland,' or 'Mary Jane Smith, Chicago, Ill.'"

Every three months we receive the quarterly of the Collectors Club, New York City, the Collectors' Club Philatelist and take pride in the fact that a publication of the merit of this quarterly is the sign manual of the real philatelic club of America. We remember how the news of the establishing of a club-house for philatelists in America was a topic of congratulatory conversation when some decades ago, the New York collectors brought their dream of an institution of the kind to reality. Like many enterprises that become pre-eminently successful in time, the Collectors Club has experienced a chill wind or two among the sustaining breezes that blew, year by year. The present well-being of the Collectors Club is a warrant of its useful activity and we feel that the publication committee, Messrs. Chittenden and Lindquist have extended the fair fame of the club in a way to do themselves proud.

From Mr. A. H. Robertson, Chase City, Va., we have received an illustrated "parody of the auctioneer's description of the 1869 issue," in the form of the seventeen stamps current, perforated 11, which run the gamut from bad to the superlative absolute of bad. Mr. Robertson says that his description will fit the awful condition of the stamps when this set becomes "the idol of the future." We think that it is just as well that stamp auctioneers curb their idealism when they are cataloguing the lots as it is known that auctioneers in other lines are rather prone to favor the buyer, who is a prospect as a steady customer, rather than the seller who is done with the dealer when his stamps are scattered. The man who will lose two dollars of tomorrow to get one dollar today is foolish.

THE UNUSUAL STAMP.

The post-office department tells the blic that the members of the American istory class of Shepherd College, State ormal School at Shepherdstown, W. a., has asked that the department issue 3-cent stamp, this denomination having len abandoned recently.

Twenty-six members of the class sign e petition and give thirteen reasons y the stamp should be issued, which e summed up in the assertion that the istory of the country is bound up with e figure 13, wherefore the stamp should created. They set forth the fact that merica was discovered by Columbus on e evening of the 13th, an assertion hich will involve them with the Klan; at the original republic had 13 states; at the original flag had 13 stars and stripes; that the national motto con- ns 13 letters; that the first word to ss over the Atlantic cable was sent on e 13th; that there were 13 ships in the st navy and, to get down to recent ents, that General Pershing reached ance on June 13, 1917.

There are other reasons, but the thir- nth is that it would cost no more to ke a 13-cent stamp than any other. e studious young people go a step ther in their memorial, for they sub- t several designs for the stamp which y crave. So far as we can see, only e objection can be raised against their rteen reasons and that is that no de- nd exists for the stamp.

NEWS FROM CENTRAL EUROPE.

By A. KOECHLIN.

The 1st of December the Swiss "Pro Juventute" stamps will again make their appearance. As in former years they'll be for sale during the month of December only, but they'll have franking value till the 30th of April. They are available for foreign mail.

The set consists this year of four values, series of arms continued, 5+5 canton Zug, 10+5 canton Friburg, 20+5 canton Lucerne, 40+10 Switzerland, historical frame, to the left Duke Leopold III of Austria, to the right Arnold Winkelried the Swiss national hero, both participants of the battle of Sempach.

The league of nations has now a set of stamps of its own. It took quite a while till it got so far. The committee of finances had numerous seances and finally decided to induce Switzerland to French post-offices for economical reasons.

Beginning of October the color of the 25c was changed. It is now carmine in accordance with color standard of the postal union.

The steady depreciation of the German Mark calls for all possible means to cut down the disparity between income and expenditures. The postage rates were therefore steadily increased, old values dropped, new ones introduced, some of which scarcely issued were of no use any more, like for instance the 75pf numeral.

The Germania type is now done away with entirely and may be noted as obsolete. The sale of stamps of this type was stopped Oct. the 1st, the franking value lasted till the end of the month.

As the lowest rate is now 1 Mark for issue a set of special design for propaganda purposes of the league and at the same time to reduce the postage rates. As the league's 'yearly mail' expenses hardly reached the modest sum of 50,000 frs, Switzerland could not accede to their demands. Finally an arrangement was made to overprint the 11 lower values of the current Swiss issue. This, however, with the clear understanding that the overprinted stamps were exclusively to be used for franking the official mail of the league and not to be marketed.

At the December session of the league which coincided with the philatelic exhibition at Geneva numerous applications from both parties were made to withdraw the restriction. The arrangement was modified in the way that sets may be furnished to applicants, but only cancelled ones. None in mint condition in order to prevent fraudulent imitations of the overprint.

These stamps overprinted "Société des Nations" whether postally used or merely cancelled to oblige will therefore all bear the postmark "Geneva I" on the top, "Société des Nations" on the bottom, date of shipment in the center.

Postally used on cover these stamps will be rather scarce, as already mentioned the League's yearly expenses for mail amount hardly to 50,000 frs. no deduction made of the part mailed at inland printings there is no use any more for the lower values of the numeral type. The printing of these is stopped.

Before long the stamps of the coal miner type will be also a feature of the past and there will be left only the small sized posthorn and larger numeral types. Values of 5, 6, 8, 20 and 30 marks have been issued in the 1st one, 50 and 100 marks in the last one. All, but the 100 mark (printed on the old lozenge watermark paper) have chicken wire watermark.

Austria has issued values of all kinds of denomination and realized up to date 62 values postage, dues and newspaper stamps in 1922 (the highest value being 2,000kr) and now it undertakes a new raid on the pocketbook of philatelists, issuing a set of 5 airmail stamps (300, 600, 900, 1,200, 2,400kr.) just 8 days before the airmail service was stopped.

Nearly all the European airmail lines have discontinued their service during the winter months.

Italy after all her commemoratives plans the issue of an entirely new set of postage stamps, 14 of the most prominent artists have been invited to submit sketches. There will be two sizes of stamps, size of the current stamps with the king's head and larger sized ones for reproductions of Italian monuments and masterpieces of art.

As we recall it, the 13-cent stamp came into being when, during the war, the letter rate was raised from 2 to 3 cents, for this act created a demand for a stamp 10 cents in excess of the ordinary letter rate, as with it at hand the fee for registry or special delivery could be covered in with the postage by the use of one stamp instead of two. Then, a use for the stamp was obvious, as there is now for its mulberry-colored brother, the 12-cent issue, but when the letter rate dropped to 2 cents, the 13-cent stamp was left high and dry.

Still, if the twice-thirteen students in Shepherdstown, W. Va., feel that their future is likely to be blighted without this stamp, the post-office department should give the matter careful consideration and examine the designs which the twenty-six have submitted. — Hartford Courant.

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—Several months back I described in this column certain plates of the 1c denomination turned out by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing in accordance with a patent granted Mr. G. U. Rose, Jr. Since then we have referred to these as the Rose electrolytic plates because of the method by which they were produced. Stamps from these plates could only be told from those produced in the regular manner, with difficulty, but Mr. L. G. Barrett now calls my attention to distinguishing marks which stand out very clearly.

In the case of the Rose variety the back of Washington's head is separated from the dark background by a well defined white line which follows the contour of the back of the head. The left line of the queue just above the ribbon stops before it reaches the ribbon so that there is the effect of a white spot at this point. In the case of the right ribbon over the right figure we have a large white space, then three vertical lines.

In the plates produced in the regular manner the back of the head tend to merge into the background and the white line is not present. The left line in the queue runs to the ribbon around the hair although fine. In the right ribbon above the right figure we have first a single vertical line, then a space and then the three vertical lines. The differences stand out very clearly when the two are examined together. The Rose variety exists in both imperforate and perforated 11 condition.

Mr. J. William Harmon sends for inspection a very odd 2c pane from the southeast corner of plate 13672, wherein the vertical perforations are diagonal instead of straight up and down.

The Economist Stamp Company informs us that they have acquired the very fine Baer collection of Baltimore which contained among its unusual items a block of four of the 5c 1847 on the entire cover, a strip of four of the 5c 1851, a number of the 1c 1851, including some very unusual pieces and combinations, a fine lot of the 1857 besides quite a fine lot of late things.

Mr. H. E. Deats sends for inspection a first class mail letter posted under a permit by the Dairymen's League of Ithica, N. Y. The denomination is 2c, in red and the permit is number 3.

The Annual Report of the Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, has just been distributed and as usual contains much of interest to the philatelist. During the 12 months nearly 130,000,000 sheets of stamps, nearly 40,000,000 booklets and over 4,000,000 coils of stamps were issued, totalling 14,380,912,117 separate and individual stamps. Of this quantity 150 sheets were of the $5.00 green 1916 series, 5 sheets were the bi-color $5.00, 47,925 sheets were aeroplane stamps, while the Pilgrim stamps total 17,603 sheets over half of which were the 5c denomination.

In the case of the Shanghai overprints, the total deliveries from the Bureau amounted to 257,000 stamps. Of the 50c and $1.00 4,000 each were delivered, while the quantities of the other denominations varied from this figure to 55,000, which were the number of the 1 and 2c stamp issued.

There was delivered to the Philippine Islands 42,585,280 stamps, of which nearly 32,000,000 were the 2c centavo denomination. Of the peso values only 100,000 of each were sent to the Islands. A total of 783 stamps was furnished to the Universal Postal Union and 2,404 stamps, which were in most cases a pane of each denomination, were delivered to the Third Assistant Postmaster General for use in connection with the Brazilian Exhibition.

The latter part of November the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. held an auction sale of stamps and sold several lots that were of unusual interest. Fine blocks of 40 each of the 50c, $1.00 and $2.00 Omahas in mint condition, brought $112.50, $210.00 and $535.00 respectively, each block had margin and plate numbers. A sheet of the Providence Postmaster changed hands at $64.00 while 1847 5c on cover sold from $10.00 up to $65.00 which was the price paid for a horizontal pair on cover cancelled "PAID" in green, with a green postmark of "Princess Ann, Md.," on cover. A copy of the 30c 1860 imperf. mint, but slightly creased with small margins, sold at $205.00. A superb copy of the 90c 1857 used with red gridiron cancellation found a new owner at $51.00. U. S. stamps generally including envelopes brought very fair prices.

AUSTRIA.—Copies of a new denomination arrive from our Vienna correspondent, Mr. Paul Fabian, and from Messrs. Whitfield King & Co., viz.:—Issued November 11th, 1922, Ear of Wheat Type, Perf. 12½; 400 kronen blue-green.

Mr. Fabian also sends us two entires posted from Vienna to Budapest, on the 5th and 8th inst. respectively, franked with the Air Mail stamps chronicled a fortnight ago. Both have a special cancellation—in one case in Magyar, reading "LESI POSTAVAL ERKEZETT" (Arrived by Air Post), and in the other in German, reading "FLUG AUSGEFALLEN" (Not sent by Air Post). —Stamp Collecting.

BELGIUM.—Mr. Henry Hooreman sends us the 30c rose red, postage due stamp in the new type.

BRITISH GUIANA.—In our last issue for December, 1921, we chronicled the arrival in the Colony of the 1c, 12c and 24c on new Script CA paper and the 96c on new yellow Mult. CA paper. Since that date the 4c has arrived in the Colony, and the 6c, 72c and a fresh supply of the 12c are now on order. Further, we chronicled the issue of the 2c and 24c on Script paper on November 15th, 1921. Since that date only the 12c has been put on sale; this took place on May 15th. We expect the 1c to be put on sale momentarily and the 4c at an early date, but the 96c is still lying i the tinlined case unopened. No new 2 4c and 6c stamps have been ordered i the modified colours—brown, grey, an ultramarine, under the Universal Colou Scheme. This is strange, seeing tha nearly all the British Colonies and Aus tralia have already changed the colour of the 1d, 2d and 3d denominations. W were under the impression that the de cisions of the International Postal Unio were binding on all members of th Union.

It may not be generally known that th G. P. O. holds a large stock of booklet of 1c and 2c stamps of the 1907 issu each containing twelve of 1c and eightee of 2c. These booklets have never bee popular and the gum has lost all its ad hesive properties Reference has been made in the phila telic press to the discovery of a defect o the top frame line of the British Guian 12c Script CA. The top thick line i not continuous but broken over the let ters "ISH" of British into two thin lines with the space between them withou colour. This, however, is not a defec of printing, but the condition of the de sign. It is found in every stamp of th 12c value from the first issue. There is however, a defect in the first plate, whic appears on one stamp only on eac pane; this defect is a small scratch re sembling a full stop in the shading of th lower part of the King's neck—its posi tion is No. 3 of the right pane. Thi has evidently been corrected long ago —British Guiana Philatelic Journal.

Mr. R. Roberts sends us the 6c ultra marine, watermarked script.

CEYLON.—Mr. R. Roberts informs u of the 50c black and carmine now bein issued on the script watermarked paper

DUTCH INDIES.—Mr. A. W. Dunning and Prof. M. Loewy have sent for chron icle a set of ten values of the curren set with the surcharge "3de N. I. JAAR BEURS" on the left side and "BAN DOENG 1922" on the right. The fol lowing values are thus overprinted: 1c 2c, 2½c red, 3c brown, 4c, 5c green, 7½ drab and 10c lilac. The 12½c on 22½c orange, bears the surcharge in black a the right side in much smaller type while the 17½c and the 20c blue are overprinted above the "Nederl-In die." Mr. Dunning also calls our atten tion to the 32½c on 50c in which the spacing is much closer than the ordinary type. The "2" in the ½ is on the top obliterating line. The surcharged stamps were issued at Bandoeng, Java, where the exposition was held for about three weeks and were sold for twice face value value.

391 STRAND, LONDON, ENGLAND.

FEDERATED MALAY STATES.—Our Sing-ore correspondent, Dr. Tan Bin iang, kindly submits copies of the ript 12 and 35 cents values (already ronicled in these columns), pointing t that the former is obviously printed m worn plates, as in several speci-ns the "T" in "POSTAGE" reads "I" .g. "POSIAGE"). As previously in-cated, this particular value, as well as e 35c was printed from Plates 3 and 4 ien put through the press on the Script per.

Incidentally, our Bangkok correspond-t, Mr. Chan Chin Joo, writes:—"Be-ee the new 35c, which has been issued ecially for use on telegrams, a new 3: stamp is also now on sale. This lat-t stamp is blue, the same colour as the 1:. This 12c is meant to replace the 10c, hich, in turn, replaced the 8c, and is for e principally on foreign letters, the post-ge on which was at one time 8c, then 1:, and is now 12c."—Stamp Collecting.

LITHUANIA.—Mr. S. Hyman advises t it the 2 auk of the current issue has en surcharged in the centre "10" with t word "Cento" below. The overprint in black and Mr. Hyman adds that t word "Cento" is probably the Lith-nian form of the French "Centime."

MAURITIUS.—Mr. R. Roberts sends us t following new items from this ony; 6c purple, arms type; 10c grey, ns type; 12c red, King George type; 2 blue, arms type, all on script water-rked paper.

Just now we particularly want singles, 1857, either on or off cover, and will pay pairs, strips of the 10c stamps of 1851 and more than catalog for those we can use. [H

J. O. MOORE, INC., RHEIMS, N. Y

MEMEL.—Mr. J. L. Riedel advises that although the Air Service was stopped Oct. 18th a new set of ten stamps surcharged "Luftpost" has been issued.

NEW ZEALAND.—Mr. William M. McFarlan calls attention to the appearance of a new metered mail stamp for Wellington. It is similar in appearance to the last one noted and is printed in red with the black Wellington machine cancellation.

1898 PROP. CANCELLATIONS.

By FRANKLIN S. SMITH.

The J. Ellwood Lee Co. cancellations are also attractive and the number of true varieties is smaller with no minor ones other than perforation, although oddities and freaks are many. There are thirty-six printed varieties, including a set of six inverts of 1900, and a set with no dates, on all of the twelve values, evidently essays. Previous to the monogram cancellations hand-stamps were used and also printed cancellations with various dates and different fonts of type during July, 1898.

Of the dates on the private dies of the Emerson Drug Co., there are at least seventy on the ¼c, thirty-nine on the ⅝c, thirty-eight on the 1¼c, and thirty-eight on the 2½c. The only other private dies bearing printed cancellations are those of Lanman & Kemp. Thirty-two on ⅝c, six on 1¼c and twenty-four on 1⅞c. There are also hand-stamped cancellations on the ⅝c and 1¼c regular issue, and on all three private dies.

Dr. Jayne & Son used four distinct types of printed cancellation. Type I has Roman letters and figures; Type II, heavy, ornamented letters and figures; Type III, tall letters and small figures; Type IV, hair-line letters and figures. There are many varieties of each caused by using initials of one type and figures of another. All of the first three types are found on the same pane, showing that the printer used several fonts in setting up the form. There are also many varieties with figures from still other fonts inserted in the dates here and there, and several varieties with a capital I instead of a figure 1, and also a 9 from a heavier faced font. A curious variety is found on Type IV 9, 1, '99, ⅛c, ¼c and ⅜c. The ⅛c is roulette, and the ¼ and ⅜c are hyphen-hole perf. which was not done until after December, 1899. They therefore must have been "back-dated" for some reason known to the proprietors. As in almost all the cancellations of large users of the stamps, there are missing letters and punctuation marks, doubles, and inverts.

The cancellations of G. H. Mumm & Co., made in January, February, and March, 1902, were due to the fact that the tax on wines did not cease until June 30, 1902, when the entire War Revenue was repealed.

The majority of the 4c stamps were used by the makers of chewing-gum who affixed the stamps to the large packages sold to the dealers. The ⅛c T. B. D. CO. was used on "Sen Sen Gum" and the 2c in pairs bear that name in a type-written cancellation.

The R. C. Co. cancellations were used on "RIPANS Tablets," the letters being the initials of the ingredients used. Rhubarb, Ipecac, Peppermint, Aloes, Nux Vomica, Soda.

The ⅛c value with a printed BIG 4 is not a "proprietary" one, but an advertisement of four Philatelic publications, sent out in September, 1899. A card had the following inscription:

If you want to SELL your
BIG 4
ADVERTISE IN THE

BIG 4 {
The Perforator.
The Herald Exchange.
The Philatelic Bulletin.
The New York Philatelist.

The unused stamp was affixed to the card before printing and cancelled at the same time as the body of the card. An ornamental frame surrounds the stamp in various colors, and there are three varieties of cancellation.

The largest number of varieties used by any one firm is that of Keasbey & Mattison Co. Seventy-eight dates, numbering over one thousand distinct varieties, including inverts and doubles, beside two hundred or more minor varieties, such as misplaced and omitted periods and commas, and typographical errors. There are over one hundred hand-stamped varieties bearing the same dates during the four years.

It is interesting to note that cancellations of many of the previous issues of proprietary stamps are found on this issue, and forty-four of those who had their private medicine and perfumery dies during the Civil War period of taxation used the latter. All the owners of the private dies of 1898 used them with the exception of Branca Bros.

Information concerning the 1898 Proprietaries will be gladly given by the writer, and correspondence is invited from all collectors of these cancellations. Address Coles & 18th Streets, Jersey City, N. J.—Precancel Gazette.

THE VALUE OF THE STAMP CATALOGUE.

By L. H. BRIGHAM.

Did you know that there is a "Standard Catalogue of the Stamps of the World," which is issued nearly every year and which lists every postage stamp that has ever been issued by any country in the world, from the beginning of stamps in 1840 up to the time of issue of the catalogue? This "Standard Catalogue" is kept perpetually up-to-date as regards the hundreds of new stamps which are constantly appearing by the issuing of monthly supplements until the next complete, revised edition appears the following year. The values of a great many of these thousands of different stamps are constantly increasing as the stamps become scarcer. All of these price changes are shown in these monthly supplements and in each new complete catalogue.

If one has two or three scattered stamps belonging to a certain set or issue and wants to know how many he lacks to complete the set, of what denominations the missing ones are, how much he will have to pay for those he lacks, and what is the value of the ones which he does have, the catalogue answers all of these questions and many more.

Suppose we have a certain one-penny stamp from Barbados on which we desire to get all possible information. We turn to the "B's" and locate Barbados on page 130 (all countries are arranged alphabetically and indexed in this manner in the back of the book for quick location, by page numbers). We find out first that Barbados is a British Colony located in the West Indies. The stamp we are looking up is a very picturesque, bi-colored variety (printed in several colors) and has the picture of a vessel under full sail as the principal item of design. The name, "The Olive Blossom," appears beneath the vessel.

The illustration of this stamp is very quickly located three pages farther on, directly following the 1905 issue and just preceding the 1907 issue. The reference number beneath the illustration is A-11. We locate this reference directly beneath the illustration and find the stamp described in detail.

A little study of the stamp itself also supplies us with some very probable additional information. We find the date 1605 on one side of the stamp and 1905 on the opposite side, The Olive Blossom being in the center of the stamp, between the two dates.

From 1605 to 1905 is a period of three hundred years. Therefore 1905 is the tercentenary celebration of some significant or important event which greatly concerns the people of Barbados.

We learned in school that it was at different periods from 1600 to 1620 that the islands of the West Indies, as well as what is now America, were first settled by our ancestors from across the sea, and it is therefore a very natural and not a very unlikely conclusion to arrive at that the vessel, the Olive Blossom, holds the same significance for the people of the Barbados that the Mayflower and the date 1620 holds for Americans. In other words, we finally decide that the Olive Blossom must have been the vessel which brought the original settlers of the Barbados to that island.

The border design about the sides of the stamp consists of upright trees, at the foot of which luxuriant palms are flourishing. This tells us that vegetation in the Barbados is evidently of the tropical variety. We also find the words "Postage" and "Revenue" on the stamp, which means that the stamp could be used for revenue purposes as well as for postage. (This is true of the majority of the British Colonial stamps).

The 1922 edition consists of over 1,300 pages, and any collector can obtain this book from any stamp dealer in the United States for $1.50.—The Haversack.

The Stamp Follies of 1922

"A little foolishment now and then, is relished by the best of Philatelists."

VOL. I, No. 2. CONDUCTED BY SILAS WEATHERBY, PH. P. DEC. 16, 1922.

Editorial.

Contributions to this dept. are now in order, so if you can shake a humorous self filler don't be backward about coming forward with your best efforts, either prose or poetry as you may elect.

They say, that he who can grow a smile where a smile never grew before deserves credit, therefore, as we want to grow miles of smiles, we must have lots of credit-ors.

Tickling the funny-bone has been the means of putting many big things over, and it will help to make Philately more attractive and boost our hobby, so please remember this—

If you can't be a pine on the top of the hill,
Be a scrub in the valley—but be
The best little scrub by the side of the rill;
Be a bush, if you can't be a tree.
If you can't be a sun, be a star—
Be the best little booster whatever you are.

Luke McGluke Goes On a Stamp Hunt.

Hank Hawkins who lives just over the hill from me here in Slippery Hollow is a stamp collector. Hank has been gatherin adhesives since before Henry Ford discovered Detroit, and he is a funny cuss, believe me, a stamp catalogue would be as much Greek to him as the Bible would to a Hotentot. Hank he dont believe in buyin stamps at Auction sales or from Dealers like most of us fellers does, he sez its a durn sight more excitin to go huntin fur them in their hidin places, so when Hank aint playin Barn-yard golf he's generaly snoopin around in the out of the way places always hopin, and always thinkin that some day he will make a BIG FIND like he has been dreamin about for the last thirty year.

Some times I think that he can smell um cuz he sure does find a lot of them. but so far Hank hasn't made that Big Find. Now Hank has one of them Detroit Stem Wind Models, got it third hand to start with, and has spent the price of a Packard I guess keepin it in shape to run at all, but Hank is sure some proud of this Gas Bath Tub, he calls it his little PUDDLE JUMPER, why just the other day he bought it a new Bonnet and a set of Shock Exterminators as he calls 'um.

About every new moon Hank gets a hunch or a clue of some kind to some old U S Stamps that are hidin out from him and when he gets the fever nothin can stop him, no siree.

The other day Hank came over to my place all excited, Say Luke sez he, do you want to take a ride with me out east aways, I just got wind of a big bunch of Civil War Revenues on the 'riginal dockyments, a whole trunk full, one of them thare hair kivered ones sez Hank, his eyes bulgin out of his head.

Sure thing, Sez I, hopin he's tellin the truth, so I climbed in and we set sail out Oak Lane makin more noise than an Airy-Plane trying to climb over a cloud. We hadn't gone much more than a mile when I smelt a funny oder, so I looked and saw that Hank had his shoes on, so I sez Hank, What do you burn in this Go-As-You-Please? Half an Half sez Hank, lookin straight ahead. Excuse me, Sez I, It smells like Cod Liver Oil. She aint hitting very good sez Hank, Well she aint missin much sez I hangin on with both hands and my teeth. Oh shes a rattlin good car sez Hank, I hear she is sez I, but why dont you buy a silencer for it. I would sez Hank only she's got the In-Flu-End-Ways, I hope she flies side-ways sez I cuz I got a cinder in my eye now. I think the clutch is slippin sez Hank, So is my Adams apple sez I, tryin to swallow the darn thing. Well, we didn't go much further before we came to a big brick farm house settin way back from the road, This is the place sez Hank, hoppin out. Alright sez I climbin out as fast as I could.

Now it seems that the people that lived here was a sort of second cousins to his wifes aunt and had lived in this same house for the last 50 years or more, and always had had lots of kale and owned a great deal of land, and like most of the early settlers never threw anything away on purpose. So as Hank was sort of a relation I let him do the talkin and he could do it believe me.

After explainin what we was there for, the old man took us out to an old shed that had a loft to it and sure enuf there was the old hair covered trunk.

I was gettin excited about this time cuz I could see 5 and 10c—47s a dancin before my eyes, in pairs and strips on cover too, but from the wild look I seen in Hanks eye's I guess he was seein St. Louis Bares or somthin like 'um. But as the trunk was locked we decided to take it down and outside to open it, which operation I figured would'nt take long from the way Hank was a breethin, and I was usein only one lung myself I guess.

Hank got busy with a crow bar and it was only a minute that seemed like an hour to me before she popped open, and what a sight it was, I have seen some curious sights but I never saw anything that beat this I'll tell the world.

There they was, a whole trunk full of old letters and legal dockyments and you could see that they had lots of stamps stuck on them, sometime. but right down in the center of that old hair covered trunk was the most enticin, niftiest, and comfortable rats nest that I ever saw, and there was'nt so much as a 3c 57. in the whole trunk that was worth keepin. Hank was so darned mad that he stepped on Lizzies tail all of the way home.

FUNALLY.

THE POET'S CORNER

The New Catalog.

Once upon a midnight dreary while I pondered weak and weary
Over many a bulging stockbook of the stamps I'd bought before.
While I wished that I were napping, suddenly there came a rapping
As of someone gently tapping, tapping on my office door
'Tis some bug on stamps, I muttered,
only this and nothing more.

Oh distinctly I remember it was in the mild November
When I realized I'd been bitten as I never was before.
Then the catalog appearing a dread time that we'd been fearing Wondering of the news it carried, of the stock we bought of yore;
Would they, rise to heights untold of,
as they'd often done before;
This I thot and nothing more.

But on now the pages turning, colored pictures not worth burning Lifted up their faces to me where good stamps had been before.
How they grinned and gibbered at me! dragons smirked and shimmered at me,
Saying where's the yen and paso's that you should have had once more?
While outside the tapping, tapping was increased and nothing more,
Only this and nothing more.

'Tis some customer, I muttered, who had tho't his bread was buttered
And had hoped the stamps I sold him would increase for evermore.
Now he hastens to demand that I take them off his hand,
Or upon my head he'll land with a brick and nothing more,
A brick taken from my floor.

But on opening wide the portal, I beheld a fellow mortal
Who was stung as bad as I was and was certainly sore.
Won't you take these from my stock for a quarter of a rock?
Use them as you would gummed stickers or for papering your store?
Won't you take a few mint copies, priced as never priced before?
With the dealer, nevermore.

THE COLLECTOR.

By STEPHEN G. RICH.

You can't differentiate psychologically etween the collector of stamps, the ollector of insects and the collector of ollars. It is pretty well agreed that e have two innate or instinctive ten- encies among many others. These are alled acquisition and possession and ollecting and hoarding. I venture to y that there is hardly one individual a hundred who does not form around iese instincts the habit and the liking or some form of collecting. With some iese are weak; with some circumstances revent a high degree of development; ith some the collection takes the form f accumulating a bank balance and ecurities, and so forth.

The various kinds of collecting are so all akin, in that in pursuing the bjects to which habit has attached the wo instincts involved the happy col- ctor is bound to pick up a lot of infor- ation—possibly useful. As a collector the postage stamp line acquires a wide range of facts as to geography and as to historical persons, so does a collector of dragon flies acquire a knowledge of geography, the history of exploration, the museums of the world and the like. The collector of wealth gets practical knowledge from his financial work.

When we come to the educational implications, however, there is general muddlement, indeed. It is taken for granted that because a collector of beetles learns to arrange his collection in orderly fashion that therefore he has learned order and neatness. But there is not a shadow of evidence to show that order or neatness transfer from a cabinet of insects to the care of the clothing, or from a stamp collection to the writing of letters, or from a coin collection to keeping one's room neat and orderly.

It is also taken for granted that one learns observation by the pursuit of collecting. Maybe. But here again the educationalist asks: "Observation of what kind of things?" Observation is not a general power at all, but is a number of rather definite sets of habits and sets of directings of attention. I venture to say that there is not one stamp collector in ten who has, because of his observation learned on stamps, ever noticed more accurately how the hoops on the tanks on top of most business buildings are arranged. I venture to say that the collector of wealth, keen in observing wealth to be collected, and observing well the amount he can get in any given situation, is not thereby rendered one bit more accurate in observing the results of different kinds of tires in preventing autos from skidding on wet days.

I am a collector, I enjoy collecting. I have learned hundreds of useful facts from my collecting. But it was not until I had become a collector of several different things, and had been at them each for some years, that I found myself developing any general habits of order and observation—and then these were only the adding together of the habits I had learned from collecting stamps, street-car transfers, postmarks, dragon flies, herbarium specimens and libraries on two other subjects.—N. Y. Times.

A WORD ABOUT CONTRACTS.

It may not be generally known that we write contracts for special blocks of space to be used during one year. While our three-in-one contract is a very convenient one for those who wish to use space regularly and economically, we write contracts for 3,000 4,000 and 5,000 lines, space to be used within a year. These special rates are as follows:—

3000 lines at 16c per line, $480.00
4000 lines at 14c per line, $560.00
5000 lines at 12½c per line, $625.00

We require that two-thirds of the space shall be used during the first six months and our reason for this is obvious.

We take pleasure in announcing that the Stamp Shoppe of Washington, D. C., has just signed a 3000-line contract, thus testifying to the power of the WEEKLY in producing business. Bertrand L. Drew, who has been using a 3000-line contract during the past year, has just renewed his contract for the coming year.

THE CHOICE STAMPS OF BRITISH GUIANA.

By A. D. FERGUSON, in the British Guiana Philatelic Journal.

The recent dispersal in Paris of many of the rarities of British Guiana stamps from the Ferrari Collection, brings to light numbers of these stamps which had been hidden away for decades, the existence of some had even been forgotten. They have in fact been re-found and let us hope be more available for study.

The story of the wonderful finds of these stamps and their marvelous rise in value is one of the romances of stamp collecting.

British Guiana is one of the most famous stamp-issuing countries in the world. More rarities have emanated from this small colony than from any other. Further they were all issued in the early days of the postage stamp before anyone had conceived the idea of collecting, and are therefore pure and free from any suspicion whatever. Although not possessing the artistic merits of the Mauritius "Post Office," these crude, primitive stamps of 1850, commonly called "cotton reels," are looked upon with great pride by collectors who are fortunate enough to possess any.

There are early records of persons accumulating quantities of the English penny stamps for such odd purposes as papering rooms, etc., but it was not until the sixties that we find any authentic records of stamp collecting on the lines that we now recognise as philately—the collection of the postage issues of all stamp issuing countries and their systematic arrangement. During the following decade, the pursuit had gained considerable ground and we find there were collectors in all parts of the world. It was during the earliest period, the sixties, that collecting was begun in this colony. One of the earliest collectors was Mr. Alpin Grant (Hope and Experiment, Berbice) who collected in a Lallier album in 1863, or earlier, many others must have collected in these early years but there is no record of it. In the seventies the more prominent were, J. Tengely, N. R. McKinnon, Captain E. MacLeod, B. V. Abraham, jnr., J. T. Whitehead, C. Cox, the Kings, W. Pickel, J. Rodway, L. V. Vaughan, C. G. A. Wyatt, M. Garnett, later came J. W. Dorman, E. C. Luard, W. A. Abraham, B. H. Jones, Archdeacon Josa and numbers of others.

Up to about 1876 very few of the early Guianas were known. Dr. P. J. Anderson, of Aberdeen, remembers exchanging an 1850, 8c green in 1865 for stamps to the value of 7/6. Ten years later it is recorded that P. L. Pemberton obtained £84 for two of the circulars on thin paper. Evidently these comparatively large sums obtained, together with the advertisements of English dealers in the local newspapers, acted as an incentive to searchers for stamps. The result was that many searches were made from 1876 on, among private letters, in banks, merchants' offices, Government offices, etc., as opportunity offered, with the result that hundreds of the early issues were found. In some cases these searches were made, without permission, by clerks, office-boys, etc., and were promptly sold on the spot. Messrs. N. R. McKinnon, C. G. A. Wyatt and M. Garnett were the chief purchasers at that time, for whom these large finds passed into the hands of English dealers. Mr. L. V. Vaughan, who was fortunate in finding a large number of these stamps at this time remembers selling them at a uniform price of $5 each, irrespective of denomination or issue. A fair price in those days for the cheaper values, as S. Gibbons' catalogue for 1882 prices the 1850 12c at 40s, the 1852 1c and 4c at 20s and 30s and the 1856, 4c at 80s.

It must be remembered that the earliest issues of British Guiana were not available for postage abroad, which was defrayed by British stamps. Not until 1860, when the Imperial Government handed over the administration of postal affairs to the British Guiana Government, were British Guiana stamps available for postage abroad. For this purpose the 1860 issue was made. In this connection, an article in another part of this number on "Anthony Trollope and his Postal Mission" is instructive.

It was therefore natural that the issues of the colony prior to 1860 were practically unknown to persons abroad and even to collectors in the colony. This accounts for the mystery that enshrouded them up to recent dates. But for the careful and systematic filing away of old correspondence by many old residents the comparatively small number now in existence would have been lost to philatelists.

Stamp collecting in the early days was in a very primitive condition. The rarities were there but condition and mounting was of very little importance, hence our finding so many rare stamps torn, trimmed, and in many cases gummed in the Lallier or Oppens album. Sometimes the stamps had become so brittle from the chemical effect of the mucilage used that the slightest effort to remove them from the page broke the stamp in pieces.

1850 ISSUE.

This issue which comprises the 4c yellow, 8c green and 12c blue, circulars, were found by the dozens in the late seventies and eighties. The highest value being the most plentiful of these rarities, this would be accounted for by the fact that the bulk of correspondence was between the two chief towns, Georgetown and New Amsterdam, the postage rate between which was 12 cents.

They are all scarce stamps, but their value largely depends on their condition, and this was greatly emphasised at the two Paris sales where superb specimens fetched two and three times the catalogue value.

As examples, a 4c yellow, cut octagonally, made £130; a 4c orange, cut square, £222; an 8c green, cut square, £100, and a pair of the 12c blue, £302.

THE TWO CENTS ROSE OF 1851.

Only four single copies and three pairs of these great rarities are known.

Twenty-six years elapsed after its issue before a single specimen of this stamp was discovered. Then they were viewed with a certain amount of suspicion, as there was no record whatever of a postal rate under 4 cents. It was not until 1890, thirty-nine years after issue, that Mr. J. Rodway came across a notice in the local newspaper establishing their authenticity. This Notice stated that on and after 1st March, 1851, there would be established a delivery of letters, twice daily, through the principal streets of the city. To pay for this convenience an extra stamp of the value of 2 cents was to be used.

This was the advent of our house to house delivery. Previously persons had to go to the Post Office to get letters. This delivery was discontinued very soon after, possibly from want of support, and the stocks of stamps were no doubt destroyed. It is strange that most of the surviving copies must have been used for the ordinary county 4c postage, as they have been found in pairs, and even the three singles are believed to have been originally used in this way.

The first copy of the two cents circular was found by Mr. N. R. McKinnon in 1877. This he sold to T. Ridpath, of Liverpool, from whom it passed into the Ferrari collection.

Later in this year three other copies were found. One was purchased by the late Judge Philbrick in 1878, for £20; the earliest recorded price in England for this rarity. This specimen, no doubt, also passed into the collection of Ferrari when he purchased Judge Philbrick's collection in 1880.

Of these four existing single specimens it is known that one copy at least is in the Ferrari collection and one in the British Museum while the location of the other two specimens are not known with certainty.

The rise in value is shown by the recorded sale in 1887 of a copy for £75, and in 1893 a specimen realized £210.

Twelve years elapsed before two more of these stamps were discovered. In the late eighties Mr. J. W. Dorman, late manager of the Demerara Railway Co., and Mr. E. C. Luard, then manager of the sugar plantation La Bonne Intention, both collectors, came in the field as purchasers of rare Guianas. The former had a long standing advertisement in the local newspaper offering to buy a copy of the 2c rose for $500, but he did not obtain one. Mr. Luard, on the other hand, had all the luck. He purchased all the existing pairs. Both these gentlemen had opportunities during the extension of the Demerara East Coast Railway to Berbice, to visit the various villages and estates along the coast, and made systematic enquiries for old stamps, with the result that they were rewarded by obtaining from several of the old residents many specimens of the early rare Guianas from 1850 to 1856.

The bulk of persons had not the slightest idea of the nature or value of these

£1,410 FOR FIRST PAIR.

In 1888 the first pair of 2c rose was unearthed and purchased by Mr. Luard. This came from Mr. T. M. Gordon as he recollects selling a pair of stamps to Mr. Luard about that time, or from Mrs. Barlow, also a resident of the Mahaica district, who sold many rare Guianas to Mr. Luard at this period. This pair, Mr. Luard disposed of to Pemberton, Wilson & Co., who sold it to Ferrari for £175 in 1889. It was a very poor specimen having a large triangular piece torn out of one stamp, as the illustration shows. This pair fetched £1,410 (60,000 francs plus 17½% tax) at the 2nd Ferrari Sale in October.

The second pair, illustrated above, was also purchased by Mr. Luard in 1896 from Archdeacon Josa for $1,005, re-sold to S. Gibbons at £600 for the late H. J. Duveen, who paid £650 for it. These figures I had from Mr. C. J. Phillips some 15 years ago.

It has been in the Duveen collection since 1896.

The romantic history of this find was described in an early number of this journal. Briefly told, Archdeacon Josa, the then Incumbent of Christ Church, Demerara, was raising funds for the church restoration, and an old lady, unable to give cash, sent a pair of the 4c "Patimus issue" which she found among her old letters. One Easter Monday, 1896, the Archdeacon wended his way to thank her for the gift which realized $30.60 (£7). Whilst there he enquired if she had any more old stamps. The old lady replied she had given all her stamps away, but produced an old basket filled with letters which he was asked to search, when lo! and behold, there tumbled out of the basket an envelope addressed Miss Rose, Blankenburg, with an unsevered pair of the 2c rose of 1851. The lady presented these stamps to the church and would not accept any portion of the amount realised. "Not a penny, Sir, these stamps are reserved for my dear old church."

This pair which is on the original letter sheet is addressed:

Miss Rose,
Blankenburg.

Blankenburg is the name of a plantation on the West Coast of Demerara.

£5.250 FOR A THIRD PAIR.

The third pair and the last found of these famous varieties was also acquired

THEODORE CHAMPION
PARIS 13 rue Drouot PARIS, FRANCE

by Mr. Luard. This is also on the original letter sheet. The address on this is:—

Edward Gordon, Esq.,
Pln. Good Hope.

The postmark on the two stamps which is clear and distinct is 25th November, 1851. Mr. Edward Gordon to whom this letter was addressed was at that period resident at Pln. Good Hope, a sugar estate near the Mahaica river, twenty-six miles from Georgetown. He died about 1861.

Mr. T. M. Gordon, his son, states so far as he can remember, it was in 1896 Mr. J. W. Dorman had a look through his stamp album and made an offer for it which was refused. A few months later the album disappeared and was never found, but the pair on the letter sheet by some good fortune was discovered later at the time he was clearing out bundles of his father's letters to be burnt, when miraculously it escaped destruction and was promptly sold to Mr. Luard. Mr. Gordon cannot remember the price paid nor does he appear to have placed much value on, or concern over these much desired stamps as he refers to the incident as "when they all went stamp mad."

Mr. Luard also sold this pair to S Gibbons for £650 and according to Mr. F. J. Melville in the Stamp Lover, "it then passed through several hands in Germany to a Russian nobleman, who, however, had to give up his collecting in 1899 on account of failing eyesight. P. Kohl, of Chemnitz, obtained it and sold it back to Messrs. Gibbons, who apparently sold it to Ferrari." Mr. C. J. Phillips writes me recently that he thinks his firm sold this pair to Ferrari for £1,450. At the first Ferrari sale in Paris on 23rd June, this great rarity, one of the most unique in the world, and the finest of the three existing pairs, was sold for the phenomenal sum of 210,000 francs, which, plus the French tax of 17½%, brought the price up to £5,250, exchange on that day being 47 to the pound. The new owner is Mons. Burrus, a French merchant of Mulhouse. This price exceeds by nearly three times the highest price ever paid for a single piece.

1852 Issue.

Next in order of issue comes the scarce oblong stamps printed by Waterlow & Sons, familiarly known as the "Patimus" issue. Numbers of these were found from time to time in the seventies and eighties and later. Of the two values, 1 cent and 4 cents, the latter is much scarcer.

Strips or blocks of these stamps are very rare and but few strips of four now exist in collections. At the Ferrari sale in June a strip of the 1 cent magenta was knocked down for £385 and a pair of the four cents blue for £208 Prices which appear to be very high.

The strip illustrated, which is on the original letter sheet, was discovered about 14 years ago, and passed through Archdeacon Josa's hands into my own collection.

The 1853 Issue.

We now come to the most plentiful of the scarce stamps of Guiana. This was the first issue of the Colony which can lay claim to the design and they are some of the best stamp-lithographic work of Waterlow & Sons. Like all early scarce stamps, pairs are scarce and strips and blocks are undoubtedly unique. At the Ferrari first sale single specimens used of the 1 cent vermilion, red, and brown-red, fetched £22, £25 and £34, respectively, and a superb vertical strip of 4 of the 1 cent red, made £140. The largest known block is one of 8 of the 1 cent vermilion.

With stamps which have been found in comparatively large numbers and are of minor rarity, it is impossible, nor is it desirable, to trace the discovery back to the source.—Stamp Coll. Fortnightly.

THE OFFICIAL POSTAGE STAMPS OF GREAT BRITAIN.

A SUPPLEMENT TO "POSTAGE STAMPS OF GREAT BRITAIN."

By W. WARD.

As Great Britain claims the issue of the first adhesive postage stamp, so she can claim the issue of the first adhesive official stamp also, which made its appearance in 1840, but though prepared it was still-born, no necessity being found for its use after a number of sheets had been printed. I refer to the penny black stamp with the letters V. R. (one in each) in the upper corners. In other details the stamp was exactly similar to the penny black stamp that saw issue for ordinary postal purposes. For two score and two years the slow moving British Post Office did not receive the need of separate postal accounts for its various Government Departments, and indeed until today would have never seen occasion for their use until a high official at Somerset House in 1882 had a brain wave, and the Inland Revenue Department Officials—the tax gatherers—were provided with their stamps specially overprinted I. R. Official. Then followed after a process through the Circumlocution Office at various periods from the issue of the Government Parcels Officials in 1883, of overprinted stamps for other departments as the Army (1896), Navy (1903), Royal Household (1902), Board of Education (1902), and the office of Works (1896).

After a famous trial regarding the sale of these official stamps by servants in the different departments in an unused state, all stamps were stopped so far as a special issue in 1904. Franked envelopes were instituted for the civil departments, and the military and naval authorities had to pay postage by ordinary postage stamps, though all their correspondence was borne in official (but unfranked) envelopes marked "On Her (His) Majesty's Service." The frank consisted of a circle bearing the words "Official Paid" with the British Royal Crown in the centre, and is still in use. During the Great War an adhesive franked label was brought into use, for making an envelope serve several times over, by sticking over the ungummed flap.

In charge of a certain department myself for some time, seeing many thousands of these supposed economy labels, I was able to observe that in 99 cases out of 100 a brand new foolscap envelope was always used if only to enclose a slip of paper 4 or 5 inches by two! The gummed labels were 4½ inches by 3 inches, and of course were the franking power for the packet they were stuck upon—so that one might argue that they are in fact "adhesive post paid" labels just as much as any other official stamp. Many of these labels bore the title of the department to which they belonged—Post Office, Secretary for War, Board of Trade, Board of Trade—Overseas Trade, National Service, Ministry of Food, Ministry of Coal Mines (with a special one for the use of Local Fuel Overseers and Divisional Officers of the Coal Mines Department), Police, Military Intelligence, Prisoners of War, Ministry of Labour, Income Tax, Excise Customs and many others connected with new departments occasioned by the War, including "mystery" letters and numbers issued by the Director of Personal Services, War Office, Adjutant General (these being used each week by every unit of the British Forces to make returns of the number of men or their strength, fit, ill, or absent) while copious supplies of the labels were in use by the various overseas departments having offices in Britain, as the Government of Canada, New Zealand, Newfoundland, Australia, South Africa, West Indies, Chinese Labour Corps, etc.

These labels were printed by many different firms of contractors in all parts of England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland, and bear the initials of the printer, with the date and number of the order, and quantity—expressed as "10,000M 8/16, R. & Co., 78,467"—which would mean (quantity) 10,000,000, (date) August, 1916, (printer) Robertson & Co., (order No.) 78467.

These franked labels are no longer in use, but the various departments are provided with small blank slips of gummed paper on which to write the address, the letter being officially stamped

When, As and If Issued

This is a term used by bond houses in offering new issues. It protects them on delays and failures to issue.

SCOTT'S SPECIALIZED U. S. CATALOG caused me to realize that "when, as and if issued" should be used by stamp dealers, as a protection against being termed "liars". Some of us may occasionally stray from the truth, but this book was in good faith promised for Nov. 1st, then for Nov. 15th, then announced by me as "ready" on Nov. 20th, but it really was shipped out by the publishers on the afternoon of Dec. 8th. All orders were promptly dispatched by me by working Saturday night and Sunday. It's a wonderful work, worth lying about or waiting for, and worth every cent of its price of $2.00 POSTPAID

My supply is still adequate, my order having been the second largest received, I believe.

2ND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

with a paid cancellation in red by the Post Office, or ordinary postage stamps are affixed according to being a civil or Military department as previously explained.

I. General Post Office.

The first stamp prepared for official use but never issued was for the intended service of the General Post Office, and except that it bore the letters V. R. in the upper corners, was of exactly the same colour and design of the first stamp—the Penny Black, and issued in 1840.

Its history is however probably notorious as being the cause of probably the first Criminal trial ever held with regard to the forgery of a stamp, when a German was prosecuted by a well known London dealer in 1891 for obtaining money by false pretences in uttering and offering an ordinary penny black stamp with the Maltese Crosses in the upper corners removed and in their place he had printed in the letters V. R. In the evidence of that case, for the first time was given the origin and history of the V. R. Official by the Controller of Stamps at Somerset House, London, from whence all British stamps are issued. This official stated that the stamps were in use for some period for trials of obliterating inks, but were withdrawn from use, and in any case were only used on official missives that would not get outside the post-office department, being kept on records. The "faker" received three years' imprisonment, it being stated by Counsel that this was the first prosecution of its kind that had ever taken place. The Common Serjeant (Judge) who tried the case at the London Central Criminal Court (Old Bailey) said however that the offence was a very serious one for the prisoner had dealt with the Queen's effigy. In comparison with that sentence, a man was tried in Paris twenty years later for a similar offence, and though the Judge of the Seine Court took English Law into consideration as the stamps forged were British, under International Treaty, they only fined the prisoner 16 francs!

Thus, if the first official stamp in the world had a doubtful issue, it gains a philatelic status as being the centre of the first philatelic cause celibre, so its catalogue rank is justified!

Army Officials.

Special stamps overprinted "Army Official" were first brought into issue by the Military Authorities on September 1st, 1896, for the purpose of franking postage on Army documents of the home stations and depots of the various Battalions. The Army had previously however instituted special stamps for telegraph purposes during the Egyptian, Bechuanaland (South Africa) and Suakin (Nubia, now part of the Sudan) Expeditions of 1884 and 1885.

Again previous to that, Army Post offices had been formed at the bases in the Crimea and Constantinople during the Anglo French Russian war, 1854-55, and during the Egyptian Campaign of 1882, and though special cancellations were used, no separate issue of stamps were made.

It is evident that the issue of these overprinted stamps had been delayed for some purpose or other, as the half-penny stamps are found with the Control letters L, M and N which were issued in the years 1893, 1894 and 1895, respectively. In the early overprints of both the ½d and 1d stamps flaws in the type occur, the L of "Official" appearing as an I on the 7th stamp of the 3rd horizontal row and the 8th stamp of the 4th row having the L with a short foot. These misprints were however remedied in the subsequent issues. Another value was also issued at the same time, the 2½d, for use on letters to foreign stations, having a more compact and heavier overprint.

The alteration of the colour of the ½d stamp in 1900 from vermilion to green occasioned the overprint taking place on the new stamps, while the following year another value, the 6d, was also brought into use with the same overprint (heavy type) as used for the 2½d. Excepting for shades of colour of the stamps, no varieties of this occur.

The new stamps of King Edward VII occasioned another change in 1902, when the ½d, 1d and 6d stamps were overprinted with the type used for the preceding two lowest values. In the fall of 1903 the 6d value appeared with a fresh type of overprint showing the letter M narrower and with the centre strokes only meeting half way, whereas on the original surcharges the strokes meet at the base of the letter. For some years this stamp was considered of great rarity, as very few specimens appeared on the market, but after the ceasing of the special official issues, a number turned up from some source and the stamp dropped considerably in price. Broken letter varieties will be also found on the King's Head issues. Though the sale of the Army Official Stamps was prohibited as with the other officials, they were perhaps for obvious reasons, always fairly easily procurable in unused condition.

I'M THE LITTLE RED STAMP.

By SAM WALTER FOSS.

(Cecil F. Blogg informs us that "The Year's Entertainments", a book used by school teachers for planning school holiday programs, contains the following poem listed under Washington's Birthday. The boy who recites this verse is supposed to exhibit a large postage stamp drawn with the right colors for the benefit of the audience.—Ed.)

I'm the little red stamp with George Washington's picture;
And I go wherever I may,
To any spot in George Washington's land;
And I go by the shortest way.

And the guns of wrath would clear my path—
A thousand guns at need—
Of the hands that should dare to block my course
Or slacken my onward speed.

Stand back! Hands off of Uncle Sam's Mail!
Stand back there! back! I say;
For the little red stamp with George Washington's picture
Must have the right of way.

"FOREIGN METER MARKS."

By A. H. PIKE.

In a recent issue of the WEEKLY you again referred to foreign meter marks. I do not mention this again in a spirit of criticism, but I think we all ought to be careful to call things by their right name. There is much difference between a meter mark and other mail permits, either of the first or third class.

All foreign permits I have seen so far are nothing more than our third class permits, although most of them are printed in red. They contain a number but this does not indicate a meter. So far meter mail is used only in the U. S. A. and that only on machines made and sold by the Postage Meter Co. Meters may be placed in foreign countries later, but not so far.

On all meter marks you will find the word "Meter" preceding the number and if you will always look for this word there will be no excuse for misnaming them. These notices encourage collectors to call all permits meter marks. I am almost daily correcting some one using this. One might just as well call a cat a dog, and a dog a horse, and so on. All meter marks are permits, but not all permits are meter marks.

1,500 Varieties for $67.50

Sold for the first time on the return-of-duplicate plan! Don't fail to take advantage of this money-saving proposition. Offer applies only to purchasers sending cash with order. Here is our proposition: Send us your check immediately for $67.50 in payment for the above collection of 1,500 Portuguese colonies. Take out all of the stamps missing from your own collection and return the balance to us for cash refund as follows:

Return 1,000 stamps and receive our refund check for $25.00
Return 800 stamps and receive our refund check for 15.00
Return 600 stamps and receive our refund check for 7.50
Return 500 stamps and receive our refund check for 6.00

The following unsolicited testimonial will speak for itself:

Senator Godcharles adds 700 stamps to his Collection of 27,000

"My collection numbered 27,220 varieties at the time I ordered the 1,500 Portuguese Colony collection from you at $67.50. I want to say that in all my dealings I have never made a purchase which was so thoroughly appreciated. The stamps were not only good in quality, but also in character, and I added to my large collection 695 stamps to the value of $248.07, and have 805 varieties with which to make up exchange books. I am indeed pleased with the purchase." —F. A. GODCHARLES, Deputy Secretary of the Commonwealth, Harrisburg, Pa.

A COLLECTION OF 1,500 DIFFERENT STAMPS FROM PORTUGUESE COLONIES ONLY (no Portugal) mounted by countries in three blank books. Most of the stamps are unused and the condition is perfect throughout. Vasco da Gama issues, scarce provisionals, and hard-to-get varieties abound in large numbers. Specially selected for quality, and every stamp is guaranteed genuine. Collectors and dealers all over the country are beginning to realize the popularity and investment value of Portuguese Colonies, many of which are underpriced and destined to become quite scarce within the next few years. This is positively the most exceptional offer we have ever been able to make. Order immediately, as present stock cannot be replaced.

SPECIAL PRICE (on return-of-duplicate plan) $67.50

SPECIAL! We have one collection of over 3,000 different Portuguese Colonies, including practically everything in 20th century issues, which can be offered at a net price of $675.00, and is guaranteed to catalogue at least four times this figure. If a sale is not made within ten days, we will consider its disposal on an attractive "return of duplicate" plan. Interested parties are requested to write immediately.

ADUTT COLLECTION OF U. S.

Mr. A. Leon Adutt has very kindly favored us with photographs of no fewer than thirty pages of his U. S. collection, beginning with the 5c New York and ending with the 1860 issue. These photographs show the arrangement of his collection, also the manner of writing up the various issues. We are willing to send these proofs to any collector who may wish to inspect them. Mail us 14c. cost of registration, and return the photographs as soon as is convenient. They will prove a liberal education in the matter of arranging a collection.

A POSTAGE STAMP MOSAIC

In the Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph for December 4, appeared a picture of what might be termed a postage stamp mosaic. A woman is shown holding in her lap a large framed picture and we quote what the paper says concerning what will some day be the possession of the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art:—

This postage stamp mosaic, called "Philatelia," represents "Blossom Time," which required a generation in the making, and was completed by W. Reichelt, an artist of Teplitz, Czecho-Slovakia. The picture contains a collection of 250,000 canceled postage stamps. In order to obtain the proper coloring, stamps of all nations of the world, covering a period of more than 100 years, were used. The picture has been exhibited in several of the art galleries of Europe, and is insured against burglary for $100,000. It will finally be presented to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City.

STAMP COLLECTING.

By F. A. BURGESS.

Although I differ with your paper politically and otherwise, I have always found your editorial page informing. But I must say that I was surprised that a paper of your breadth of vision should be so lacking in information as to attack stamp collecting. It seems incredible to you that the up-State New Yorker should pay $40,000.00 for a British Guiana rarity, and you suggest that the same sum invested in books would yield far more educational value than all the stamps in the world. Perhaps this is true, but you overlook the fact that primarily stamp collecting is a hobby, a pastime, a means of relaxation, and that it is one that has considerable educational and utilitarian value as well. Every one knows that $40,000.00 worth of bread and butter contains more calories, vitamines or whatever other freak food unit is the fashion than the same amount of pickles. But lots of people like pickles, and they get a pleasure out of pickles that they do not get out of bread.

Stamp collecting is within the reach of every pocketbook. If one has but a few pennies to squander, he can still ride his hobby, for there are many varieties that can be picked up for as low as a cent or less. It can be indulged in by all ages, from the youngest to the oldest, by the physically fit and active, by the shut-in, by the citizen of the metropolis, by the loneliest rustic within reach of the mails. One cannot measure its educational value in concrete terms. To any stamp collector with a modicum of natural thirst for knowledge stamps are an incentive to seek information about the countries represented and scenes depicted.

Stamp collecting is gregarious in that it provokes competition, brings out the trading instinct and gives the youngster an opportunity to develop his salesmanship and learn something of agency and commission, business methods. Financially, it does not furnish anything like the investment and speculative features of United States Steel and Standard Oils, but neither does any other collecting hobby. That is not the purpose of a hobby. The thrift fetichists object, of course. But we need consider them not at all. Their argument leads to a desert drear of perpetual self-denial that would rob life of every palliative feature and reduce man to a mere machine with one or two animal appetites that could not, perhaps, be eliminated. Thus, one by one will pass the pleasures of the people, crushed by the juggernaut of the God of Utility.—N. Y. Times.

XI. Federation Postal Revenue and Expenditure.

The Post Office revenues soon reflected the issue of the separate series of postage stamps by each of the Presidencies. In 1900-01 and 1901-02, the Post Offices were operated at a loss of £1,500 and £1,400 respectively, followed by a year in which there was a profit of £300, due to issue of the King Edward series of stamps. Then came the separate Presidency series, after which, a consequent profit annually was shown.

XII. Federation Series, King George V, 1912-1915, Plates 1, 2, 3.

King Edward VII died in May, 1910, and although it was expected that the De La Rue keyplates with the head of King George substituted, would be in readiness by the end of the year, it was not until early in 1912 that De La Rue was able to start sending out stamps printed from the new keyplates. Among the first in the Caribbean to be supplied were the Cayman Islands, and the ½d, 2d, 2s and 3s in the D. L. R. 1888 type, were issued at George Town, Grand Cayman, on April 24, 1912.

In June, 1912, the ¼d, 1d and 2½d of the Federation series were sent out to Antigua, and issued there in October, 1912, followed by the ½d in December. The 2d, 3d, 6d and 1s, which were announced by the Crown Agents in October, as having been dispatched, were in issue by January, 1913.

Owing to the difficulty in securing colored-through papers in sufficient quantities to meet Colonial stamp requirements, the Crown Agents were forced to accept, temporarily, white papers surface colored yellow and green. The blue and red papers were not affected. The 2sh6d on blue colored-through paper was issued in November, 1913.

When further lots of 3d and 1s Federation stamps were sent out, they, as well as the 5s, which had not previously been issued on the colored-through paper, were on yellow (3d and 5s) and green (1s) surface colored paper. They were issued in November, 1913, and had a short life, for in less than a half year the Crown Agents were able to replenish their stock of colored-through papers and during 1914 the 3d (June) 1s and 5s (September) were furnished on new colored-through papers.

The design of the stamps of the new series is the same as that of the series which it replaced, except for change in the head of the sovereign, being printed from D. L. R. Postage & Revenue keyplates in the 1888 design. Two keyplates were made up in this design, with the head of King George V, one a 120 set, and the other a 240 set, both being numbered 1.

For the ¼d, ½d, 1d and 2½d the 120 set plate was used, producing sheets of 120 stamps, 2 panes of 60, separated by a narrow gutter, with plate number 1 over the 2nd and 5th stamps of the first horizontal row of the left and right panes respectively, and under the corresponding stamps in the lower row. Surrounding each pane is a marginal line not continuous as for the King Edward series, but broken at each line of perforation to overcome trouble at press from air pressure in inking.

For the other values, the 240 set plate was used, from which sheets of 240 stamps were produced. The plate number 1 was similarly positioned, but only in the upper margin of the upper left and upper right panes, and in the lower margin of the lower left and lower right panes. In other words, the lower margin of the two upper panes was without plate numbering, and similarly, the upper margin of the two lower panes. The sheets of 240 stamps were always cut into Post Office sheets of 120 before the Leeward Islands overprint plate impression was added.

The series consists of ten values, as for the previous series, and the same duty plates were used. The stamps were printed on multiple Crown CA watermarked paper (chalk surfaced for 3d and above), in colors in agreement with the Crown Agents' color scheme. The perforation is comb 14, for all values.

The division of printing plates into panes was no doubt originally undertaken as an economical measure, so that should part of the plate be damaged, it was only necessary to discard the pane affected. Economy in printing is also effected by the division into panes, as a single faulty stamp may cause a whole sheet to be discarded as defective, but where the sheet is in panes, only that pane in which the defect occurs is discarded. This accounts for one and the same shipment containing at times, sheets of 240, 120 and 60. True, few Colonies using the D. L. R. keyplates order stamps in sheets of 240. By the majority of the Colonies, they are ordered in sheets of 120, and are so produced by the 120 set plates which De La Rue have made up. However, with the advent of the George series, many Colonies, making use of these keyplates, requisitioned stamps in sheets of 60, for ease in handling and distributing to branch offices. In the case of Colonial stamps, the arrangement of panes is largely on a basis of convenience of counting, the division being in each case convenient fractions or multiples of the pound sterling.

With the Georgian keyplates, De La Rue's practice of economy was carried still further. When plate 1, 240 set, began to show signs of wear in the two upper panes, instead of discarding the whole plate, another 120 set plate was made up, (showing plate 2 in the upper margins only, the lower being blank) and clamped to the lower half of plate 1, 240 set, forming a 240 set printing plate. Sheets of stamps, therefore, from this combined plate, show plate 2 in the upper margins, and plate 1 in the lower. The Nigerian 1d was supplied in this manner in 1914. Unclamped, the two plates could be used separately to produce 120 stamp sheets, and were so used, for due to constant use, plate 1, 120 set, soon began to show signs of wear and was discarded. By the end of 1912 the combined plate (1 and 2) was being used almost exclusively.

In 1915, ¼d and ½d stamps of the Federation series were supplied from plate 2, and later in the same year, the 1d in scarlet from plate 3. This latter plate, 120 set (with plate number in the upper margin only) was used separately, and at times in combination with plate 4, also 120 set (with plate number in the lower margin).

1912-15. Federation series. King George V. Postage and Revenue. Watermarked multiple Crown CA. Perf. comb 14. Chalk surfaced for 3d and above. Plates 1 (all values), 2 (¼d and ½d), 3 (1d).

NOVEMBER SUBSCRIPTIONS.

It is very gratifying to us to note the November activity in securing subscriptions. The Hussman Stamp Co. is with us once again with all their old-time energy. A good many new names will be found listed this month, of which Wilmar Edgar is a sample with eight subscriptions to his credit. The ten new subscriptions received from Vahan Mozian are especially noteworthy, as they come from a dealer whose counter trade might reasonably claim all his attention. It will be noted that the Fennell Stamp Co., with seventeen subscriptions for November, easily leads the list, with a total of 39. It is very evident that this company intends to be as friendly to the WEEKLY as last year.

A half page of advertising space will be given the dealer winning first honors for the year and two quarter pages will be awarded the two next highest contestants. The leaders on November subscriptions are:—

A FEW NOTES ON SOME EDITORIALS IN MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS, VOL. XXXVI, 1921.

By WILLIAM R. RICKETTS.

Page 160, Column 3: "REMOTE": Alfred Potiquet's Catalogue. There are two editions of this catalogue—

The First Edition (dated 1862 on front cover page) was published and offered for sale on December 21, 1861, and is entitled—"Catalogue des Timbres-Poste." Crees dans les divers Etats du globe. Paris, Eugene Lacroix (et) E. de Laplante, 1862. 43pp.—1p., 7 x 4¼in., colored paper cover with a used 1c French stamp of 1860 attached to front cover page. (Note: Two varieties exist (1) with "Prix: 2 Fr. 10 cent," (2) "Prix: 1 Fr. 25 cent on front cover page. As you say This was the First Catalogue Ever Published and to show how rare it is: The Crawford Library contains a copy of each variety but both faulty: Var. (1) wants pp. 35-38 and Var. (2) wants a cover. There was however in the original stamp library of the British Museum a perfect copy, so this accounts for three copies and with Mr. Speakman's makes four. I certainly congratulate Mr. Speakman on his possession. This is still on my want list.

The Second Edition, probably published March, 1862, has title same as first edition with: Dresse par Alfred Potiquet. 2e edition, revue, corrigee et augmentee. Paris, Librairie Scientifique, Industrielle, E. Lacroix, 15, Quai Malaquais, 15, 1862. 48pp., 7 x 4¼in., Do. (Note: A slip is attached to the 3rd cover page entitled "Note de l'editeur," which says the first edition was published December 21, 1862. This slip is dated Mars 1862). I have a very fine copy of this edition in my library.

In my Philatelic Literature Bibliography Index will be found on pages 86 to 113 references on The Chalmers vs. Hill Controversy, (Since this part was published I have found a lot more references which I hope I will be able to bring out as a supplement some day.)

NOTE: Another title misnomer is the universal use on all articles pertaining to the "British Guiana, 1c 1856 Issue;" it is always referred to as the Rarest Stamp In The World: is this true? How about the "Lockport Postmaster Stamp"—is this not as rare—one copy known? Also "Boscawen Postmaster Stamp," one copy only known? So it is not the rarest stamp in the world. The right title should be: The "Highest Priced Stamp" or "Most Valuable Stamp In The World."

EDITORIAL.

The new issue of U. S. stamp is making a good serial story and collectors await the next instalment with eagerness.

Soviet Russia is making its contributions to philatelic history and for "mystic suggestions of Russian character" the latest arrivals are peculiar to themselves.

Any reader who looks for the customary review of the past year and predictions for the coming twelve-month will be pleased to find that we have omitted them.

Artemus Ward admitted that Chaucer was a great poet but said that "he couldn't spel." A collector had a beautifully filled page in his blank album, lettered artistically, "Gibralter."

Does anybody remember "Hours at Home?" There was an interesting article in the November, 1868, issue, by William R. Hooper, with the title, "The Post Office," which a reader is sending us.

We welcome the new work, "Scott's Specialized Catalogue of United States Postage Stamps," that has just been published and we believe that the little volume will take its place at once among the indispensable catalogues of the day. The demand for the book will accord to some extent with the great surge of interest in United States stamps. The catalogue answers the call for a priced list of U. S. stamps that will meet the expectations of the specialist in our stamps and is a vade mecum for the studious collector of the stamps of our nation. This specialized catalogue makes a good start and we have no doubt but that subsequent editions will be amplified. In a way, the ground for a priced list of the kind was broken by our publication, Goodwin's "U. S. Specialized," that appeared a good many years ago. The compiler is Eugene N. Costales who speaks of the price analysis of the stamps, a most important consideration in a compilation of the kind. We suppose that the invitation of the compiler that omissions be repaired and mistakes corrected will not be ignored. The catalogue is of convenient size and typographically attractive; and it is an important equation in our most important collecting field.

Retiring From The Stamp Business

Pressure of other business necessitates the disposal of my stock of BRITISH and BRITISH COLONIAL stamps.

Both Nineteenth and Twentieth Century—Mint and Used. Every stamp in perfection condition.

This stock consists of desirable items only and would prove very desirable as an investment. Price, $2500.00

VICTOR G. LOLY, (Since 1895)
BOX 158, [68] ANAHEIM, CALIF.

We have received a valuable contribution from Mr. William R. Ricketts, whose fame as a bibliographer perhaps is greater abroad than at home; and accompanying the notes which are to be published in another column, is the letter: "Today, I have been indexing volume XXXVI (1922) of the WEEKLY insofar as the letters 'G' and 'H' and 'Philatelic Literature' are concerned and have noted a few items that I think should be spoken of again or a correction made. These I have noted on separate sheets which I think may be of interest. I have made a great many references to your editorials in the XXXVI volumes of the WEEKLY, in both my indexes, and I wish to say that there is contained in these same references a tremendous amount of philatelic information, which is of course given in the smallest amount of space and for this reason is of special value."

We have received from Stanley Gibbons, London, Part I, the British Empire section of the 1923 or thirtieth edition of the Gibbons catalogue, the second part of which is devoted to the stamps of "foreign countries." The book contains nearly five hundred pages and it would be difficult to imagine a more comprehensive analysis of the issues of the British Empire than it presents. All the features that loaned distinction to preceding issues or editions are retained and it is apparent that the latest additions are considered carefully with the purpose of giving the reader the fullest survey of the stamps. Descriptive notes assist greatly in the easy consultation of the catalogue which achieves the character of a hand-book of the countries that are included in the book. The cuts of stamps, surcharges and watermarks are from life, as it were, and there is a profusion of them. Die and other differences are shown by picture, and geographical, historical and other notes are to be found on the well-printed pages of the catalogue. Naturally, the price tendency is upward but the advance seems to be a justifiable one and as for the accuracy of the prices, so to say, we are content to depend upon the experience covering so many decades of those promoting this catalogue. As usual, the typography is of the best and in all its aspects, the catalogue is entitled to a foremost place in the ranks of books of the kind. The price of the catalogue in our money is $1.80.

A certain old-timer who falls into the conservative class—and what is more incongruous than an old radical?—employs an idle half-hour occasionally by writing us letters, in which he pokes fun at the insistence with which we advocate the cause of philatelic publicity. He calls us the "Big Babbitt" of the movement to make philately the "sole aim and end of the great unwashed public" and cackles as he asks us if we are not fearful that "stamp collecting will monopolize the attention of our citizens to such an extent that we shall all have to sell our collections because of their greatly enhanced value due to unprecedented demand for stamps?" That is a fairly good take-off and as such, we have no quarrel with it. If philatelists will not try to bring their pursuit to the attention of outsiders, who will? In a day when publicity is recognized as the most moving factor, it is folly to be reactionary to the extent of leaving well enough alone. Sentiment cannot be outraged by this pushing forward of philately and as for business reasons, they all unite to vindicate this development. As for the sentimental side, we find the little sentence in a house journal: "Any pleasure is enhanced if shared with another." The business logic is vested in the fact that an increased demand for stamps by a growing number of collectors means that stamp prices are strengthened to the advantage of all who now possess stamps. We are glad to be able to say that the publicity swing has gained such momentum that even if it was pushed no longer, it would be a long time in "dying down" but there is no danger that the followers of philately will now say, "hands off."

If we did not know by experience that there were many snarls in the philatelic skein, we should soon learn that there were from the complaints that we have from readers and others, involving questions of petty difference on one side and grave abuses on the other. If one were inclined to be pessimistic, it could be argued that philately seemed to be singled out as a cloak for masqueraders who got what they could by hook or crook out of it and its clan. Yet if the law of averages is taken as a guide, it will be found that we do not suffer more than any other division of endeavor that is out of the ordinary. It is a comforting thought that there are remedial agencies at work to clear out the undesirable element; and it is our prediction that in five years from now, philately will be as clean as many would like it to be today.

A WORD ABOUT CONTRACTS.

It may not be generally known that we write contracts for special blocks of space to be used during one year. While our three-in-one contract is a very convenient one for those who wish to use space regularly and economically, we write contracts for 3,000 4,000 and 5,000 lines, space to be used within a year. These special rates are as follows:—

3000 lines at 16c per line, $480.00
4000 lines at 14c per line, $560.00
5000 lines at 12½c per line, $625.00

We require that two-thirds of the space shall be used during the first six months and our reason for this is obvious.

We take pleasure in announcing that the Stamp Shoppe of Washington, D. C., has just signed a 3000-line contract, thus testifying to the power of the WEEKLY in producing business. Bertrand L. Drew, who has been using a 3000-line contract during the past year, has just renewed his contract for the coming year.

STUDY YOUR STAMPS.

By L. H. BRIGHAM.

Some collectors give little more than a hasty glance at new stamp specimens added to their collection, and as to turning to the stamps of a certain country in their albums for the purpose of discovering how these stamps differ from one another or from the stamps of some other country, such a thing is never even thought of. The writer has a collector friend who knows his own stamps so slightly that if he were to add a new specimen to his collection today and were to be shown the same stamp tomorrow, he would be obliged to refer to his album to see if he had it. In other words, the mere hinging of a stamp in this collector's album closes the incident as far as he is concerned, and as a result his collection lacks many of the more interesting varieties of the same stamp simply because he has not discovered that they exist.

Keen-eyed collectors are daily making discoveries of value which would never come to light if it were not for the fact that the mechanical type of collector is in the minority, fortunately. The majority of us who lay claim to the respectable title of "Stamp Collector" take enough pride in our hobby to be keenly observant of all the things which go to make up the many differences in the stamps of our own and other countries.

The first known forgeries in the current two-cent stamps of the United States were discovered in February of this year by a New York stamp dealer and collector. This discovery will save the government thousands of dollars, as the forgery might have gone undetected for some time if this dealer-collector had not been in the habit of carefully observing all stamps that passed through his hands. Collectors in the Argentine Republic also discovered forgeries of the five-centavo value of a recent commemorative issue of their own country.

"What constitutes a good knowledge of one's own collection?" is a question that has been often asked the writer. This is how well a true collector should know his own stamps, if no others. Be able to tell at a glance whether or not you have in your collection any certain stamp that may be shown you at any time. If shown a stamp which you have, you should be able to recall at once whether your own copy is a better one than the specimen you are being shown and wherein the difference in quality lies—whether better centered, brighter colored, more lightly canceled, cleaner, etc. You should be able to recall where and how you obtained the majority of your individual stamps; how long you have had them, and about what they cost, if purchased. If one collects, as one should, with the aid of a standard catalogue, one should likewise know the approximate market value of each of one's stamps, whether one's collection numbers ten hundred or ten thousand. All of these things cannot be learned in a minute but constant association with one's stamps allows one to gradually acquire and absorb all of this information without undue effort.

It should be second nature with us to be keenly observant of all the little things connected with stamp collecting and in this way discover the more important ones. Regarding collecting in this light makes a very pleasurable occupation out of what otherwise might be considered a tedious task.—The Haversack.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited, as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The East Kent Times, published at Ramsgate, England, in its issue for Nov. 22, reprinted our article on the U. S. stamp collection of A. Leon Adutt, the well-known philatelist who is a resident of that city and president of the Thanet Philatelic Society. It is quite a compliment not only to the WEEKLY but to Mr. Adutt that the article should be deemed worthy of this attention.

—A variation of the anti-tuberculosis cancellation is found in a new one just at hand from Augusta, Ga. Instead of reading "Christmas Seals Stamp Out Tuberculosis" it reads "Fight Tuberculosis with Christmas Seals."

—A new cancellation comes from Toledo, O. It reads:—"National Farmers' Exposition, Toledo, Dec. 7-15, 1922."

—W. E. Egbert, M. D., of Chester, Pa., reports unsatisfactory trade relations with Richard Weiss of Vienna. It is not our custom to publish the facts in cases of this kind until the case has been reported upon by an attorney or collecting agency. The data as given by Dr. Egbert warrants the warning we have given.

—We have received from Arthur E. Wellington of Troy, N. Y., a piece of cover showing an air-mail cancellation on a letter sent by airplane service between Cairo and Bagdad. The marking consists of the words "Air Mail" shaped so as to occupy a circle. The marking is in purple.

—For the benefit of the trade we wish to state that Karl Hennig of Weimar, Germany, has had business dealings with us during the past two years and they have been eminently satisfactory. We make this statement voluntarily for fear that we did Mr. Hennig an injustice through a recent statement in this paper.

—Edw. E. Goodchild favors us with a communication regarding "Publicity." He congratulates us upon what we are doing in that direction and points to his personal experience in philately. It was while in overseas service that he became interested in the first issue of the stamps of Palestine, the now well-known E. E. F. issue. A letter from a chum started him off on the scent of stamps. Mr. Goodchild has written to the Post Office Department of Canada relative to the opening of a stamp agency at Ottawa. It is possible that such an agency may be started.

United States Provisionals

1c on 2c Surcharged Post Cards.

The postal cards overprinted 1c during 1920-21 are a most interesting lot and may almost be classed as a War Issue. Few of them were stocked and consequently they are most difficult to obtain. If you do not believe this, write most any dealer.

While current I obtained a few from the different cities along with the provisional envelopes. I have never sold any of these, having just completed classifying them. I offer not over fifteen lots, for my stock is small, consisting of 35 cards, 5 being the double reply card, making 40 cards in all, at the very reasonable price of $3.50.

They are all entire unused and will catalogue around $9 by Bartels. The lot includes the rare rejected die "1 CENT", of which about a 100 are known, the rare error 1c on the 1c red, the scarce first die of Phila. on vermilion, as well as the regular red shade, etc. Single cards will bring this amount when we later realize how few of some issues exist.

Can also furnish a fine lot of the provisional 2c on 3c envelopes.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—I am officially informed that no more of the new series will make their appearance until after the first of the year and that around the first or second week in January the 1c Franklin, the 2c Washington and the 4c Martha Washington will probably be placed on sale at the Philatelic Stamp Agency in Washington.

Speaking of the Agency, it closed its first year of business on December 6, 1922, and during the twelve months the receipts amounted to $46,576.39. Uncle Samuel may count this as mostly profit for he will be called upon to perform postal duty for only a minor portion of the stamps issued. With the new series making its appearance we predict that the new year will be even greater. The Post Office Department is doing everything possible to cater to the dealer and collector and will continue to do whatever they can insofar as furnishing fine copies of current emissions. It must be remembered however that the older issues are not available and that it is useless to write and ask if they will not perforate some of the denominations with the old perforations. They are not attempting to conduct a stamp business but have arranged to furnish the best available copies of those issues still in the government possession.

Through the courtesy of Mr. L. A. Hill, Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, I am able to furnish our readers with a list together with their official numbers of the new dies recently made. A list of the earlier dies was published in the Philatelic Gazette sometime back. Since then only the Pilgrim dies and those given on this list have been made 711	5c U. S. Postage Stamp, Portrait of Roosevelt, 1922.

712	8c U. S. Postage Stamp, Portrait of Grant, 1922.

The first Roosevelt die No. 689 had a background and as mentioned in a recent issue was abandoned as unsatisfactory. It will be noticed also that a second 8c Grant die has been made, why I cannot say at present. The vignette No. 710 is for the center of the new $5, die No. 705 being the border. Die No. 709 seems to be unusual and I am making further inquiries regarding its use.

Mr. George B. Sloane writes to advise that he has located a very distinct double transfer in the case of the 6c Garfield but gives no particulars as to its location. Not having the four panes on hand I cannot locate it nor can I give details as to where the doubling occurs.

In an old correspondence recently found a printed form letter with certain parts filled in by hand was located which is most unusual. In fact I was not aware that there was such a thing as an "American Office" in the London Post Office which would pay postage on insufficiently franked letters and trust to luck that the sender would reimburse them. Being a printed form shows that it must have been a regular custom.

General Post-Office, London,
Sept. 6th, 1797.

The enclosed letter having come to London charged with London short Postage: and it being subject to be farther charged with 5/- Inland and Packet Postage before it can be forwarded, we have thought proper rather than your Correspondence should suffer any Interruption, or become known to others by opening and returning it to the Writer, to pay the above Postage ourselves, and to forward it by the first Conveyance, not doubting but that we have acted agreeable to your Wishes, and that you will desire a Friend in London to call on One of Us at the General Post Office, and repay the Money.

The signatures together with the amount and kind of postage are filled in by hand. The letter is postmarked London and there is a manuscript "30" in the upper right corner with "5/-" in the lower left.

CANADA.—An impending Postal Conference between Canada and the United States may possibly have philatelic consequences. The subjects to be discussed are now a matter of correspondence between the two Governments. The Conference will probably be held in Ottawa.

Our Toronto correspondent, Mr. W. Christie, informs us that the 7 cents value has been withdrawn from most of-

FLOODED OUT!!

We have received such enormous numbers of American subscriptions to STANLEY GIBBONS MONTHLY CIRCULAR, most of which come in two-cent stamps, that we are flooded out with this value.

Will the many collectors in America who will be sending subscriptions to the leading British stamp journal in the near future kindly note that if remittance is made in unused stamps, they should be those of the higher denominations?

STANLEY GIBBONS MONTHLY CIRCULAR, which has just started its fourth volume, is as bright and original as ever. It contains serious articles, notes for Juniors, fully illustrated SUPPLEMENTS TO THE GIBBONS CATALOGUES, and stamp news from all parts. SUBSCRIPTION 55 CENTS PER ANNUM.

fices. "It can only be had," he writes (under date October 10th, 1922), "in some of the sub-offices. The General Post Office in Toronto has been out of it for some time, and when I inquired they told me they were not to have any more, as the 4 cents had taken its place." In enclosing a copy of the new 20c Special Delivery stamp (already chronicled,) our correspondent says that this was on sale at the sub-offices, yet the General Post Office were still selling the old 10c blue at the time of writing his letter.—Stamp Collecting.

DANZIG.—Mr. J. L. Riedel informs us that a 50m blue and red in the arms type has been issued.

GERMANY.—Mr. J. L. Riedel sends us a new 8m in the new type in an olive green shade and advises that on November 15th last the postal rates were increased for the fourth time this year. Inland letters now cost 12 marks and foreign 20 marks. On December 15th, another increase will take place, this one being 100%. To meet the shortage of high values new stamps of 200, 300, 500 and 1,000 marks will shortly be issued.

IRISH FREE STATE.—Mr. R. Roberts submits for chronicle the following with Thom overprint:—½d, blue black overprint; 4d, red overprint; 9d, green with the same color surcharge and 10d with blue black overprint.

KELANTAN.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the 5c green and carmine on yellow, script watermarked.

J. O. MOORE, INC., RHEIMS, N. Y.

MEMEL.—Mr. J. L. Riedel writing under date of November 27th, advises that although the Air Service has been stopped on October 1st another set of ten brand new stamps surcharged "Flugpost" has been issued. Mr. Riedel adds that collectors will do well to ignore these bogus air stamps.

N. W. PACIFIC ISLANDS.—In sending us the 1d purple provisional, chronicled last week, Messrs. J. H. Smyth quote from their Rabaul correspondent's letter, dated August 19th, as follows:—"It is understood that the whole issue of postage stamps for this territory will be altered in the near future, but at present they are not available for the public, as the stocks of the old issues are still very large."

The 2d red and 4d blue are now also on issue.

The Australian Philatelist alludes to new shades of the 2½d and 3d values. The 2½d is now of a much lighter shade, something of a light cobalt, and the 3d is a very light olive green, the paleness of all the words being specially noticeable. The ink used for the overprint is a decided black. The paper is of a thin, hard texture, which is shown by the clean perforations, gauging 11½-12. —Stamp Collecting.

TRAVANCORE.—Capt. Gilbert Lodge has shown the Philatelic Journal of India the current 4 cash pink (1911) with the "On S S" overprint inverted.—Stamp Collecting.

SEYCHELLES.—Mr. R. Roberts advises of the 20c blue on script watermarked paper.

1663-4-5-6-7.

The next discontinuance of subscriptions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1663 to 1667 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

We are satisfied that the system we have inaugurated is the only one under which a newspaper can do business these days, and subscribers must understand that free copies of the WEEKLY will not be sent to those who are in arrears.

DICTIONARY SUPPLEMENT.

It is our desire to publish in due season a supplement to the Dictionary and it is no doubt probable that by Jan. 1, 1923, there will be sufficient new material to make such a supplement desirable. Without doubt the eyes of keen philatelists will discover many old items that should have been covered. For instance, new history has been made on the Boscawen local, and the definition given in the Dictionary may well be revised. Again, it would have been a good plan to have inserted the meaning of "A29" and similar cancellations on British stamps used abroad. A29 was used in Bath, Jamaica, and a comprehensive dictionary might well include such items.

We frankly confess that the Dictionary as it appears is only the forerunner of a great book to be published in future years. We desire the co-operation of our readers in connection with the proposed supplement, and offer three cash prizes of $15, $10 and $5 respectively for the best lists of additions turned in by Jan. 1, 1923. We require, however, that there shall be at least ten lists to award the first prize, twenty to award the second and thirty to award the third.

As you are coming in contact with philatelic terms not covered in the Dictionary note them where they belong alphabetically. This will be an indication that they should be covered in the supplement to be issued later.

We shall give ample credit for such assistance as may be rendered us in perfecting the book, in which we take a great deal of pride.

Just Think It Over —
Do you wish to invest your money in honest-to-goodness old issues that have a real future, or will you buy hit or miss stuff that you would have hard work to sell again at any price? Even damaged old U. S. find a ready market, because the perfect copies are so scarce.
I have a wonderful stock of early U. S. Post. and Rev. and B. N. A. postage. I have confined my time and money to building up a stock of these issues, and I have the goods, so send along that want list in anything in U. S. or B. N. A. and see what I can do for you. State how particular you are about condition, and don't forget to give reference, as I do not take any chances on these goods which cost real money.

Much Ado About Everything

Edited by EKI PHI.

VOL. I, NO. 2 Saturday, December 23, 1922. Whole No. 2

Published as often as we can convince the S.-W.-J. Co. that our ruminations will be really welcome.

Philately needs radicals who are broad minded, possess convictions and are willing to fight for them. Ponder over the matters considered.

Your own views will be very welcome. Address the editor, care of the WEEKLY. Your name will be used only on request.

EDITORIAL.

The Golden Rule.

We can laugh at preaching but a good many of us would be the better for it, if we would keep our ears open and ponder some of the truths. "Do unto others as you would have them do to you" is a rule that would always work out right in the end. What pleasure it gives us to receive little thoughtful remembrances of items that interest us with a note accompanying it "accept with my compliments." Or when we order something from a dealer to find that he has sent us even more than we ordered, or to find the stuff a little better than we expected. It makes you want to continue business relations and to find out what this party particularly wants and keep an eye out for him.

Trade Papers.

It makes very little difference what line of business you are connected with, there are one or more trade papers published in the interest of that business. You have only to look over a complete magazine catalog to realize this. We have a book before us with an index covering three hundred and fifty subjects, all of which have their trade papers. Look over any of these and you will find them well supported. Manufacturers, wholesalers and distributors, all who do more than a local business are represented and they realize that they must keep continually hammering home the truths about their goods in order to get the returns that they have a right to expect from this advertising. Many of them have their own house organs, price lists and catalogs, but they know that they have got to keep up their advertising just the same. They are also aware of the fact that the cost of subscription to these trade papers is money well invested. They may run for a whole year without seeing anything that is new to them, but they have the satisfaction of knowing this without the uncertainty and fear of having missed something if they had not subscribed. Isn't there a thought in this that collectors and dealers can take to heart?

The Wise Guy.

Are you one of those bright lights who like to brag that you simply glance over some of the philatelic magazines and then throw them away. Or that you are too busy to bother with them. We have heard more than one brag that they don't amount to anything, that editors publish a lot of slush not worth reading, etc., etc. You would think from their attitude that they thought that this sort of conversation elevated them to a higher plane, above the common herd. In this world you will find that those with the highest education do the most studying. You are pretty safe in taking it for granted that those who try to advertise their virtues are those who need them most. We have seen many modest collectors who were regular store houses of facts. Even if you knew everything about philately yesterday, today a new number of the WEEKLY arrives and it is for your own good to read it while it is news and then keep it for reference.

"Wat're Readin'".

You who are living in the big city have heard the newsboy's call. We would like to stand on the corner of the City of Philately when the crowd passes with a quantity of late editions off the philatelic press and call this out with a megaphone. No, not for the profit, for we are doubtful if we would sell enough to pay for an automat sandwich. Still, this would be an opportunity to see how many would stop to buy, and who and how many would ignore the call. Place a young lady a few steps away with a bunch of flowers for sweet charity and she would get dollars to the newsboys' pennies. The joke of it is that these guys can drop a five spot for some local proposition, get no return from it and go ahead about their businesss and forget it, but if they spend two-bits for a year's subscription for a stamp paper and an issue is delayed, skipped, or the whole thing falls flat, they never forget it. It is handed down to their children and goes on and on from generation to generation; they tell it to their friends as well as relatives, it seems to remain on their brain and tongue sleeping or waking. We have often thought what a wonderful thing it would be to accumulate a couple of thousand that couldn't be used conveniently for anything else, and advertise for names and particulars of those who had been swindled out of subscription money. Guarantee to pay all claims in full and no questions asked. What a flood of mail that feller would get prompto. Results from that adv. would break all records. That lucky editor could use that testimonial forever afterwards.

New Issues in Stamp Papers.

A fellow these days has about as much chance of starting a stamp paper and making a success of it as a snowball in—Mexico. You can't make the beginners believe it. The only way to cure 'em is to give them a push right into the fire. A very bright young lad called on me at the office last fall. His mother just bought him a typewriter out of her pin money and he came to me for a subscription to a magazine (?) he was going to publish. I took the time to talk the situation over with him. He had never heard of but two stamp papers and these proved to be house organs. He was elated when I presented him with a copy of the WEEKLY. He didn't think he would subscribe for it as he already had sent a subscription to one of the house organs. He published two issues three months apart, each of four pages. He quit the business about six months ago. This is a typical case. About the first thing a kid thinks about when he takes up stamp collecting is to be a publisher. I have taken quite an interest in first numbers. I must have more than a thousand of them. It doesn't take much study or practice to gauge the caliber of these attempts. You can see "juvenile" written all over most of them, especially in their attempts to give a reason for their existence and their appeal for material. When a stamp paper is launched without any definite object and no material on hand, my advice would be, pay no attention to it. Kill it with neglect. If your sample copy shows some definite purpose, well written material, respectable appearance, common sense in the editorial, a plan for the future on subjects that you can appreciate, would be of value to the literature of philately, take the trouble to write the editor for some information before subscribing. Ask him point blank how much cash he has to finance the proposition, what prospects he has for securing advertising and request as references both collectors and local business men. Nine times out of ten he will refuse to give you the information asked for. If he does give it, trace it up. It is unwise to discourage honest effort from those who are in a position to produce philatelic works of importance. There is liable at any time for some one to give birth to an idea in the way of a stamp periodical that with the proper nourishment will thrive and grow to even greater height and influence than any of the present day. Those who have watched the game for the past twenty years or more realize that although the WEEKLY has grown and increased in value with possibly one or two others, our best literature was produced in the years gone by. Let us give our united support to those who are now producing good material so that they can live and continue.

Precanceled Stamps.

These stamps have received their share of publicity and many are interested in them. Let none of us discourage interest in any way, for they afford an excellent relaxation to purse and mind for the vast number who cannot afford to make the spread in the higher values. It would seem as though there were many stamp dealers who failed to appreciate or understand their use. We are receiving a great many catalogs, price lists and what not from dealers who are not using these. Most any one can get a permit from any office on request of the postmaster. These are sold to permit users in full sheets only and they can be used on third and fourth class mail one or more at a time. It is not necessary to send out any given quantity at a time. Stamps can also be purchased in coils giving an added variety. Most stamp collectors appreciate these on their mail, as well as the addition of plate numbers and any other novelty that can be included. Only recently I watched a dealer mailing out circulars and he tore off both plate numbers from the sheet of stamps and threw them on the floor. Let's try and see the other man's point of view. Quite a number of dealers are not interested in precancels and consequently they throw them away. How easy it would be to save these and either sell them or sweeten up a good customer once in a while.

Postal Markings.

We hear quite a little lately about "Postal Markings." We thought first he was a youngster but find that he was born long before the postage stamp, in fact, somewhere around 1661, and an Englishman by birth. Two hundred and sixty-one years gets him out of the kindergarten class and into higher mathematics with us. We started in to look up his record and found that a whole bunch of real philatelists, these big fellows who are supposed to be interested only in rare birds, had made his acquaintance years and years ago. It seems that there was a marriage and postmarks and cancellations were united making Postal Markings, a complete whole. Although each are separate and distinct when considered alone the united name covers the relationship when the stamp is on the original piece of cover and with the stamp shows the actual service rendered. This was brought to our mind very clearly by Mr. Turrill in the "Mission of a Postage Stamp" in the May issue of the Collectors' Digest. An excellent article and without doubt an eye opener for thousands of collectors who have seen only the stamps in their collection without their markings.

Good Night Stories.

These may be all right on the radio, but to publish them in a stamp paper in order to slur a brother collector seems a bit raw and out of place, especially when the circumstances did not in any way warrant it. We have tried to deface them in our copies, but they still stare at us, so without ceremony we have laid them away hoping that we will not be required to disturb them and can in time forget the thoughts and sentiments that they tried to convey.

CENTRAL LITHUANIA STAMPS.

Should the proposed union between Poland and Central Lithuania become un fait accompli, the philatelic career of this mushroom State will be brought to an abrupt conclusion. Within the short space of eighteen months something like a hundred separate and distinct varieties of postage stamps have been issued under General Zeligowski's administration. This fact is not quite so formidable as it might at first appear. Owing to the limited facilities available for perforating the stamps a proportion of each issue has been left imperforate and supplied in this condition to post-offices where pressure of business was less brisk and time could be spared for cutting up the sheets of stamps by hand. Thus it happens that a considerable number of Central Lithuanian stamps exist both perforated and imperforated.

Central Lithuania comprises the former Russian Government of Vilna, including the capital town of that name, with an area of 16,421 square miles, supporting a population of nearly two millions. At one time it was included in the Republic of Lithuania, but was evacuated during the Bolshevik invasion early in 1919, and subsequently, in October, 1920, occupied by irregular Polish troops under the leadership of General Zeligowski, who established a provisional Government at Vilna. The rival claims of Poland and Lithuania to the disputed territory were later referred to the League of Nations, but no definite decision having been reached, the position remains in statu quo.

The populace, however, are pressing for a permanent union with Poland.

First Postage Stamps.

Apparently the Polish invaders came ready supplied with postage stamps, printed in Warsaw by lithography in three denominations, and adorned with the national emblems of Poland and Lithuania—a white eagle and a knight on horseback. Above the central device appears the inscription "SRODKOWA LITWA" (Central Lithuania) and below it the word "POCZTA" (Post). These stamps, which were first brought into use on October 20th, exist both imperforate and perforated 11½.

25 pfennigs, scarlet.
1 Mark, blue.
2 Marks, violet.

Provisional Overprint.

Meanwhile a stock of stamps belonging to the regular Lithuanian issue of 1919 had been brought to light and overprinted with a shield bearing the united arms of Lithuania and Poland, together with the inscription "SRODKOWA LITWA POCZTA" and surcharged with new values in marks, was re-issued in this form on November 23rd, 1920, remaining current for three days only.

The surcharge was set up to cover 50 stamps only at each impression, so that the sheets of 100 specimens had to be passed through the press twice. In this way the lower half of all sheets of 2 marks on 15 skatiku were printed upside down, producing a row of tête-bêche varieties across the centre. The eighth stamp in the setting of the 6 marks surcharge had the figures "10" inserted in error, and the tenth the figure "4," with the result that two such errors occurred in each sheet of 6 marks stamps.

Pictorial Types.

To the above succeeded in December, 1920, a set of six definitive stamps, somewhat unduly lithographed in upright rectangular format in various picturesque designs. That of the lowest value, 25 pfennigs, shows the head of a Lithuanian girl wearing the national coiffure. The 1 mark is adorned with the figure of a Lithuanian knight of the Middle Ages. On the 2 marks appears a view of the famous Gate of Ost Brama at Vilna, surmounted by a chapel dedicated to the Virgin, on passing beneath which all must uncover, no matter what their belief. The 4 marks depicts the entrance to the Cathedral of St. Stanislaus, with the ancient tower that stands before it, whilst the 6 marks bears a reproduction of the arms of Central Lithuania, and the 10 marks a portrait of General Zeligowski, "the Polish D'Annunzio," himself. Of the total issue, about 20,000 of each value were perforated 11½, and the remaining 400,000 issued imperforate.

1 mark, orange.
2 marks, violet.
4 marks, yellow and greenish.
6 marks, red-brown and bistre.
10 marks, brown and yellow.

New Colours.

In the following March (1921) the three values originally issued in the combined arms type were re-issued in new colours, both imperforate and perforated 11½:—

25 pfennig, deep green.
1 Mark, brown.
2 Marks, yellow.

Silesian Plebiscite Issue.

With a view to providing funds for Polish sympathisers to travel to Upper Silesia to vote in the plebiscite there the six stamps in the Arms type were placed on sale on March 8th, 1921, overprinted with the inscription in three lines "NA SLASK 2 M.," denoting 2 marks for Upper Silesia, being sold for that sum over and above their actual face values. A variety without "A" in "NA" occurred on the 63rd stamp in each sheet of the 2 marks on 25 fen. scarlet. This series likewise exists both perforate and imperforate.

2M on 25 fen scarlet.
(a) Without "A" in NA.
2M on 25 fen deep green.
2M on 1 Mk blue.
2M on 1 Mk sepia.
2M on 2 Mk violet.
2M on 2Mk bistre.

Red Cross Stamps.

Two values of the pictorial series of December, 1920, were re-issued in April, 1921, overprinted with the device of a Geneva Cross and surcharged with a premium of 1 mark, for which they were sold on behalf of the National Red Cross Organisation.

1 Mk on 2 Mk claret.
1 Mk on 4 Mk yellow and olive.

White Cross Stamps.

A similar issue in the interests of the Polish White Cross Society, followed shortly afterwards, and consisted of three values in the types of December, 1921, with a white cross and supplementary value incorporated in the design:—

2 Mk+1 Mk red-lilac.
4 Mk+1 Mk olive and buff.
10 Mk+2 Mk brown and yellow.

Postage Series, 1921.

A series of definitive postage stamps of a more elaborate character was inaugurated in April, 1921, printed in Warsaw and perforated 13¾ to 14.

The subjects of the various vignettes include, in addition to the National Arms and views of the Cathedrals of St. Nicholas and St. Stanislaus, a reproduction of the historical painting by Mateyeko depicting the ceremony of the uniting of Poland and Lithuania at the Diet of Lublin in 1568-69 (10 marks). Portraits of Queen Hedvige of Poland and Grand Duke Jaggelon of Lithuania, by whose marriage the two thrones were united, appear on the 4 marks, whilst the 20 marks bears the dual likenesses of Thaddeus Kosciusko (leader of the Polish insurrection of 1794) and Adam Mickiewitcz, the famous Lithuanian poet.

1 Mark, blue and yellow (St. Nicholas Cathedral) May.
2 Marks, carmine and green (St. Stanislaus Cathedral) May.
3 Marks, Russian green (Arms) April.
4 Marks, brn. and choc. (Queen Hedvige and Duke Jagollon) July 29.
5 Marks, red-brown (Arms) April.
6 Marks, greenish blue and buff (Castle of Tyschkewitsch) May.
10 Marks, lilac and buff (Diet of Lublin) May.
20 Marks, brown and sepia (Hoscinskasa Mickiewitz) July 29.

All of the above exist imperforate.

Commemorative Stamps, 1921.

On the anniversary of the entry of General Zeligowski's troops into Vilna, in October, 1921, two special postage stamps were issued, the one, value 100 marks, illustrating the arrival of the Polish troops and bearing the date "9 Pazdziowcki 1920," and the other (150 marks,) shewing a portrait of General Zeligowski.

100 Marks, blue and bistré.
150 Marks, grey and brown.

Vilna Parliament Issue.

Another issue of commemorative stamps took place on the occasion of the opening of the National Parliament at Vilna in February, 1922. The series consists of four values, in as many different designs, uniformly inscribed "SEJM w WILNIE 1922." A young girl, sowing seed, on the 10 marks value, symbolises the founding of the fledgling State. On the 25 marks appear the National Arms, surrounded by four significant dates in the histories of Poland and Lithuania, viz., 1385, year of the marriage of Queen Hedvige and Grand Duke Jaggelon; 1569, the Diet of Lublin; 1863, date of the revolt against Russian rule; and 1919, when General Zeligowski seized Vilna. A view of the National Assembly Building at Vilna adorns the 50 marks value, whilst an allegory of Labour, represented by a smith with his family standing before a vista of smoking factory chimneys.

As before, the stamps are issued either imperforate or perforated 11½:—

10 Marks, brown.
25 Marks, red and yellow.
50 Marks, blue.
75 Marks, purple.

Postage Due Stamps.

Stamps to denote collection of surcharges on insufficiently prepaid correspondence were first introduced by the post-office of Central Lithuania in February, 1921. They are lithographed with silhouettes of public buildings in Vilna, etc., and inscribed "DOPLATA." Like the regular postage stamps they come both imperforate and perforated 11½.

50 fen., red-brown (Government Building).
1 Mark, green (Castle Hill of Vilna).
2 Marks, brown-lilac (Island).
3 Marks, brown-lilac (Gateway).
5 Marks, brown-lilac (Cathedral).
20 Marks, scarlet (Cathedral) July.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

XIII. Penny Postage With U. S. A., March 1, 1915.

In his annual report for the year ending June 30, 1914, the Postmaster General of U. S. A. wrote—

"A proposal has been submitted to each of the 33 countries and colonies of the Western Hemisphere with which we do not now have such conventions, for the conclusion of postal conventions providing that the U. S. domestic letter rate shall apply to letters from the U. S. for each of said countries and colonies, and that the domestic letter rate of each of said countries and colonies shall apply to letters therefrom destined for the U. S. Early consideration of the proposals has been requested, and it is hoped that by the end of the current fiscal year, it will be possible to send a letter for 2 cents from the U. S. to any country in the Western Hemisphere and have the reply sent at the domestic rate of the country in which the reply is mailed."

A measure of success attended these proposals, and in the following year he was able to report that—

"Conventions have been concluded with the Bahamas, Barbados, British Honduras, Leeward Islands, and the Dutch West Indies, and are now in effect. In view of the great advantages resulting from the reduced rates, the proposals to the remaining 28 countries and colonies have been urgently renewed and will be pressed for consideration in the hope that eventually the reduced rate for letters will apply between the U. S. and every other country of the Western Hemisphere."

The Leeward Islands Colony, it will be seen, was among the first to accept the proposal of the U. S. Post Office Department, and on March 1st, 1915, penny postage became effective between the Presidencies of the Federation and the United States.

There was a great demand from abroad for the numerous varieties of the Georgian series, and the Post Office revenues still continued to show a profit.

	Profit.
1912-13	£2058.6.11
1913-14	£4159.10.9
1914-15	£6708.18.7½

But in 1915-16, there was a loss of £1741.9.6½, which was officially explained as being "almost entirely due to the decrease in the sale of stamps to dealers. The reduction in the postage on letters to the U. S. A. to 1d, an ounce also affected the revenue derived by the various Post Offices."

XIV. B. W. I. Regiment and Local War Effort.

Following the outbreak of war in August, 1914, the Colonies were informed by the Colonial Office that they would be expected to organize a defence force of their own, and in the Leewards this was accomplished so far as circumstances permitted. "Considerable anxiety was felt so long as the German cruisers roamed the West Indian waters, but an excellent spirit prevailed among the members of the various defense forces, and it is certain that any attack on the islands would have been vigorously resisted. Martial law was proclaimed immediately, but very little action had to be taken under it beyond fixing the price of food in some of the Presidencies."

But the British West Indies were not content with home defense measures and the voting of money towards the war expenses of the Mother country. Uppermost in the minds of all was the idea of a West Indian Regiment, for overseas service. White volunteers from all the islands had proceeded to Canada and England, at their own expense, and enlisted with the Canadian or Imperial forces, but these, small in number, could not be retained as individual units, and were merged in some Canadian or English regiment.

For several months the Home Government refused to consider contingents from the islands, but in May, 1915, the offer made by Jamaica to send a contingent of 100 to 200 men, black, colored and white, was accepted—and it was intimated that any number which the Colonies might wish to send would be welcomed.

The feeling in the Colonies was that the men should not be absorbed into the general army and their identity swallowed up, but that a separate unit be formed. Their desires were given favorable consideration, and in the London Gazette of October 26, 1915, the

The New Year - 1923

First, I wish each and every reader a Prosperous and Happy New Year and a successful one philatelically.

1923 is bound to be a banner year for our hobby. Philately will be boosted as never before as the result of the great London exhibition in May.

Selfishly, I suggest a right start by ordering the 1923 edition of my price-list entitled

"Stamps of United States and Colonies"

When dozens take occasion to write me letters of praise, there must be something to its 44 pages of listings. It is now ready.

10 Cents is the price of this list, but a credit slip for that amount, good on an order of $1.00 from the list, goes with each copy.

2ND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

announcement was made that

"His majesty the King has been graciously pleased to approve of the formation of a Corps from contingents of the inhabitants of the West India Islands, to be entitled The British West Indies Regiment."

Recruiting spread to all the islands, and from the Leewards four contingents were dispatched and attached to the B. W. I. Regiment, numbering 6 officers and 341 men. The Regiment saw service in Egypt along the Canal, in France, with the Egyptian Expeditionary Force in Palestine, and also with the troops from the Union of South Africa in East Africa.

In St. Kitts-Nevis, considerable sums were expended on local defense measures, and in 1914, the Presidency made a gift of £5000 to the National Relief Fund. In 1917, an aeroplane, named The St. Christopher, costing £2000, was presented to the Imperial Government, and in the "Our Day" drive of the Red Cross in the same year, £386 was collected in the Presidency. In all, to the various War Funds, St. Kitts-Nevis contributed £11666, £7000 of this being given as a Government grant.

In October, 1917, owing to difficulty in obtaining sufficient supplies of sea island cotton for aeronautical purposes, the British Government found it necessary, for Imperial interests, to commandeer all the sea island cotton produced in the Colony. Its exportation was prohibited, and a price scale fixed ranging from 3s to 4s 7d per pound. During the year St. Kitts-Nevis exported 300,581 lbs. of lint, and had remaining at the end of the year, awaiting shipment, over 80,000 lbs.

During 1918 the question of the issue of Red Cross stamps was considered, but the Colonial Office in London refused to give the necessary approval.

COLLECTORS CLUB DINNER.

As we go to press we learn that the 26th annual dinner of the New York Collectors Club held at the Cafe Boulevard, Dec. 16, was a great success. There was an attendance of around one hundred and a notable occasion resulted. John N. Luff was the toastmaster. The chairman of the dinner committee was E. M. Sperling. Is connection with the dinner, from 2 to 5 P. M., there was an exhibition participated in by Hon. E. R. Ackerman, J. M. Bartels, Dr. Carroll Chase, J. Brace Chittenden, Edward S. Knapp, A. F. Lichtenstein, John N. Luff, Charles Lathrop Pack, Charles J. Phillips, Joseph H. Pullen, T. E. Steinway and others.

A FORMER SHUT-IN WANTS A JOB.

The WEEKLY is desirous of co-operating in securing a situation for Fred A. Jekel, 2203 Miami St., St. Louis, Mo. Mr. Jekel is a veteran of the world war and received injuries which made it impossible for him to continue his former occupation in the wholesale leather business. He began the collecting of stamps and as a shut-in became intimately acquainted with them and is well qualified to accept a situation with some stamp company. We take the liberty of presenting a picture of our friend.

Mr. Jekel can read and answer letters written in English, French, German and Spanish and is well able to handle foreign correspondence. He will be glad to go to any city to accept a situation. We hope that this brief presentation will induce some stamp firm to correspond with him.

MR. HIND GETS MORE FERRARITIES.

Arthur Hind of this city, who obtained a British Guiana one penny black stamp last spring at a world's record price, has just purchased in Paris a pair of Spanish stamps for 120,000 francs. One of these two stamps is a misprint, being marked "2 reis," and was printed in the center of a block of stamps of "6 reis" value. It was sold to Mr. Grieber, a London buyer, who acts for the Utican. —Utica Daily Press.

HISTORY CLASS WANTS 13c STAMP.

(The following article has had a very wide circulation in the press of the country and many of our subscribers have favored us with it. It is very evident that the numeral 13 has much to its credit with all the superstition there is regarding it.—W. O. W.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Postmaster General Work has received from members of the American history class of Shepherd College State Normal School, Shepherdstown, W. Va., a petition that the Post Office Department again issue 13-cent stamps, recently abandoned. The petition declares that the entire history of the United States is bound up in the figure 13, and gives the following historical reasons why the stamp should be issued:

America was discovered on the night of the thirteenth of the month.

The Republic originally consisted of thirteen colonies.

The first official flag had thirteen stars and thirteen stripes.

The American Eagle requires thirteen letters to spell it, as does also the motto, "E Pluribus Unum."

The first word to pass over the transatlantic cable was transmitted on the thirteenth of the month.

The silver quarter is written all over with thirteen. Around the head of Liberty are thirteen stars; the eagle bears in olive branch with thirteen leaves in the claw and thirteen thunderbolts in the other. On his breast is a shield bearing thirteen bars and in his beak is a ribbon bearing the motto with thirteen letters; each wing has thirteen feathers and it takes thirteen letters to spell quarter dollar.

There are thirteen letters in John Paul Jones's name.

There were thirteen ships in the first American navy.

Perry's victory on Lake Erie was won on the thirteenth of the month.

The Stars and Stripes were raised over Fort Sumter on the thirteenth of the month.

General Pershing arrived in France on June 13, 1917.

The Thirteenth Amendment to the Constitution freed the slaves.—N. Y. Times.

COLLECTORS CLUB ANNUAL.

(Supplementing the news article appearing elsewhere in this issue, we reprint the following from the New York "Times" as offering some additional news. The presence of the Third Assistant Postmaster General was a fitting recognition of the work of this representative organization.—W. O. W.)

Third Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover told more than one hundred members of the Collectors Club at their annual dinner recently at the Café Boulevard, Broadway and Forty-first Street, that the philatelic agency established by the Government Dec. 6, 1921, had sold stamps to the value of $48,157, chiefly to collectors and dealers, during the year. The agency only sells current United States stamps and efforts are made to provide dealers and collectors with fine, perfectly centred specimens. Sometimes early issues are discovered in clearing out small post-offices and these are also sold at face value, although they may be worth it many times.

"The Philatelic Agency has made a profit during the year," added Mr. Glover, "of $35,690, and among the expenses is the entire cost of the plates and engraving of the new United States stamp issues, several values of which have been placed on sale."

John N. Luff, president of the club, presided. Among the speakers were Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Forestry Association, who has one of the finest postage stamp collections in this country, and Charles J. Phillips, formerly one of the largest dealers in London, but who has just come here to make America his permanent home.

Mr. Pack is planning to send some of his stamps to the international exhibition in London next May, which he said would be the greatest philatelic event in respect to choice stamp exhibitions ever seen in the world.

A cablegram offering congratulations to the club was received from Fred Melville of London, President of the Junior Philatelic Club, who is probably the leading stamp expert in Europe.

Among those present were many of the best known collectors in the city, including A. F. Lichtenstein, Dr. H. Brace Chittenden, E. M. Sperling, Dr. Lionel Hartley, Hugh M. Clarke, Theodore E. Steinway, J. Murray Bartels, George Walcott, C. F. Heyerman of Detroit, President of the American Philatelic Society; Robert Hatch, President of the Rotary Club of New York; Alfred H. Caspary, Arthur D. Bullard, Alvin Good, Walter Scott, Joseph H. Rich, Major J. Philip Benkard, Julius C. Morgenthau, Edward Stern and Judge Robert S. Emerson of Providence.

Are You Interested in EARLY BRITISH COLONIALS?

I am dispersing a choice collection of British Colonials, strong in PERKINS, BACON, ETC., printings, and all stamps in very fine condition. Terms will be found MOST REASONABLE.

Also I have a choice lot of EDWARDIAN and GEORGIAN issues, both MINT and SUPERB USED.

Selections willing sent on approval to responsible collectors. Reference, please.

PAUL A. ROGERS, TUSCARAWAS, OHIO

$31,000 CLEARED BY POST-OFFICE.

A clear profit of more than $31,000 was reported today by the philatelic agency of the Post Office Department for the first year's work in selling stamps to collectors.

Begun as a service to the people, the agency has shown itself to be a big moneymaker as well, due to the great interest of the people of the country in collecting postage stamps.

Total sales during the year amounted to $46,576.39, according to the report, while the cost of preparing and issuing the new series of stamps which the agency is selling will not exceed $8,500, and the operating expenses of the agency do not exceed $6,500 a year.

Stamps are sold by the agency at face value, and, never being used as postage, thus becomes clear profit to the government.—Clipping from W. B. PATTERSON.

U. S. RAILROAD CANCELLATIONS PRIOR TO SEPTEMBER 1, 1861.

By CARROLL CHASE.

Five lists of railroad cancellations have previously appeared, but a new one now seems necessary because of additions and the identification of some of the undeciphered postmarks in previous lists. The table speaks for itself. The name of the railroad route did not always correspond with the name of the road or roads over which the letters were carried, so occasionally the name in the postmark is different from the name of any railroad then existing. Of course it often happened that stamps were used after the succeeding set had appeared, and when the stamp or cover with railroad cancellation show no year date it is placed under the column dated for that issue. The various colors of ink used for the postmarks are noted in these columns.

Unless otherwise stated in the last column headed "Remarks," it should be understood that the cancellation is the ordinary circular form with the date (month and day only) in the center.

A few railroad cancellations have been seen only on stamped envelopes. These are placed under the heading of the period in which they were probably used, and a note of this has been made in the column headed "Remarks."

I have a record of about twenty partly identified postmarks which I have not attempted to list. These are all different from any of the listed varieties.

The list is of course still incomplete, though the great majority of the various roads using cancellations is now known. A considerable number of other colors and periods of use of postmarks already noted will yet come to light. It seems rather remarkable that so many exist, but it must be remembered that the consolidation of the numerous short lines into the great systems of today had not yet taken place. It is interesting to note that red was the common color used before the 1851 issue came into use, but that after 1851 black rapidly superseded the red, as the latter color did not show up well on the three cent stamps.

Acknowledgment is made as follows for railroad cancellations kindly submitted since the previous lists appeared.

To Messrs. H. P. Atherton, H. S. Bellinger, H. A. Bullard, Robert S. Emerson, E. D. Field, W. F. Goerner, C. A. Heath, A. K. M'Daniel, K. C. B. Nevin, J. J. O'Donohue, Doctor R. W. Payne, George B. Sloane, George Wolcott, and once more to Mr. M. Ray Sanborn for his kind assistance in identifying railroads, etc.

The writer will be pleased to examine, for the purpose of listing in a later revised table, any railroad cancellations for these periods only not here given. Or to have submitted on approval any such, or any listed that are marked with a star—the star indicating that the cancellation is not in the writer's collection; but, his 1847 collection having been sold, the 1847 period railroad cancellations marked with a star are now wanted (for purchase) only on covers without stamps. Address Dr. Carroll Chase, 1170 Dean St., Brooklyn, N. Y. Emphasis is again placed on the fact that railroad cancellations on later issues are not wanted.

A Happy New Year to All.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Mr. Eugene Klein of Philadelphia, accompanied by his little daughter, age four, visited Chicago recently with the Logan collection of U. S. and a good line of foreign stamp, among which was a superb representation of Spain. Many Chicago collectors called on Mr. Klein to inspect his goods and to examine the lots in his auction sale.

—Mr. Joseph Hoffman, who is pushing the philatelic supply division of the Elbe File and Binder Co., Inc., New York, has returned from an extended trip in the interests of his firm. Mr. Hoffman has introduced the meritorious line carried by his company among the stamp dealers from coast to coast and his intelligent sales methods have made him many friends, aside from the qualities of his spring binder specialties for stamp use.

—Mr. Horace Wade the brilliant young boy reporter of the Chicago Evening American is an enthusiastic collector and the Chicago Philatelic Society expects to have him as a guest at a coming meeting.

—We have received from Mr. Oney K. Carstarphen, tax consultant of the trust department of the American Exchange National Bank of New York City, a copy of the fourth edition of "Tax Information" compiled by Mr. Carstarphen, who will be remembered by the older collector for his philatelic activities.

—We have received from Mr. Frank Godden of London an advance copy of the Postage Stamps of France, by Sir James R. Andrew Clark, Bart., C. B., C. M. G., F. R. P. S. L., which will have due consideration in the next issue of the WEEKLY.

—"I have been battling pulmonary tuberculosis for four and a half years. Nearly all of my time is spent in bed chasing the cure and time grows heavy at times to say the least. The best time-passer I have is a small collection of stamps. It would be a source of great joy to me to be able to make additions to it and I am wondering if you'd give me a few lines in your WEEKLY telling of my hobby; and that any duplicates collectors can send to me would be greatly appreciated."—C. O. SELANDER, Schott Sanitarium, 837 Locust St., Denver, Colo. We are very willing to publish this appeal to our readers.

—We have received from A. E. Tuttle of Philadelphia, Pa., his annual price list of stamps in sets and packets. It represents a very substantial list of 60 pages and a specimen may be obtained upon application.

—A Tri-City Stamp Club is being organized to include Rock Island and Moline, Ill., and Davenport, Iowa. Nine members have so far been enrolled and at least twenty are expected at the next meeting. Anyone nearby interested in this stamp club should communicate with W. F. Cannon, 1413 Carey Av., Davenport, Iowa. The officers have not yet been elected.

—Leon Minassian, formerly of Smyrna, is now located at 120 W. 116 St., New York City.

—A correspondent calls our attention to the fact that the cancellation in connection with the International Silk Exposition may be withdrawn from use on the grounds that this class of advertising is forbidden by the postal laws and regulations. It is claimed that such advertising is by no means confined to this Silk Exposition, but that other industrial, sectional and semi-private enterprises have been enjoying the same kind of publicity promotion. The Fourth Assistant Postmaster General is quoted as saying that he considered the Silk Exposition a matter in which the public would be interested, hence the authorization.

—We have received from W. W. Betts, the Clearfield, Pa., dealer, a very handsome office calendar, and we are grateful for the courtesy shown.

—The Brooklyn Stamp Club, at its meeting, December 13, elected the following officers for 1923: President, H. C. Meyer; Vice-President, George Ring; Treasurer, Wm. J. Coleman; Secretary, Wm. Lycett; Financial Secretary, N. Patteck; Delegates to the United Stamp Societies, R. M. Osborne and Wm. Lycett; Alternate T. V. Binmore. Board of Governors, Gus Fabian, Daniel Holzer, R. Tiedemann, T. V. Binmore. C. W. A. Braun was elected Sales Manager at a previous meeting. The Club holds weekly meetings at Howard Avenue and Hancock Street, with an average attendance of twenty, and has a fine class of membership. A cordial invitation is extended stamp collectors to visit these meetings.

—We have received a specimen of the 2d Irish stamp. It is in green and pictures a map of Ireland. Wm. Ward, to whom we are indebted for the favor, informs us that it was issued Dec. 6, to commemorate the signing of the constitution of the Irish Free State. It is printed in sheets of 240 in two panes, divided by a marginal design like the British issues, but without control numbers.

—Collectors in Fresno, Cal., propose to start a stamp club for that city and vicinity. Collectors residing in any of the towns nearby or in the city of Fresno are urged to communicate with I. E. Wilson, 644 Dudley Ave., Fresno, who has the project in charge.

—A. S. Davenport sends no fewer than four clippings, three of which we shall use, while the fourth (a clipping from the New York Times of Dec. 17) is an ambitious article dealing with various interesting phases and latest happenings in philately. The article takes about two columns, but the name of the author is not given.

EDITORIAL.

Our fellow editor, C. Gordon Fennell, has launched a campaign in his house paper, Sudden Service Surcle, that should be aided and abetted by all thinking stamp folks. The reform advocated is based on fairness and good faith and it is time that it is pressed to fulfilment. Mr. Fennell's words should arouse the tolerant and complacent philatelic gentry to action; and he says: "Have you ever paid a nice fat price for a beautiful, scarce stamp that you needed just to complete the set, and then have a more worldly friend show you the covered defect? Show you where you had paid a first-class price for a fifth-class article? Most of us have at one time or another. And, unfortunately, or perhaps, fortunately, many a collector quits the hobby, or raises an awful rumpus?" In these few words, Mr. Fennell condemns a condition from which we must have relief. The practice of selling repaired stamps, unmarked as to their true character, has been criticized perfunctorily and it is agreed that the custom is a reprehensible one and should be abandoned, but no actual results are manifest. Mr. Fennell continues: "Undoubtedly stamps, Skilfully repaired, are sold every day as perfect. This is done in some cases thru intent, but in most thru ignorance. And here's how it works. A reliable dealer has a repaired stamp. Not wishing to mislead his customer he writes 'repaired' beneath it on the approval card, prices and sells it accordingly. Very few collectors take the trouble or harbor the inclination to so designate the repaired stamps purchased after arranging them in his album. It is quite apparent, therefore, that when the collection comes on the market, the repaired stamps are very likely to be sold as perfect, mainly thru ignorance of their true condition." Mr. Fennell fortifies his position from every angle until it is unassailable; and then proceeds to cite his remedy: "Therefore, we believe, in order to protect the collector, that every repaired stamp handled by a dealer, should be stamped on the back as such. This should be done with a very small rubber stamp 'repaired' or by use of a symbol to be nationally adopted by dealers and repair men. We believe that a small 'R' surrounded by a circle would be an unoffensive but unmistakable sign. It should be placed always in the exact center of the stamp." We shall not let the subject rest in future numbers.

In a Spanish contemporary, we find the following paragraph on a subject that is of perennial interest: Who was the first collector? We translate freely from the Madrid Philatelico, as follows: "Much has been written, is written and will be written about the origin of philately. If seven cities of Greece contest the honor of having been the cradle of the divine Homer, more than seven and more than nine nations pretend today to be the cradle of stamp collecting; but if on this subject nothing final may be affirmed, there appears to be many reasons in favor of the Brussels claim that it is known with absolute certainty that the first collector was an inhabitant of Lille, named Victor Wetzel, who from the 6th of May, 1840, began to keep all postage stamps that fell into his hands, pasting them on the black pages of his note-book." This is an early date with a vengeance and we hope that no busy investigator will try to advance it more than a week, as the penny black of Great Britain was issued on May 1st, 1840. Even so, we are reluctant to transfer our allegiance to the chap who in the '50's is said to have placed foreign stamps on large maps of the countries of issue.

A collector who is writing up his collection of Argentine Republic asks us for a short biography of W. Brown, whose portrait is the central design of 20 pesos green of the issue of 1891. We remember that some mystery attaches to this celebrity so far as locating him in some of the books of reference is concerned and an examination of the material at hand gives no clue to the history of this personage. We shall look further but if any reader is in possession of the desired information, it is asked that he favor us with it.

At different times, we have called attention to labels sometimes found on letters dated years ago, that were unpaid or not sufficiently postpaid. The following text illustrates the purpose of these pasters: "This letter was dropped in the office without being prepaid, and would have been sent to the Dead Letter Office, but realizing the frequent importance of such letters, we have paid the postage and forwarded it. Please return what may seem to you an equivalent for its value and importance, to be used for a like purpose. Address, Bassett & Stokes, Louisville, Ky." Here is a bit of commentary reading on the suggestions of this label that we have lifted from an article, The Post-Office, by Wm. R. Hooper, in Leisure Hours for November, 1868: "In 1856, all letters were required to be prepaid; and we all remember the devices postmasters used to insure prepayment; and that in many cities, where unpaid letters would find their way into the mail bags, benevolent individuals would generously remit a sum sufficient to speed the unstamped wanderer on its desired journey; a work now systematically carried on by our Young Men's Christian Associations in many cities." It is evident that some of the philanthropists had an eye for business, as we have seen three different stickers on which the propriety of remitting to the payer of the delinquency in postage was cleverly stressed.

A correspondent, writing from Tokyo, Japan, says: "There is nothing new in the stamp line out here except that Itoya, the big stationer on the Ginza, has put in a large line of small stock books, general albums, tweezers, hinges, magnifying glasses and cheap packets. They are all English make. There are no American albums for sale in Tokyo,—a fact that some enterprising American manufacturer should note. Scott's catalogue sells out here and is more common than Gibbons."

We recently had an opportunity to examine a find of original covers that was made in Indiana by a member of the Chicago Philatelic Society and in the lot were a thirty-cent, 1869; and a twelve and twenty-four cent 1871 on the same cover, not to mention others. The thirty- cent, 1869, was interesting as having represented a domestic rate on a registered letter from Grand Rapids, Michigan, and so did the other cover. The buyer of the 1869 cover was particularly anxious to have it because it did not have a foreign address. That reminds us that we have never had more particulars from the Boston old-timer who remembered having sent a lot of pension papers from Boston to Washington, in a large envelope prepaid by a ninety-cent, 1869, and another stamp of the same issue. In answer to our last letter of several years ago to him, we received word from his daughter that he was seriously ill, and so, we fear that further testimony will not be forthcoming.

THE "CZAR" ABDICATES.

Mr. Charles J. Phillips, whose retirement from the position of Managing Director of Stanley Gibbons, Ltd., has caused a mild sensation in philatelic circles, has been for many years the dominating figure in the British stamp trade, so much so that he was familiarly dubbed the "Czar of the Strand." When he organized the present company in 1890, he brought it to a degree of business acumen such as is seldom met with in the stamp trade. There are few sounder judges of stamps, whilst his writings on Philately have been both voluminous and erudite. Mr. Phillips is a prominent Rotarian, and of recent years has spent much time in America, where he is now permanently domiciled.

His successor in command at 391 is Mr. George Hamilton Smith, a Bristol man, who joined the house of Gibbons in 1905, when his business was acquired by that firm. Under his capable Direction we trust that the prestige of S.G. will be maintained for many years to come. —Philatelic Magazine.

EVERY STAMP TELLS A STORY.

Everyone is familiar with the now famous slogan "Every picture tells a story," and the pages of our albums are sprinkled with stamps that have a wonderful story to impart if we would only take the trouble to unearth it. We may truthfully say: "Every stamp tells a story." Who is the person shown upon the 1 centesimo stamp of Uruguay issued in 1895? He is a gaucho, a picturesque and almost romantic figure; a product of environment and tradition. From his earliest boyhood he is accustomed to be astride a horse's back. He is an expert horseman, expert with the lassoo and the "boliadiera," the latter implement consisting of a throng and two balls, which, thrown unerringly, winds round and round a fleeing animal's legs and brings it to the ground. The gaucho is trained to be devoid of fear; a charging bull coming at him from a herd with fury, is calmly awaited, and received with blows across the muzzle with a short whip, the only weapon, and retires worsted. He prides himself on his dexterity, and if his horse falls amid a stampeding herd of cattle, he is quick to avoid the trampling hoofs. The gaucho lives in a hut on some hillock on the prairie and will not dwell in the town. His wide-brimmed felt hat, silken or woolen poncho, huge silk neckhandkerchief, and leather belt adorned with silver coins; his rawhide boots and enormous silver spurs and other trappings, are for him the habiliments he desires.

In 1903, a set of postage stamps was being prepared for Serbia, showing the head of King Alexander. Before they were issued, however, the king had been murdered. On June 10th, 1903, there had been a military coup d'etat at Belgrade. Colonel Maschin, the Queen's brother-in-law, Colonel Misitch, and a band of officers, forced their way into the royal palace and cruelly butchered King Alexander and Queen Draga. General Petrovitch and many of the guards who tried to defend them were also killed. King Peter was then chosen king, and as there were no stamps with the new king's portrait on, the Provisional Government ordered all the Serbian stamps bearing the head of the late King Alexander to be overprinted with the Arms of Serbia. This was done in various colours, blue, black, red or magenta, and as the stamps were urgently needed many errors were made.

Curious Birds.—On the low values of the 1905 issue of New Caledonia is depicted a kagu, an almost extinct bird. It is extremely curious and was discovered after the French occupation of the island in 1852. It is rather a long-legged bird, about the size of a fowl, with large eyes and red legs and beak. Its plumage is a light slate colour and on its head is a full pendent crest. When at but it is subject to fits of excitement, when it dances round and indulges in remarkable antics.

Quite a different kind of bird is shown on the 1898 issue of Cook Islands (now Rarotonga) It is the torea, a bird about the size of a duck. On the stamps the bird is shown flying over the sea with the island of Rarotonga with its twin peaks in the distance. The flight of this bird is extraordinarily rapid. It has its chief rookery on Malden Island, noted for its guano deposits. The bird will allow you to walk through the rookery, and even to handle the young birds and eggs without making any more remonstrance than a squeal. They never build nests and only sit upon one egg, which is a dirty white colour with brown spots.

A fine statue of Kamehameha I. of Hawaii is shown on the 25c of 1882, of the Sandwich Islands. This statue stands in front of the old Government Buildings or Hall of the High Chiefs, now known as the Judiciary Buildings. Kamehameha I. was the first king of the whole group of islands. The statue was designed by Thomas R. Gould, of Boston, U.S.A., modelled in Florence, and cast in bronze in Paris. Kamehameha is depicted wearing a feather helmet, and a cloak made of feathers from the sacred bird mamo. He also carries three barbed spears in his left hand.

The kris, the curious national weapon of the Malays, is shown on the current 8c stamps of the Straits Settlements. It is a dagger with a wavy blade, the handle and scabbard being much ornamented. It was formerly worn by almost every male over fourteen and by many women too, but it is now illegal for the natives to wear a kris, except in Trengganu, where the privilege is still extended.

A Wonderful Temple.—Bangkok possesses a wonderful pagoda known as the Wat Cheng or Temple of Light. It can be found on the 1906 issue of Siam, below the king's portrait. Wat Cheng stands on the western bank of the river Menam, and the lofty steeple is the highest of all the pagodas of Bangkok. The precincts of the temple occupy a vast space of ground, and contain the invariable adjuncts of a Buddhist monastery in Siam, viz., a sanctuary with its images, a preaching hall, a library, twenty-five monks' dwellings, gardens, tanks, grotesque statues and parti-coloured dagobas. These statues, etc., are in an advanced state of decay. In the niches of Wat Cheng are figures, none of which is whole. From the temple ground rises an immense tapering incrusted spire, easily seen on the stamps, halfway up the sides of which it is possible to climb by steep steps. Here the three-headed elephants, said to be the symbol of the triple incarnation of Buddha, look out from each side of the tower, and a wide prospect is outspread of the curving river and the pinnacles of the Royal Palace rising from its battlements of white.

On the 4½d value of Malta, 1886 issue, we see a xebec or boat from Gorzo with latteen or triangular sails. These boats have a graceful, low and buoyant hull with a high stem and raking stern. Although fitted with three masts and sails they have powerful oars to assist them in the lengthened calms so frequent in the Mediterranean.

Uruguay in 1909 issued two stamps to celebrate the opening of the new port of Montevideo. The stamps show a picture of the new port, which took two years to build. Great festivities were to take place, but a sad accident put a stop to them. On the morning of August 24th, the liner "Columbia" collided with the S. S. "Schlesien," the former sinking within a few minutes with a loss of over one hundred lives.—Postage Stamp.

United States Provisionals

1c on 2c Surcharged Post Cards.

The postal cards overprinted 1c during 1920-21 are a most interesting lot and may almost be classed as a War Issue. Few of them were stocked and consequently they are most difficult to obtain. If you do not believe this, write most any dealer.

While current I obtained a few from the different cities along with the provisional envelopes. I have never sold any of these, having just completed classifying them. I offer not over fifteen lots, for my stock is small, consisting of 35 cards, 5 being the double reply card, making 40 cards in all, at the very reasonable price of $3.50.

They are all entire unused and will catalogue around $9 by Bartels. The lot includes the rare rejected die "1 CENT", of which about a 100 are known, the rare error 1c on the 1c red, the scarce first die of Phila. on vermilion, as well as the regular red shade, etc. Single cards will bring this amount when we later realize how few of some issues exist.

Can also furnish a fine lot of the provisional 2c on 3c envelopes.

Postmasters are informed that the amendments to sections 1053, 1059 and 1061 of the Postal Laws and Regulations (inserts 739, 740 and 741) published in the April, 1922, Postal Guide are not to be construed as requiring that any deficiency in registry fee on registered mail for or from foreign countries is to be computed at double rate; the single rate only is chargeable. The double rate applies exclusively to postage.

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—The new Scott "Specialized United States" has been issued and the publishers are to be commended for at last giving the specialist what he has been clamoring for for years. The booklet is leather bound, pocket size, of about seventy pages, printed in single column on one side of the page and has been compiled by one of Scott's able assistants. Mr. Eugene N. Costales "after consultation with many of America's leading specialists." This year only the General issues, including coils, booklets and special prints, are covered and we are told that the scope of the book will be extended if the interest warrants it.

Singles and blocks are priced throughout and in the case of the early imperforate issues pairs also. Most known minor varieties are listed and we have for the first time an extensive priced list of the different 1850-1857 plate varieties. In the late issues all types and dies are given including the dies of the coils. Those who have never collected blocks will be surprised at some of the prices, but they well reflect today's market condition. While here and there a price is exceptionally high, it must be remembered that hardly two persons will agree on the price of any exceptional item.

We regret to note that they have not seen fit to designate the minor varieties by letters for this would have enabled you to refer to a minor variety by number. As it is you will have to give the number of the main variety and then designate the sub-variety by mentioning what it is. We would also like to see the year dates given in the case of the coils and booklets, for the list is somewhat confusing as it stands. Taken all in all it is the most complete catalogue of United States varieties ever compiled and one interested in our issues can hardly do without it.

Mr. J. H. Houston sends me a clipping from one of the Washington papers, stating that the 2c stamp will be issued before Christmas but I hardly believe this will be the case for I have been notified that they will not appear until after the first of the year. The clipping further states that "the new issue of stamps bearing the heads of Jefferson and Monroe" will follow. This may be so, but it is likely that it will be around the middle of January when they are issued.

At a recent Scott sale the 10c 1847, horizontal half, used as 5c, supposed to be unique, passed into a middle west collection at $1,000. A beautiful 4c Columbian, error of color, possibly as fine a copy as exists, sold at $111. A mint copy of the 1902 4c with Schermack perforations in wonderful condition found a new home at $94. Prices generally for fine things were high.

At the Klein sale held in Philadelphia on December 15th the main attractions were a wonderful assortment of seventy-two covers of the 1851-1865 period with steamboat and packet cancellations. The prices, except in the case of one or two pieces, were rather low, for 49 covers sold around $4 each, or less, and a great many as low as $1.50 to $2. The highest price paid was $22 for a "Steamer J. F. Pargoud" on the 3c 1857. A "Regular Ouachita Passenger Packet Steamer Dr. Buffington" sold at $21.25, a "Steamer D. S. Tracey" on the 3c 1851 at $14, while a "Bayou Steamer Judah Touro" changed hands at $13.25. A "Steamer Paul Jones" sold at $17, while several sold at $16.25, including "U. S. Mail Packet Natchez," "Packet Steamer New Latona," "Southern Bell" and "Swamp Fox." A "Steamer Peerless" reached $16.75, while a "New Orleans Alexandria & Natchitoches Packet D. Dalmau" sold at $16.50. We do not recall such a nice lot being offered for many a day.

AUSTRIA.—1922 (Nov. 10th). Air post stamps, designed by Wm. Dachauer, engraved by Ferdinand Schirnbock and printed at State Printing Works, Vienna. Perf 12½: 300kr claret, 600kr olive, 900kr brown-orange, 1,200kr purple, 2,400kr steel blue.—West End Philatelist.

BOLIVIA.—Mr. Guy West Wilson sends us the following: In MEKEEL'S No. 1664, p. 376 (Nov. 25, '22) there is a note concerning certain Bolivian stamps, closing with the query "Has anyone else run across these?" The following extracts from the New Issue Chronicle of the WEEKLY appear to be pertinent:

"Revista Filatelica chronicles and illustrates a new series * * * * Design rectangular oblong, fancy frame with CORREOS DE BOLIVIA in white sans-serif capitals upon curving ribbon label across top, scroll work at sides, and words of denomination in straight label at bottom, also in white sans-serif capitals on color, circles in each lower corner, placed above the denomination label, contain the numeral of denomination, also in white on color. Frames are the same for all denominations, but the central medalion varies with each.

1c green, Ruins of Tiahuanacu; 2c red, Cathedral at (same); 5c brown, (same); 10c violet, Bay Titicaca; 20c orange, Lake Titicaca; 50c blue, Gauqui and LaPaz R.R.; 1b carmine, Ruins of Tiahuanacu; 2b Port of Guaqui; 5b black, Coat of Arms. American Philatelist."—MEKEEL'S No. 1480 pp. 163, 166, May 10, 1919.

"BOLIVIA.—An entire new pictorial series has been placed on sale in this Republic, the values, colours, and subjects being stated to be as follows:— * * * [The list is essentially as that given above, continuing—] We list these on the authority of the Revista Filatelica, but we cannot quite reconcile the Chronicle with some of the pictorial stamps actually received. The subject of the 2c is we believe, Lake Titicaca, and not the one shown in the Chronicle." MEKEEL'S No. 1489, p. 243, July 12, 1919. [Note. The 2c referred to appears to be Scott's No. 113.]

Later a quotation is published from an "Official Communication which reads in part as follows: 'The administration of Bolivia advised the General Post Office of Argentine (sic) that there has been discovered in circulation a series of stamps which are unauthorized and which are a fraud on the philatelic public. These stamps are being circulated between stamp collectors in Chile and Argentine (sic) and are advertised in certain magazines; the list follows:—(same as above). The communication was printed in Lu Epccs of Buenos Aires under date of August 5th." MEKEEL'S No. 1507, p. 420, Nov. 15, 1919.

This appears to fix the status of the stamps and explain why they are not listed by Scott.

Surrounding the central motif will be the Arms of the four great religious orders which have helped to propagate the Christian religion, viz., the Jesuits, Carmelites, Dominicans and Franciscans, with the motto "Euntes docete omnes gentes." The total issue will comprise 200,000 sets of 15, 20, 40 and 80 centesimi stamps, of which 150,000 will be set aside for sale on behalf of the National Society for the protection of Italian emigrants in the East.—Philatelic Magazine.

DR. CHASE AT WATERBURY, CT.

Dr. Carroll Chase, of Brooklyn, N. Y., considered one of the foremost authorities of the country on stamps addressed the members of the Waterbury stamp club, Dec. 11th at 8 o'clock, at a meeting held in the Mattatuck historical society building. Dr. Chase brought with him a book containing about 15 pages of stamps from his collection, the majority of these stamps being of the early issues of United States, a few of which were almost priceless.

Dr. Chase explained each stamp in his collection, even going into details in telling from which plate they were made. He had a large number of the 1847, 1851, 1855, 1856 and 1857 issues of stamps. He also explained the cancellations of the stamp, many of which were on the original mailing envelope. One interesting envelope was one that the Adams Express company used in delivering mail from the North to the South during the Civil War, carrying it through the lines.

William D. Pierson presided at the meeting. Dr. Chase was given a rising vote of thanks by the members, and was made an honorary member of the Waterbury Stamp Club. Announcement was made by the presiding officer that the next meeting will be held Jan. 8, at which time the election of officers will be held, reports made, and a member of the governing board selected. President Pierson named Frederick Upson, Robert E. Platt and Theodore Beard as a committee to nominate officers to be voted on at the next meeting. It was also announced that an auction of stamps would be held at the end of the next meeting. —Waterbury American.

Just Think It Over —

Do you wish to invest your money in honest-to-goodness old issues that have a real future, or will you buy hit or miss stuff that you would have hard work to sell again at any price? Even damaged old U. S. find a ready market, because the perfect copies are so scarce.

I have a wonderful stock of early U. S. Post. and Rev. and B. N. A. postage. I have confined my time and money to building up a stock of these issues, and I have the goods, so send along that want list in anything in U. S. or B. N. A. and see what I can do for you. State how particular you are about condition, and don't forget to give reference, as I do not take any chances on these goods which cost real money.

NEW STAMPS ISSUED FOR EGYPT.

A new chapter is added to the philatelic story of modern Egypt by the appearance of the current stamps overprinted with the device of a crown surmounting an inscription in Arabic, which signifies "The Egyptian Kingdom —March 15, 1922." Early next year these provisional stamps will be replaced by a new issue showing the head of King Fuad I and a view of the Pyramids.

When postage stamps were first introduced into Egypt on January 1, 1866, the country was a dependency of the Ottoman Empire and the designs were modelled closely upon those of the contemporary Turkish issue, the inscriptions likewise being Turkish characters.

A more distinctive type, representing a vignette of the Sphinx and Pyramids flanked by Pompey's Pillar and Cleopatra's Needle was introduced in the following year (1867), but with the watermark of the Turkish national emblem, the single star and crescent.

While the successive issues record the modern history of Egypt, the current designs illustrate her past glories. They include the image of Isis, goddess of the Nile, the statue of Ramedes II, the Sphinx, the Colossi of Thebes, the Pylon of Karnak, the Rock Temple of Abu Simbel, and the historic Citadel of Cairo. —Clipping from R. D. WELDON.

AIR MAIL HAPPENINGS.

By CHARLES G. WILSON.

The use of airplanes for the transportation of mail is no new thing as the U. S. and some foreign governments have used planes in this capacity for several years now. Postmaster General Work in his departmental report to Congress of Dec. 4, 1922, states that during the fiscal year of the Department of 1922, 48,988,920 letters were carried by the U. S. Mail Service over a distance of 1,727,256 miles.

But few Americans have a conception of the astonishing development of the air mail service abroad, particularly in France.

There are in operation between London and Paris several French and English Companies for the transport of mail and passengers thus assuring constant service. Last summer there were 30 planes leaving Paris daily and this winter 10 planes leave Paris daily for London. Next summer it is planned to have 50 planes make the trip per diem; 34,000 passengers were carried during the fiscal year just closing.

As Chicago is the railway center of the U. S. so Paris is the heart of the airways of Europe and from it radiate the lines which link all Europe. From Paris one can go by plane to any of the following: Ajaccio, Algiers, Spain, Morocco, Strasbourg, Budapest, Prague, Vienna, Warsaw, Bucharest, Constantinople. Lines connect with the German cities of Berlin, Nuremberg, Munich. A Transalpine Company operates between Paris and the Helvetian cities of Lausanne and Geneva.

In sending letters by air mail in France ordinary stamps are used as the French Government is the only government in Europe which has not adopted a special stamp for letters carried by air.

The French Air Mail Service accepts for transport all objects of correspondence except parcel post, c.o.d's., and letters and parcels of declared value and parcel post. Charges and sur-charges are paid by using the ordinary stamps but all air mail must be marked PAR AVION or BY AIRPLANE. Upon the payment of an extra franc and the marking of the mail matter PAR EXPRES or BY EXPRESS the matter will be delivered at address of destination immediately upon arrival of plane at city of destination by special delivery service. If this is not paid the mail matter will be distributed through ordinary channels after reaching city of destination by plane.

The following will give some idea of the cost of sending mail by air: (keep in mind the franc is ordinarily worth 20c but present value is only 8c)

Paris to London 25 centimes per 20 grammes or fraction thereof extra over and above ordinary postage as fixed by international tariff.

Paris to Warsaw, 1f 75 cent. per 20 grammes extra.

Paris to Bucharest 2f per 20 grammes extra.

Paris to Constantinople, 2f 25 cent. per 20 grammes extra.

Flying time between Paris and the following is: Strasbourg 2½ hours, Prague 6 hours, Warsaw 9 hours, Vienna 8 hours, Budapest 10 hours, London 2 hours.
